To facilitate an adequate harvest of deer the section of game in cooperation with the state division of forestry and the federal forest service has constructed one hundred miles of forest roads and trails in to formerly inaccessible areas.

Game managers will be checking the deer on the state-owned wildlife management areas which have been opened to hunting to get information on hunter success and sex and age ratios.

Shippers have recognized that pipelines often offer the cheapest and most efficient methods of moving oil.

Minneapolis Lions Stage Hobby Show

To Show Handicraft November 13, 14 and 15

One of the largest hobby shows in the United States will be staged November 13, 14 and 15 in the Minneapolis Auditorium under the auspices of the Minneapolis Downtown Lions club.

More than 200 entries have been received so far, according to Larry C. Ische, chairman of the show. A record number of exhibitors of hobby materials have signed up for display space.

The trend in this year's show, according to Ische, is toward construction projects and away from collecting. The entries are running about two to one in favor of hobbies that involve handcraft or construction as opposed to those which involve the assembling of collections of materials.

The show is given each year to obtain funds for the Lion's charity work in sending needy children to summer camp. It points up the need for establishing constructive leisure time activity for young persons and those who have retired and no longer can devote their time to business occupations.

Manager Bemidji Liquor Store Is Ousted from Post

Harry Grindall, Manager Six Years, Charged with Dereliction in Duties

Harry Grindall, manager of the Bemidji municipal liquor store for the past six years, was ordered removed from office Wednesday by city manager James Deneen for "misconduct and dereliction in the performance of his duties," says the Bemidji Sentinel.

The move was made following an intensive six week investigation into charges that sales of beer and liquor in the off sale department of the operation made by Grindall, were not being rung up. This investigation began after a private citizen reported in September that a sale made to him had not been recorded. It disclosed numerous instances in which the same act had taken place.

Grindall was confronted by these charges Wednesday by the city manager, city attorney and chief of police and asked for his resignation. He refused and was then relieved of duty. Pursuant to his rights under the city charter he requested a hearing which will be held before an impartial board on Wednesday, Dec. 2. In the interim, Charles Dailey has been named as acting manager. A physical inventory of the store is already under way under the supervision of city finance officer Clarence Gordhamer.

This is the nursery of a large metropolitan hospital. Six times a day these precious bundles visit their happy mamas. And every night their proud papas gape at them through the glass. Nurses watch over them constantly. Doctors examine them daily.

But the statistics in the files of the police department cast a black shadow over this innocent scene. For one of these babies is J.D.

J.D. is short for a juvenile delinquent. And from police records and census figures we can estimate the proportion of new-born infants who will become juvenile delinquents in ten to twenty years. The one factor that threatens the accuracy of our calculations is that juvenile delinquency is increasing.

There are just two ways to deal with the problem. One is to enlarge our jails. The other is to give every child's spiritual well-being the same thorough attention that this hospital gives his physical well-being.

Is yours a church-going family? Is yours a religious home?

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

3 Directors Are Reelected on Fair Board

Stelmaschuk, Quam and Gordon Hunt Renamed Thursday

Three members of the board of directors of the Pennington County Agricultural society were re-elected at its annual meeting Thursday evening in the assembly room in the basement of the Auditorium. They were Sig Quam, Gordon Hunt and Paul Stelmaschuk. As in past years, the meeting was lightly attended.

President Albert Koop, who conducted the meeting, proposed that the board be enlarged to secure wider representation of various elements in the community. He also stated that the Pennington county 4-H council is considering the possibility of erecting a new and larger 4-H building on the fair grounds.

Secretary J. M. Roche submitted his report on the financial outcome of the 1959 fair. Principal items of revenue from the operation of the fair included outside gate admissions, $4,588.49; grandstand, $3,525; and concessions, carnival and space rentals, $3,457.41.

Other sources of revenue included state aid, $1,980.69; county aid, 2,573.23; advance rental paid by the curling club for use of the new livestock pavilion, $8,000; and a condemnation award of $1,415 from the state highway department for a small tract in the southwest corner of the fairgrounds, needed in connection with rerouting of Highway 1.

Major expenditures in connection with the operation of the fair included premiums paid, $3,300; advertising, $1,298.73; entertainment, including grandstand shows and race purses, $8,919.40; salaries and expenses of officers and directors, $1,383.02; and other outlays of $2,230.03.

New construction, including the new livestock pavilion, cost $16,740.27, while $1,289.34 was paid out for insurance of various types. The report showed a balance in the treasury of $1,456.13 as of October 23.

PRO AWARD Jim Roche, right, former Chamber of Commerce executive secretary, was the first recipient of the new "Pro" award which he received during the annual Pennington county 4-H Award banquet Nov. 4 from Paul Furuseth, president of the Pennington County Leaders' council. The award was for Roche's professional abilities to "grab the bull by the horns and keep the program off the ground."

Confusion as to Court Date Is Cleared up

Correct Date Nov. 17 but Lundgren Puts Off Term to Nov. 23

District Court Judge Paul A. Lundgren Saturday issued an order stating that the 1959 legislature had passed conflicting laws relating to the dates for the spring and fall terms of court for Pennington county. He said that the court had ruled that Chapter 104, setting the dates at the second Tuesday in May and the third Tuesday in November should prevail over Chapter 249, which sets the dates at the second Monday in May and the fourth Monday in November.

Since, however, thru a misunderstanding in the office of the clerk of court, the date of the fall term of court had been announced as November 23, the fourth Monday, Judge Lundgren ordered that to avoid further confusion, the clerk of court shall appear in the court room on the correct date, Tuesday, November 17, and adjourn the term to the previously announced date, Monday, November 23.

Judge Lundgren said that the postponement will enable him to continue with trial work in district court at Grand Rapids, Minn.

The judge stated that persons summoned for jury duty, and who wish to be excused, should appear before the court on November 23 at 10 a.m. At that time a date will be set for the jurors to report for duty.

School teachers of the city have contributed $399.50 to date, Hale said, and additional pledges will raise this figure to $500.

No reports have been received on the rural drive which is being led by Pat Culkins and Silas Hansons but results are expected in the near future.

To date, Soo Line employes, most of them from Pennington county, have contributed $1,809 of which $570 is through the payroll deduction plan begun this year. B. Stenberg, enginemen and Ray Hartley, supervisory force. In the drive, 81% of Soo Line employes contributed to the Pennington county Community Chest.

The Community Chest chairman Friday repeated his appeal to contributors to remember that the drive is for the benefit of six separate organizations and that funds must be divided among the agencies. "To meet the needs of the Boy Scouts, Salvation Army, Girl Scouts, the Sister Elizabeth Kenny Foundation, Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation and the Northwestern Minnesota Association for Retarded Children, I urge everyone to give all that is possible," Hale said.

The Chest office in the Avalon theatre building will be open from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. every day except Sunday until further notice. The office telephone number is MU 1-4141.

Senate Counsel on Small Business in Conference Here

Says Development Groups Such as Jobs Inc. May Obtain Loans Thru Agency

Eugene P. Foley, legal counsel for the small business loan committee of the U. S. Senate small business committee, arrived in Thief River Falls November 4 and immediately was involved in a series of meetings. Mr. Foley explained that he was not representing the small business agency, but rather was appointed to come up and make inquiries as to its effectiveness and satisfaction of businessmen in the area with the program. He has been further instructed to extend his study to include five Western states.

Representatives of Jobs Incorporated met with Mr. Foley and he reported that there are four different types available in the small loan program. One is the conventional type which can be secured at banks. Another is the type which can be secured by retail establishments that do under a million dollars worth of retail sales each year. The third type is to industrial firms who have less than 200 employees.

Foley pointed out that industries which have 500 employees are considered big business and firms with 200 to 500 are ruled on the relative merits of the particular firms being considered.

Bill LaFave, president of Jobs Incorporated, was advised that the fourth type of loan was available for the granting of funds to industrial corporations, such as Jobs Incorporated, which wish to purchase or erect buildings for the subsequent tenancy of a newly developed industry. Mr. Foley, in conclusion, stated that in general the procedure for securing business loans is for the persons involved to contact their local banks, who are fully prepared to assist them.

ASC Asks Reports of Farmers Completing Ditching Practices

Patrick W. Culkins, manager of the Pennington county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office, announced today that all Pennington county farmers who have completed their ditching practice or their stock-water pits are urged to report the completion of the practice to the county ASC office as soon as possible.

Producers who do not intend to complete either of the practices are also requested to report to the county office.

The final date for completing stock-water pits and surface ditching has been extended to December 31, 1959.

There are a considerable number of unreported stubble-mulching practice reports on file in the county office, said Culkins. Farmers who have been approved for federal cost-share on this practice have until November 15 to make their report if completed. Failure on the part of producers to timely file their performance report will result in the cancellation of their request for assistance.

Producers who have grain under Comodity Credit Corporation loan are urged to watch the cash market, because several times in the past month, the market reached a level that some profit over and above the loan value plus storage could have been realized by borrowers had they sold on the market bulge.

Culkins said that in his opinion many borrowers are not aware of the fact that even though they disposed of their grain on the cash market, they will nevertheless receive the resale storage payment for the number of days beginning June 1 for flax and wheat, and July 1 for oats, barley, and rye, that they have kept the grain on their farms.

SURPRISE EVENING

By Ella G. Mensman

ALMOST from the beginning things had gone wrong. Dinner itself was a success, after all Lis was an expert cook, but afterward the entire evening seemed to have been attacked by gremlins.

Lis felt her throat tighten with unshed tears as she watched Jim attempt conversation with Mr. Moss who seemed deliberately to withhold any warmth that might be part of his make-up.

They had planned with such high hopes only a few hours ago. Jim's company was expanding and Albert Moss, the "big boss," was coming to look over the younger men in search of a division manager.

So Lis subdued her natural informality and acted the dignified role to the hilt. And here the ice man and the beverage store seemed to have forgotten their promised deliveries. The phone was dead, the TV silent and even the heat seemed to be waning.

She looked about at drinks growing warmer, faces growing colder, Jim looking more desperate, and suddenly something within her rebelled.

Giving Jim a shaky smile, she addressed the group warmly, "We seem to have run out of ice and drinks and the TV has bugs in it, but we could indulge in an evening of good old-fashioned conversation and I will fix some snacks."

In mere minutes Lis had brewed steaming cups of spiced tea, and sandwiches. Soft music came from the record player and the guests had thawed out considerably.

The heat really had gone off and Jim lighted huge logs in the fireplace Lis had insisted be built in their new home. Lis thought she detected a slight softening in Mr. Moss' eyes as he gazed into the bright flames.

Mary Webster whose dinner party for the same group a few nights ago had progressed like clockwork smiled a bit smugly as she glanced at Lis, but the other guests seemed to be having fun. Tommy Webster was laughing just as uproariously over his mug of spiced tea as he usually did over his fifth cocktail.

Near midnight the guests left a bit reluctantly, assuring Lis that the evening had been fun.

The door closed behind the last guest and Lis decided to face the music bravely. Turning, she looked Mr. Moss squarely in the eye and declared, "I'm sorry things went wrong, but I did the best I could. You needn't be afraid to tell me Jim didn't get the promotion, for I really don't care. Not if it means having to turn into something I am not."

The executive dignity slid from the older man's shoulders like a discarded cloak and he laughed for the first time, an engaging chuckle, "Young lady, I haven't had so much fun in years. I can't remember when I last sat before an open fire and played word games. I want to tell you that you hurdled all my obstacles like a professional."

Lis couldn't believe her ears. "Your obstacles?"

Again the infectious chuckle. "Do you think so many things could have gone wrong without some human help? I cancelled your deliveries, cut the phone wire, turned off the heat and sabotaged the TV, too."

With a bit of fire in her eye, Lis exclaimed, "Do you mean to tell me you did all those things on purpose? Had Mrs. Moss taken the same course of obstacles?"

Mrs. Moss slipped her arm around her husband's shoulders and spoke for the first time, "My dear, he is an old demon, but he means well."

Mr. Moss, a twinkle in his eye, said, "Good night, Mr. & Mrs. Division Manager."

SPECIALIZED TRAINING ATTRACTS THOUSANDS

Instead of curtailing the need for specialized training, the greater the enrollment in public schools and liberal arts colleges and universities, the greater the need for private "vocational" or "industrial" training. One pioneer in this field which continues to serve and thrive and grow is the Dunwoody Industrial Institute in Minneapolis, which operates on a three-way base: Endowment fund, gifts and scholarships, and tuition fees. During their last fiscal year Dunwoody trained in some one of more than a dozen specialized fields, from baking to auto mechanics, 4,043 students who spent almost a million and a half hours in class at a cost of almost exactly a dollar an hour—just short of $1,600,000, of which loyal alumni and generous friends contributed $140,000, not quite a tenth. With the help of the Ford Foundation this widely acclaimed trade school also conducts teacher training programs in the Far East.

POLK COUNTY LEADS IN "FARM FIRSTS"

According to official crop reporting records, Minnesota's champion producing counties last year, 1958, were: Barley, Polk county; cattle and calves, Otter Tail; corn, Martin; cows and heifers, Otter Tail; flax, Lincoln; hay, Otter Tail; hens, pullets, and eggs, Stearns; hogs, Stearns; milk, Stearns; oats, Polk; potatoes, Polk; rye, Sherburne; sheep and lambs, Otter Tail; soybeans, Renville; sugar beets, Polk; wheat, Polk. That makes a one-crop leader of Lincoln, Martin, Renville, and Sherburne counties; a three-crop leader of Stearns, four for Otter Tail, and an imposing five-crop leadership for Polk county.

HAVE YOU CROSSED THE WORLD'S GREATEST BRIDGE?

Do you know where it is? Can you pronounce its name? Across the blue waters of the Straits of Mackinac, connecting Lake Michigan with Lake Huron, leaps the mighty Mackinac Bridge, four miles from shore to shore, as impregnable as a mountain. And don't call it "Mackinack" but Makinaw, as "the natives" do. Approaches and span stretch 26,444 feet, of which 19,243 feet is steel superstructure, a total of 8,614 feet is in suspension, and 3,800 feet hang unimpeded between the 552-foot main towers. The 48-foot four-lane bridge floor is 199 feet above the water, leaving a frame-to-water clearance of 155 feet. Deepest water at piers is 142 feet, and they are sunk 105 feet below that. 11,840 tons of cable contain 12,850 wires with an overall length of 42,000 miles, and the whole steel leviathan tips the beam a few pounds short of one million tons. At the fair weather maximum of 45 miles an hour, normal car crossing time is about 10 minutes compared with the old ferry's 53 minutes—not to mention the long ferry wait which has been completely eliminated. Moderate tolls are expected to liquidate in 25 to 30 years the $96,400,000 cost of Mighty Mack.

Public Opinion

Editor Times:

On a recent visit to Thief River Falls, I was subjected to a good deal of criticism as a result of a 'Letter to the Editor' that appeared in your paper and was reportedly authored by me. I wish to inform you and your readers that I did not write the letter and certainly do not ascribe to the lofty views of the writer concerning your editorial policy. I feel that a newspaper, used in the manner in which your paper is used, goes the limit in violating what we like to consider as "freedom of the press." I note that your paper is truly a "party line" paper in the sense that what you say is echoed by your other writers. This is true whether you are discussing schools or some other feature of local, state or national government.

Just what is the friction between you and education, Bill? It's really pretty personal isn't it? If my memory serves me correctly, you were used as a "whipping boy" by educators during your tenure in the Senate and you are still not content to admit your errors and let the wounds heal. There are good reasons why you were not returned to the Senate and your writing, evidence of your thinking, is prominent. If you were really the statesman you would have us believe we would have beat a path to your door and made certain that you were elevated to some high office where your talents would not be wasted. Your constructive work in Thief River Falls has been limited to a campaign for a police radio tower, and we speculate on the value of that to the community.

The recent letter you printed over the name "Herbert Swanson" carried some slanderous statements. I know nothing of the qualifications of your previous superintendents or your present superintendent. I renounce the writer of the letter as a coward of the worst type. If ever I contacted by parties referred to in the letter, I shall hold your scandal sheet responsible.

There is only one other Herbert Swanson in Thief River Falls. Neither of our names appear on the tax rolls. I own no property here — I assume that is true with my namesake — and hereafter check all letters for slander. I believe it's high time that the thinkers in your community got into the act as doers.

Yours truly,
Herbert Swanson
Thief River Falls

Editor's Note:

Thank you, Mr. Swanson, for your informative letter. We have had some difficulty in locating the other Mr. Swanson. If you will further identify yourself by telling us where you live we will be greatly obliged.

Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson

Just Fair

In spite of the reports of limit-fills and near-limits by a number of hunting parties, it is the consensus that the deer hunting season, the opening weekend, that is, was only fair. The hunters, except for the blustery weather and blowing snow on Saturday, were favored by near-ideal conditions, and the snowfall on Saturday night made tracking a pleasure on Sunday.

Among the reports that we received of early fills of their tags was the Al Bacon-Adrian Larson-Bob Vielguth trio, which had a pair of bucks and a doe on their car rack by 9 o'clock on Saturday. The boys hunted the Mud Lake refuge, having their successful hunt in the newly-opened area.

Tom Fuller, Wendy Olson, Einar Barstad and their party of seven came in Saturday night with five deer. And included in this five-deer bag was a 244-lb. 8-ounce buck that was shot by Orv Gillespie. To date, this buck is the largest to have been brought into Fred's Mobil Service weighing station here.

St. Hilaire's John Kruse, and his six-man party, hunting the Goose lake territory west of town, had five deer on the meat-rack by Saturday night. And Hillie Drees' group, also hunting the Goose lake area, had six deer.

But the reports from the Mud Lake refuge area were not too bright. The deer herd in the refuge was dispersed over a wide area, and with the lack of hunting pressure (there weren't the usual number of hunters in the refuge this season) it was difficult to get the deer to move. The deer kill in the refuge will undoubtedly show a considerable drop this season, and that's perhaps to the good. It would probably be advisable to restrict the hunting in the refuge for a couple of years in order to build up the supply of deer. And, too, having a large number of deer in the refuge would serve as a feeder to the areas adjacent to the refuge.

We were surprised at the lack of hunters along ditch 200, always one of the attractive locations for the opening day. We were told that very few deer were taken out of that area on Saturday and Sunday.

Oh yes, we'll mention that Gillespie bagged his trophy-sized buck while hunting the area about 14 miles northwest of town. That Newfolden area turned in quite a number of deer the first couple of days.

The Year's First

Last Sunday, along with Carl Wennberg, Arlan Hjelle, Gary and Paul Klungness, we made the three-hour drive of 160 miles to the Winnipeg Arena to witness the Winnipeg Warriors in their Western Hockey league tilt against the Vancouver Canucks. The Vancouver club, leading the Western league standings, proved superior to the young Winnipeg team, winning by a 4 to 3 score.

As is the case in early season play, the goalies Hank Bassen of Vancouver and veteran Al Rollins of Winnipeg, had the edge over the scoring players. The sharpshooting of the wingmen, on both clubs, proved somewhat erratic. Later on in the season, and during the playoffs in particular, the scorers will be sniping at the corners of the net with remarkable accuracy.

It's a hockey treat to be able to witness a game in the spacious Winnipeg Arena. The fans are well-mannered, and the Arena personnel is courteous, and the hockey provided by the Western Hockey league teams is just a step below that of the National Hockey league.

He's a Prospect

We believe that Crookston's 178-pound halfback, John Lysaker, a sophomore this season, will develop into a first-rate college prospect.

At the same stage in their development, in their sophomore years, we think that John reveals more potential than his older brother Herschel (Pepper). Pepper had a year of football at Minnesota, but as he was given little opportunity to exhibit his abilities, he transferred to North Dakota university. Pepper, of course, is a top-flight basketball player, and he will be a welcome addition to coach Louie Bogan's Sioux squad next season.

John, though, is primarily a rough-and-tumble football player, and if he can progress thru his junior and senior years in high school without incurring serious and crippling leg and ankle injuries, he should be a great one for some college or university. He had trouble this season on a couple of ocasions, being sidelined for a game or two.

What we would enjoy watching is a high school team that had the Prowlers' Gary Klungness and Crookston's Lysaker at the halfbacks. And especially in their senior years!

Three Collisions Here over Weekend

Small Damage Reported in Two Rear-end Collisions

Slippery streets, caused by Friday night's snowfall, have caused a rash of minor collisions, mostly of the rear-end variety, according to city police. Drivers were warned to take the condition of the streets into consideration and drive accordingly.

The first accident occurred about 6:12 p.m. Saturday when a car driven by Louis J. Cerny, city, hit another driven by F. Maynard Scilley, in the rear, as Scilley was attempting to make a left turn off N. Main onto E. Eighth st. Cerny said he was unable to stop on the slippery pavement.

Damage was estimated at $60 to each car. No tickets were issued.

Another minor mishap of the same nature occurred at 7:12 p.m. Saturday when a car driven by Diane K. Storhaug, city, struck another car driven by W. Lloyd Spray in the rear as Spray had slowed for the railroad crossing near First st. and Conley av. Only $30 total damage was reported, $20 to Spray's car, $10 to the Storhaug vehicle.

Details were not available on a collision between cars driven by Burton Kvernerig and Leslie Aasand, both of the city, at the intersection of Knight av. and Second st. The drivers reported the accident to the police, saying slippery streets was the cause. Damage was estimated at $50 to Kvernerig's car, $100 to Aasand's.

A. C. Townley, N.D. Political Figure, Accident Victim

Founder of Nonpartisan League Killed in Crash Near Minot Saturday

The driver of a truck involved in an accident that killed A. C. Townley, founder of the once nationally known Nonpartisan league, was being held in the Ward county jail at Minot, N. D., Sunday.

Townley was killed late Saturday when his car crashed into the truck at a Ward county intersection.

The driver of the truck was Emil Simonson, Berthold, N. D. The highway patrol said Simonson's driver's license had been suspended. He was not hurt seriously in the crash.

The 79-year-old Townley founded the Nonpartisan league, organized in 1915 as a protest movement by farmers. It had many members in this section of Minnesota. After World War I the league's influence receded until it became a force only in North Dakota.

Townley faded into relative obscurity and when the league sprang back into power in North Dakota in the 30's he was not among its leadership.

Light Snowfall Greets Deer Hunters Saturday

A thin layer of snow that cheered deer hunters Saturday, Nov. 7, and a bright, sunshiny day Sunday highlight the weather picture for the past weekend.

Although the warmest reading for the period was the 31 degrees Sunday, the weather was perfect for outdoor activities including snowballing, sledding and building small snowmen. Hockey sticks and pucks were taken out of summer storage and street hockey again came into vogue.

Daytime temperatures during the period ranged from Sunday's 31 to Saturday's 19 and night time lows ranged from the three recorded Thursday to Friday's 18. Saturday and Sunday nights, a temperature of 13 was posted.

The KTRF forecast calls for variable cloudiness with scattered very light snow today and tonight. Tomorrow, a little colder is predicted with light snow flurries.

Highs for Monday, Nov. 9, are expected to be from 35 to 40 and lows at night from 25 to 30.

Stan Mortenson, secretary of the board, stated that the names of the viewers on the project will be announced later.

N.W. Conference Coaches Select All-senior Squad

The Northwest conference's football coaches—Joe Mrkonich of Thief River Falls, Ken Wilson of Bemidji, Harold Sullivan of East Grand Forks, Lowell Larson of Crookston, and Ray Kavanaugh of Roseau—held their annual meeting at Erskine on Wednesday evening.

The group announced the make-up of the twenty-two man all-senior football squad, with the following being selected: linemen—Pat Sullivan, Gary Vigen and Fordyce Hanson of East Grand Forks; Jeff Hartje and Jim Wegge of Thief River Falls; Ron Ross, Keith Brandt, Bob Waag and Larry Stordahl of Roseau; Doug Walling, Russ Gunsalus and Larry Wilcox of Bemidji; and Eldon Nelson and Glenn Clark of Crookston. In the backfield the following were named: Arlan Hjelle of Thief River Falls; Lowell Innes and Larry Peterson of East Grand Forks; Jim Erickson and Bob Glas of Bemidji; and Merle Wellen, Dick Roth and Doug Vacura of Roseau.

The group discussed the possibilities of increasing the conference to a six-team circuit, and it was agreed that an attempt should be made to add another school to the conference.

The Roseau Rams, posting a record of four wins and no losses, was declared the 1959 Northwest conference football champions.

'U' M. to Offer College Courses at Morris; to Affect N. W. School

Beginning in the fall of 1960, the University of Minnesota will offer first-year college level instruction on the campus of its West Central school of agriculture and experiment station at Morris, President J. L. Morrill announced Thursday. Phasing out of high school level instruction at the school will start at the same time, but experiment station activities will continue, he said.

Authorized by the board of regents, the action inaugurating college training at Morris is based on more than two years of study which also indicated, according to the University president, that it may be "both desirable and feasible" to offer a similar program at the Northwest school of agriculture and experiment station at Crookston at some later date.

"Clearly, the experience at Morris will be of crucial importance in the final determination of the course of action to be pursued with respect to the Crookston school," President Morrill stated, adding, "and the regents have pledged their intention to continue their serious consideration of the collegiate instructional needs of the Crookston-Northwestern Minnesota region."

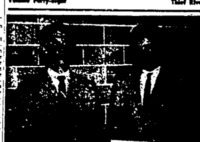
Also contemplated by the regents, the president reported, are changes in the curriculum of the North Central school of agriculture and experiment station at Grand Rapids including the possible phasing out of high school level agricultural work and the development of post high school technical offerings. The regents have authorized the University administration to make immediate studies with respect to the future of the Grand Rapids school, he added.

President Morrill emphasized that the regents have authorized only the experimental "beginning" of first-year college instruction at Morris for the school year 1960-61, and further study of the future programs of the Crookston and Grand Rapids schools.

"It will be recognized," he added, "that any development of continuing collegiate or post high school level work at these schools will require Legislative support." The next regular session of the State Legislature will open in January 1961.

The University chief pointed out that the planning studies of the three schools and the regents' action in beginning a college program at Morris are all in accord with the recommendations of the 1957-59 legislative interim commission on higher education, the 1957-59 legislative interim commission on agricultural schools and Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 2, dated April 9, 1959.

Headed by Senator Robert R Dunlap of Plainview, the Interim Commission on Higher Education recommended to the 1959 legislature "that the board of regents be requested to develop collegiate programs at the University agricultural schools beginning with Crookston and Morris, and that adequate funds be provided for this purpose". The legislature, however, did not appropriate the recommended funds. The commission further urged that the regents "be asked to study the possible use of the University agricultural school at Grand Rapids in providing collegiate programs as a technical-vocational institute."



In its report to the 1959 legislature, which included a recommendation to the regents that they prepare and submit to the legislature "building and administrative plans for the development of four-year college branches for resident and nonresident students" at the Morris and Crookston schools, the agriculture schools commission called for "equality in educational opportunity."

"The pattern of institutional development which has taken place since territorial days," the commission asserted in its report, "has resulted in a lack of higher educational facilities in a large area of western Minnesota. College instruction at the agricultural schools of Morris and Crookston will assist the state in providing equal opportunity in higher education without the added expense of creating entirely new campuses and facilities."

Plenty of Turkey and Cranberries for Thanksgiving

Farmers Have Raised about Five Per Cent More Birds This Year

Two typical Thanksgiving foods—turkey and cranberries—will be in good supply during the entire month of November, Mrs. Eleanor Loomis, extension consumer marketing agent at the University of Minnesota, reported today.

These two items, along with pork, head the U.S. Department of Agriculture's list of plentiful foods for the month.

Farmers have raised about 5% more turkeys this year than last. Minnesota families should have no trouble getting the size turkey they want for Thanksgiving — and at reasonable prices. Birds are available from about five pounds to over 20 pounds. Thanks to selective breeding and better feeding, turkeys today are meatier, more tender and have more white meat than their ancestors.

Cranberries, traditional companion of turkey for the holiday dinner, are setting a new all-time high record of production. Forecast for the 1959 cranberry crop is 8% more than in 1958 and 29% above average.

Pork and fryer chickens are plentiful as main-course foods. Pork is more plentiful than it has been for several years and will continue in good supply thru the end of 1959. Fryer chickens continue to be one of the best values at the meat counter.

Most abundant vegetable for November are potatoes, sweet potatoes and onions. The 1959 production of all three crops is considerably larger than last year.

Detroit Lakes Man Proposed as State Head of FU

A large number of Farmers Union members representing all sections of Minnesota met at Alexandria Sunday, November 1. They unanimously endorsed Ray J. Anderson, Detroit Lakes farmer, as a candidate for the presidency of the Minnesota Farmers Union and Warren Lyman, farmer from Nerstrand, as vice president. A volunteer committee was organized to carry on the campaign. Both Mr. Anderson and Mr. Lyman pledged themselves to an all-out campaign to help return the Farmers Union to farmers.

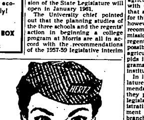
Grafton Band Is Invited to Hawaii

Receives Bid to Share in Statehood Celebration

The Grafton Parade Band is considering an invitation to go to Hawaii for the statehood activities scheduled Nov. 26-29, Director Joe Birkeland said last week.

The band, he said, received an official invitation from Gov. William T. Quinn, inviting them to take part in the festivities.

Accompanying the invitation was a letter from the committee in charge of the program, urging the band to make the trip. The band would perform at some of the official proceedings, the committee stated.



Director Birkeland called a meeting of the band, and the group voted to accept the invitation if finances can be arranged.

Birkeland said he had talked to officials of an airline in regard to transportation to and from Hawaii. A plane which could carry the party of 68 members could be secured, he said. Cost of the trip, however, would be approximately $32,000.

Education Week

So many days and so many weeks have been set aside to commemorate so many special programs, interests or activities that official proclamations calling attention to these things seldom serve a useful purpose. They are generally ignored, and understandably so.

Education is one interest that deserves recognition. A valid question might be raised however as to the need for a special week to focus attention on education, in view of the fact that education has been getting a great deal of attention since the launching of the first Sputnik. But the special week certainly will do no harm.

Education has always been a controversial subject. The ancient philosophers argued among themselves over some of the problems and practices that are controversial at this time. They of course, were not concerned about our problems of universal education. One of our country's interesting contributions to educational processes has been in the field of universal education.

And one of the evils that has been casting a lengthening shadow over our expanding system of education has been politics, using the term politics in its worst sense. In recent years, more and more, politics has been getting into education and education has been getting into politics. Education has suffered because of its associations with an evil companion.

For many decades our public schools were looked upon by an average citizen with almost reverential awe. Here was the foundation of our republican form of government and of our democratic processes. In the public school the poor were equal to the rich and an elementary education was available to all. Most states now provide 12 years of schooling and the tendency is to make higher education available on this same basis.

As this trend has developed, the public education system has become more expensive and now is one of the biggest items in the cost of government. It is understandable why, with such a development, the public schools have become controversial.

Teachers and educators no longer are a small group of dedicated and generally underpaid public servants. Today they are a numerous bureaucracy, highly organized and politically strong. They conduct themselves just like other normally selfish individuals and groups. There are dedicated people among them who look upon teaching as a service and a means of self expression from which they derive a special satisfaction. But they no longer are representative of the group and do not speak for the majority.

That is why the public school is no longer a "sacred cow" that must not be questioned or criticized. And more questions are being asked by good citizens who are interested in education and in our public schools, and who are sincerely concerned about the coming generation and its capacity to meet the problems and survive as free people in the world of tomorrow.

The Times has been accused of being unduly critical of our own local school system and the state's schools of higher education. We can understand why such a conclusion might be reached. We will not attempt to defend our position at this time. We can say however, that many of the views we have expressed are being expressed throughout the nation, and many of the most critical are among the nation's outstanding educators.

And there is a groundswell of questionasking that probably is more significant than the views of questioning educators. In the Minneapolis Tribune last week, Louis Cassels of the United Press International, made the following report. He said:

"Keeping parents in their place is becoming a vexing problem for school officials.

"From one end of the country to the other, parents are beginning to act as though they had a right to help decide what and how their children are taught.

"Through Parent-Teacher associations, better-schools committees and other civic groups, they are sounding off with advice about curriculum content, academic standards and even teacher selection.

"This trend is distressing to many educators, who feel strongly that all such decisions should be left to "professionally qualified" people.

"These educators welcome increased parental interest in school problems. But they want parents to stick to the traditional PTA role of "supporting" the school program—by working for approval of bond issues, higher teacher salaries, and so forth — instead of "meddling" in educational policy.

"Most school administrators are astute enough politically to avoid a head-on clash between the two viewpoints. They know that parents are also taxpayers and voters, and can be nasty when riled. So they endeavor to give parents at least a sense of participation in the formulation of school policies by naming some of them to various "advisory" bodies.

"In fairness, it should be said that some of these efforts at parental participation are completely sincere and highly effective. Others are eyewash.

"The PTA in the national's capital, unlike the tame-tabby groups found in some communities, is vigorously independent of the official school organization. It set out a few months ago to take a cold, hard, critical look at Washington's elementary schools.

"At a series of summer "seminars," the PTA invited experts within and without the school system to discuss such problems as reading instruction, homework, English composition and standardized testing.

"PTA representatives also called on the [illegible] of various elementary schools to [illegible] teaching policies. "Summaries" of these interviews were published and distributed to parents.

"The probing reached what some educators regarded as an intolerable point when the annual city-wide PTA convention included on its program a discussion on "Incompetent teachers" and what to do about them."

In Montevideo, Minnesota, about the size of Thief River Falls, a citizens committee on local education was formed last summer with the encouragement of the Montevideo Board of Education. According to Superintendent Emil F. Wilken, writing in the Montevideo American, the committee was established for the following purposes:

"To develop community cooperation; to develop community consciousness of the educational program; to secure information to assist the board in policy and decision making; to facilitate desirable educational progress; and to develop improved school-community trust and respect."

The committee is made up of representatives of local, civic, farm, veterans and service clubs as well as city and county officials, the ministerial association and PTA organizations, and meets once a month.

In the meetings held up to now, the committee has been studying: The philosophy of education of the school; general powers and duties of the board of education; the curricular and extra-curricular programs of the school; graduation requirements and credits; student regulations; the school lunch program; grading and reporting systems; transportation; space needs, and consolidation.

We may assume that this citizens committee was organized in Montevideo because school authorities recognized a need for better public relations and "greater school-community trust and respect." From our observation there is a need for such an organization in Thief River Falls.

Over a period of years too many school board members have fallen in with the idea that their organization is a secret society and that the public has no right to be informed about school business. They seem to go along with a code of ethics that their own organization is accused of having adopted and which prohibits them from discussing school matters with any citizen or to discuss school business among themselves unless the superintendent is present.

And there is a marked similarity in the public relations attitude of the boards that control our systems of higher education. The University of Minnesota, because of its constitutional authorization, is very definitely a secret society. From our observation the board of regents is just another school board, with heavy responsibilities and great powers in the management of an operation about which few of them are informed.

'Thinking Is Risky'

(San Francisco Examiner)

Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, president of the Fund for the Republic, deplored "the unpopularity of thinking" last night at a dinner of the Christian Higher Education Fund of the Congregational Christian Churches.

The former chancellor of the University of Chicago, speaking before a Sheraton-Palace Hotel audience at the Fund's "Salute to Higher Education" dinner, said "this activity—this thinking—is not very popular."

"Sometimes it seems next to impossible—in the United States," he added. "One trouble with thinking is that it leads to criticism. A person who thinks is one who dislikes falsehood. And since it is impossible to dislike it and never say anything about it, it is impossible to think and never say anything controversial."

Doctor Hutchins said America's expanding system of public education is drifting away from intellectual training to such an extent that the nation is approaching the point of "having schools without education."

"The church-related colleges," he said, "have on the whole been resistant to pressure. They have been able to dedicate themselves with less reserve than many other institutions to the object of higher education, the development of intellectual power."

"They may be regarded as the true preservers, if not the only begetters, of sound education—the education that consists of and leads to thinking."

Like School Year

(Windom Citizen)

We were somewhat surprised to read of the action of the American Federation of Teachers in its recent convention. Teachers have for some years pointed out that they are at a disadvantage because they are without work three months of the year, and have suggested that for this reason they deserve a little extra in the way of compensation.

But at their recent convention they went on record against a year round session of school, calling the fall to spring session the most educationally sound policy. Of course they may have sound reasons for that. But we are beginning to believe that while the 12-month school session might be a bit too much, a ten-month session might not be amiss. It would not only give teachers a longer work year but would also allow the children to pick up an extra year in the 12. We could then follow Canada's system and put a year of college in place of our twelfth year. That might ease the strain on our universities and colleges, keeping the kids at home the extra year, and also determining what students are fitted for college work and to which ones it might prove a real asset.

by Orville L. Freeman

Last week something new happened in Minnesota when a bus load of state officials, legislators, doctors and other interested citizens toured three of our state hospitals over a period of two days. Accompanying the tour were representatives of press, radio and television, who have already presented to the people of Minnesota several accounts of our tour.

A New Project

Our state institutions have been visited many times by many delegations—official and unofficial. Legislative committees have made visits to determine building needs, and to get other first hand information.

But I believe this is the first time that kind of group has made a tour of this nature for the purpose of learning more about our state programs in order to plans for future progress. We hope to participate in three more such tours, to cover all of our state hospitals.

There Is Much to Learn

I suppose each person on this tour formed an opinion of his own that differed in some respects from the opinions of the others. But I think that all of us would be pretty well agreed on some impressions.

As we visited the hospitals at Fergus Falls, Walker, and Brainerd we were impressed with the ability and the sincere dedication to their work of the staffs and employees, and with the great human value of the services they perform for those of our fellow Minnesotans who are in their care.

We were also deeply impressed with the value of the work of hundreds of community volunteers who regularly give of their time and talents to make life brighter and better for the patients.

Excellent Food

We ate one meal at each of the hospitals, and we were served the same meals as those provided for patients and staff. The food was excellent, and in generous quantity. We were amazed to learn that meals of this kind are provided at a total cost for food of 63 cents per person per day!

Progress in Care

We learned some of the tremendously encouraging progress that is being made in the treatment of mental illness. New methods are bringing heartening results. For example, during the last year 608 patients were admitted to the receiving hospital at Fergus Falls, and about 70 per cent of these were returned to their local communities within eight months.

New Interests for Older Patients

It was encouraging to see the results of the geriatric program to re-awaken interest in life for older patients. This is a relatively new program that involves helping them to do useful work as well as participate in recreation. This program has been so successful that it has resulted in a discharge rate three times as great as before. Even more could be discharged if there were suitable homes in which they could be placed.

Much Is Needed

With all the progress, we saw evidence of many real needs. More personnel seems to be the greatest need. We learned how many of even the existing positions are remaining unfilled because of the scarcity of physicians, pschologists, and trained social workers. Having seen how much is being accomplished we could see how much more could be achieved.

Expert Opinion

One of the great values of this tour was the opportunity, during bus rides between stops, to question the experts who accompanied us, and to get their opinions with regard to problems and possibilities. They explained to us many of the needs. They convinced us that mentally ill people today have the best chance they have ever had to improve, to recover, and to make successful community adjustments—if all modern tools and treatment methods are made available.

And the experts gave us real hope for even further progress, and a real incentive to plan for another ten years of steady advance.

GROWING WITH YOUR CHILD

Institute of Child Welfare
University of Minnesota

The Forgotten Years

The middle years of childhood, the years from six to twelve, are sometimes called the forgotten years. Not that any parent who has children in this age bracket can long forget them, but rather that these youngsters have been largely overlooked in our study of the developmental process.

One book in child psychology states that the middle years are perhaps the age adults know least about. Infancy, early childhood, the preschool years, and adolescence receive a lot of attention, but the middle years somehow get much less. One reason for this is the growing ability of the child to look out for himself during this time. Being a father or mother to school-aged children is quite different from caring for preschool youngsters who are around more, and generally make us feel more needed. Once a child is in school his world broadens out quickly, his contacts and experiences multiply, and we are destined to play a somewhat less important role in his life. In many ways we welcome this relief from the pressure of constant care, and relax somewhat realizing that others will share with us some of the responsibility.

After a while however, we get the feeling that we have all but lost contact with our children. Friends and companions take greater amounts of their time and we find ourselves a bit more tempted to take on a few outside obligations which we postponed while the children were younger. In no time at all, this can add up to seeing our children at mealtime and bedtime (and not always then.) One study, reported as recently as 1956, revealed that a sharp decrease in number of hours spent in family settings occurred between the preschool years and the middle years of childhood. As we might expect, this decline was paralleled by an increase in the amount of time spent by youngsters in community settings.

Recently much helpful information has been gathered thru studies of school-aged children. We will discuss this in future columns. An excellent pamphlet entitled, "Your Child from 6 to 12" is available free of charge to Minnesota residents simply by writing to the Bulletin Room, Minnesota State Board of Health, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis 14.

PEEKIN' into the PAST

1958 RANCH TYPE

A real "ranch type" home is shown above. This log cabin is preserved today at Beatrice, Nebr., but it is representative of many houses built by the pioneers on the frontier. It is made from hand-hewn logs and chinked between logs with clay.

In these pioneer cabins the furniture was usually homemade and the floor was often of hard-beaten earth. The older ones were usually heated by a fireplace. In front of this rancher's cabin is his grindstone. This stone was used to sharpen his axe, his most important tool.

Dairy Cattle Sale Shows DHIA Value, Says Stelmashuk

Good grade dairy cows are good property. The average of the grade cows at the Top-of-the-Nation dairy sale was $333.

The herd of grade cows bringing most money was that consigned by George Spong of Oklee. Spong's six bred heifers brought $2,075, for an average of $346, stated county agent Paul Stelmaschuk. The fact that the heifers had good dairy type, were large in size, was important. But the most important factor in the good price, Spong believes, was the fact that the dams were backed up by D.H.I.A. records.

"When a dam's production is known, as well as the sire's, there is a good chance of knowing what production the heifers will have," Spong stated.

With the average selling price of grade cows consigned into the sale of $333, these cattle brought an even $11,000 plus calf-prices besides.

All dairy breeders would do well to examine closely their breeding, selection, and testing programs, said Stelmaschuk. D.H.I.A. testing is the most valuable tool on all dairy farms in picking the profitable cow. There is no more guess work. The barn chart will show the amount of milk and butter from the cow. The chart will also show the feed costs and other costs. If the farmer isn't satisfied with the profit left by a particular cow, she can leave the herd on the next trip to town.

Good cows are at a premium in any herd. The buyers at the sale proved that cows don't need to be registered to command a good price. It's the production of the cow that counts. This determines what is left in profit for the farmers' labor, Stelmaschuk stated.

Backache Topic of Refresher Course

Sixteen specialists will comprise the faculty at a medical refresher course on diagnosis and treatment of low back pain at the University of Minnesota Center for Continuation Study, Minneapolis, November 19-21. Orthopedic surgeons, neurologists and neurosurgeons from the Upper Midwest and physiatrists from all parts of the nation have been invited to attend.

The three-day sessions will be conducted by the University of Minnesota department of physical medicine and rehabilitation in cooperation with the Sister Kenny foundation, according to Dr. Frederic J. Kottke, department head.

Doctors find that because the causes of backache are so numerous — infections, arthritis, rheumatism, tumors, sprains, strains, disk ruptures, etc.—they cannot make an immediate accurate diagnosis of its origin in at least one-fourth of all patients complaining of back pain.

Fosston Rejects School Bond Issue

Votes Down $525,000 Bonds by Margin of Two to One

In a record vote Tuesday night the electorate of the Fosston school district turned down a proposal for a school expansion program by a vote of more than two to one.

The official count showed that a total of 972 ballots were cast, of which 308 were yes and 664 no.

The special election was on the question of issuing bonds not to exceed $525,000 for building a new wing on the north side of the high school and an extension on the east side of the gymnasium.

The original school, which houses most of the classrooms was built in 1913. The gymnasium, which has several classrooms and library on the second floor, was started in 1937 and completed the following year.

The decisive vote Tuesday followed an intensive educational campaign of about one month during which the school board and a citizens committee sought to point out the school expansion needs in the face of a growing school population.

Supt. A. K. Magelssen said Wednesday that no alternate plan for temporary relief of the situation is now under consideration but that the board of education will discuss the matter at their next meeting Tuesday evening.

Bemidji Scene of Winter Training of Turbojet Crews

First of 18 Ten-man Crews Are Expected to Arrive in Bemidji about Nov. 15

Bemidji will soon echo once again to the sound of giant C-130 Turbojet cargo planes taking off and landing at the Bemidji airport. Plans were completed last week for the arrival of 18 crews consisting of ten men each who will undergo two to four weeks of intensive training under actic flying conditions.

The men are expected to begin arriving around Nov. 15 with the training scheduled to be completed by the end of the year. They are members of the 61st Troop Carrier Squadron stationed at Sewert Air Force Base, Nashville, Tenn.

A four man team headed by Col. John R. Roche was in Bemidji last week to complete arrangements for the training exercises. The squadron will again make its headquarters at the Bemidji airport with the men housed at motels and hotels. In addition to the flying personnel, another 80 maintenance men will take part in the maneuvers.

As in previous training sessions conducted in Bemidji the past few winters, the crews will be learning to fly and maintain ski equipped aircraft under arctic conditions. The Bemidji training is usually the final phase of their schooling directly preceding transfer into arctic areas of the world.

QUESTIONS answered for VETERANS

Q—As a veteran of World War I getting a VA pension, I understand I can continue receiving pension under the present system or go under a new system when it becomes effective July 1, 1960. When must I make my choice?

A—There is no set time for making your choice. It can be made at any time. However, once you have made your choice you must stick with it. You cannot change back. VA will send you ample information to help you make the right choice.

Q—I entered school under the GI Bill this fall, but so far have not received an allowance check from VA. How soon after starting school may I expect my first check?

A—Veterans starting school under the Korean GI Bill can expect to wait about two months for their first GI allowance check. The reason is, the law does not permit VA to pay a student until after the first month of classroom work has been completed, and VA is allowed 20 days after that to get the check in the mails.

Q—I have a disability income rider on my GI insurance which will pay me up to $50 a month on my $10,000 policy, if I become totally disabled. I understand the amount has been raised and that my coverage could now be greater if I want it that way. Please give me the details.

A—A recent law increased the total disability payments to $10 per month for each $1,000 of GI insurance in force, or $100 for a $10,000 policy. You may obtain this additional coverage for a small addition to the premium you are now paying.

Q—Is a peacetime veteran with a disability rated at 50 per cent entitled to more compensation for dependents?

A—Yes, peacetime veterans rated 50% or more disabled may be entitled to additional compensation for a wife, minor children, and dependent parents.

Appearing in newspapers of the Minnesota Editorial Association through the cooperation of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service and the University of Minnesota Institute of Agriculture.

Minnesota's fall soil sample roundup has scored some real success so far. From mid-September to mid-October, the University of Minnesota's soil testing laboratory was getting some 1,000 samples per week — just about double the rate for the same weeks in 1958. Laboratory supervisor John Grava says how much sampling is done for the rest of the fall will depend on how soon it freezes up. If there's a late freeze, he expects to have 35,000 samples tested for the 1959 year, compared to around 29,000 in 1958.

Gully control structures are something you can't afford to be without if you have fields needing them. Luverne Thielges, Canby, had three gullies eroding back from a large coulee with a 12-17 per cent slope, and were just starting to cut into cropland. Yellow Medicine county agent David Johnson says Thielges put in three control structures in 1957, aided by ACP cost-sharing and SCS technical help. In the one heavy rain since then, the structures were only about a fourth full of water. The threat to Thielges' cropland has ended.

While some farmers are short of hay this year, many others in Minnesota have it to sell. A recent summary of hay prices and supplies by the Minnesota Agricultural Extension Service and state department of agriculture shows this: Prices vary from $10 to 30 per ton for "excellent" quality hay, $8 to $25 per ton for "good" hay and $6 to $18 for hay "fair" in quality. County agents and local weed and seed inspectors have lists of counties where farmers are selling hay.

Put up hay in 12-inch hay cubes? Maybe so, some day. University of Minnesota farm engineers tested the small, 10-15 pound bales and say they hold real promise. They are easy to handle mechanically, easier to dry artificially, and can help save hay quality. Some balers, now on the market, produce bales nearly that small.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh
"Sizing-up" the Situation
When a lady in our town's looking for a new dress ... her first target is Sandy Philip's Shop. The other day I finally asked Sandy how come he's been so successful.
"Well," Sandy said, "I've always treated my customers with courtesy. And my secret ingredient—which isn't really a secret—is flattery.
"Whenever a new shipment of dresses comes in, I cut off the size markers in every dress—and make them a size smaller. Size 16 becomes size 14 and so on. Course, all the ladies know I change the number—but they like it. Helps them pretend their figures are a little better than they really are."
From where I sit, we all like to think the best of ourselves—often "shrink" the truth to do it. Reminds me of people who claim they're not prejudiced then turn around and argue against a neighbor's choice of a glass of beer. Even a little intolerance is too much in a person or in a town—and that's exactly the size of it.

Five Steps Proposed to Lift Dairy Profit

Here's a five step plan that can open the door to bigger milk checks.

It's a plan recommended by I. N. Deutsch, U.S. Department of Agriculture dairy husbandman, and C. L. Cole, head of the dairy husbandry department at the University of Minnesota. The steps:

Keep production records. There is a choice of standard DHIA, Owner-sampler, and the Milk Production Record and Culling guide. County agents have details on each plan. Using information from such records, DHIA herds have been able to return $1 for labor above the average for the state.

Develop a good breeding program. Make sure your cattle have inherited ability to produce large quantities of milk and butterfat according to their feed. Breed cows to sires proven in an artificial breeding association. If proved sires aren't available, use a young bull with an ancestry of proved sires and dams. University and USDA research shows it may soon be possible to "insure" 10,000-pound producing cows by following good breeding and management practices.

Choose a good feeding plan. Make sure cows get enough energy, protein, minerals and vitamins. Home-grown feeds, pastures and other forages are the cheapest and best feeds for dairy cattle. That's true if they are harvested and stored to save a high percentage of the nutrients. Early cutting, for example, increases net energy percentage of hay by 34 per cent over late cutting.

Manage carefully. Labor, machinery and equipment must be used efficiently these days. Self-feed hay and silage wherever possible. Use plenty of bedding in winter. Practice sanitation. Wash and wipe the udder before milking. Use a strip cup to check on abnormal milk. If you see signs of mastitis, milk that cow last. Give the cows a 6-8 week rest period between lactation periods. That long a wait can boost production 10 per cent over no dry period.

Maintain milk quality. Cool milk immediately after milking to 50 degrees or below. Feed strong odored foods, such as silage, only after milking and after the milk is out of the barn. Keep pastures free of poisonous weeds and seeds that cause objectionable flavors in milk.

Lions Club Hears Education Week Talk by J. Iverson

High School Director Discusses Enrollment, Advances in Curriculum

Guest speaker at the Lions club luncheon meeting Wednesday noon was Joseph Iverson, director of secondary education in the local schools, whose talk was appropriate to the current observance of American Education Week.

Introduced by John Peterson, program chairman, Iverson discussed enrollment trends, stating that surveys indicated the present enrollment of 1,070 in Lincoln junior-senior high school would remain fairly constant for several years, but would increase by about 230 students ten years from now. All rooms in the Lincoln building, he said, are now in use six to seven hours each school day.

Pupils in grades 1 to 12, said Iverson, are now grouped pretty much in accordance with their fairly numerous variations in the achievement records, which encourages of study. Film strips are being used often in classroom work, he stated, and courses in mathematics and English have been revised and improved.

Iverson also issued a warning that a considerable number of questionable trade and vocational schools are operating in Minnesota and he advised parents to look into their records before students enroll in them.

Dr. O. D. Beich, chairman of a committee in charge of the annual Lions club ladies night party, stated that the date has been set at Wednesday, Dec. 2.

Cranberries Being Checked for Danger from Contamination

Federal and state authorities this week were checking Minnesota wholesalers cranberry stocks following a federal government warning that some Oregon and Washington berries may be contaminated by a possible cancer producing agent.

Two University of Wisconsin scientists said, however, that the weed killer, believed to leave a cancer producing residue, was not used on the 1959 Wisconsin cranberry crop produced for public consumption.

Most of the cranberries sold in Minnesota are produced in Wisconsin or in Massachusetts and New Jersey.

Dr. Malcolm Dana and Dr. George Klingbeil said in Madison that if any of the weed killer was used in Wisconsin it was applied only on berries grown after those destined for public markets were harvested.

Klingbeil, who is also secretary of the Wisconsin State Cranberry Growers association, said the weed killer had been used in some tests, but that the berries had been destroyed.

Henry J. Hoffman, chief chemist of the Minnesota department of agriculture, said tests on berries in Minneapolis will be made by state inspectors and also by the federal food and drug administration district office in Minneapolis.

Northern State to Help Santa Claus

To Mail Christmas Letters from Santa Claus, Indiana

Santa Claus will have a new helper in the Thief River Falls area this year — the Northern State Bank.

This year the bank is offering a special service to its customers and the community—a selection of Christmas letters written and signed by Santa Claus which may be addressed to any child and mailed in the special mail box in the bank lobby.

Letters mailed in the box are transported to the town of Santa Claus, Ind., where they are postmarked and mailed directly to the child with the envelope bearing the renowned Santa Claus postmark.

The tiny hamlet of Santa Claus in Indiana, nestled in the southern hills, has less than 50 year-round inhabitants but it is the hub of frenzied activity during this season of the year. The storybook village, dedicated to the children of the world, is literally "snowed under" with mail. This holiday season, some 5-million pieces of mail will pass through the tiny postoffice bearing the official Santa Claus postmark.

Highlanding 4-H Club Institutes Achievement Plan

A 4-H achievement program over a period of several years by the Highlanding club, is being offered for study to other clubs.

According to Milton Leiran, roving reporter for the Pennington county 4-H leaders' council, the program seems to stimulate greater activity on the part of club members. At least three other county groups have also adopted achievement programs.

The Highlanding 4-H club held an achievement program as a part of its regular meeting Oct. 22, using a point system which has worked satisfactorily. Points are given ranging from five for junior leadership and six for radio speaking to one point for attendance, project talks and other activities. A greater number of points are given for various activities at county and state fairs and winter shows, Dairy Day, Achievement Day, dress revue and demonstrations.

At the close of the year, points are added with members receiving awards according to total points earned. Useful awards of merchandise such as tools, kitchen utensils and sweaters are made rather than pins or cups.

Public Opinion

An Open Letter to the Teachers of Our Community

Since this is American Education Week we felt it would be an appropriate time to express our appreciation of the things you are doing for our children and our community.

The devotion that you people have shown to our children is something for which we are grateful. We know that while they are on the whole likeable youngsters, there are times when they are decidedly the opposite. Your patience, firmness and understanding of these young people in your care go many times beyond the bounds of duty. We have seen and are grateful for the way that you work to know them, not just at their lessons but their interests and needs as well.

If once in a while, a parent protests your teaching methods, remember that there are many, many of us who say to our children "what the teacher says, goes".

We are glad, too, that you take an interest in our community, participate in the various activities and serve on committees, helping in many different ways.

We hope that you will feel that Thief River Falls is a good place to live and teach. We know it is a better place because you are here.

CANDID COMMENT

As I write this my chair faces the Times' front window through which a bright sun is beaming one of the few times this fall. It is a cheery scene I observe, in one sense of the matter.

But there's no warmth to the sun's rays, here two weeks before Thanksgiving, 1959. The weather outside reminds one that fuel will come pretty high for the season, we're apparently in for a long winter. What will some families have to do without, to pay for heat?

I hope that, during one of my more morbid moments, to address a few lines to the people involved in the steel strike, now under a Taft-Hartley injunction.

Gentlemen:

I write to you, both labor and management, to remind you that your problem is not wholly your own; that all the people in the country are affected by whatever is the outcome of your quarrel.

You both are very much concerned with your own tiny little worlds. But, we on the outside ... because we who don't share in steel management, or are not protected by a union, are the ones who will pay. We are at your mercy.

Farmers, unorganized labor, hard-pressed white-collar workers and small businesses will suffer because we all know higher prices inevitably follow a steel strike.

You take us folks up here in northwest Minnesota, for instance. Very few of us are getting $3.11 an hour, the average wages you were getting before you struck. But, our living costs are at least as high as yours, while our wages are only about half of yours as a rule.

I don't know a soul, personally, that shares the big dividends the steel companies announce every year, (after crying for months previously that their profits are down, that labor costs are driving them into the red.) We use large quantities of salt in swallowing the propaganda both of you dish out ...

We up here do know that it takes about two hours of our labor to pay for the fruits of one hour of manufacturing labor. Inflation works only one way up here; we get the price increases but we don't get the "cheap" money that causes them.

We're paying depression dollars for inflation goods, at about the rate of two for one. Pretty soon we'll be out of dollars. Then where will you be? Perhaps you have noticed that we don't buy much in the way of farm machinery these days. Can't you guess why?

Wheat is selling here for considerably less than $2 a bushel. If the price of wheat was pegged according to your hourly wage it would be over $3. The same holds true for the return on the stockholders' dollars.

How many steel farm machines do you expect farmers to buy with such an unbalance in the market place? Wouldn't it be better to lower the price and sell more steel so we can all share "prosperity?"

Your living costs are about the same as ours, perhaps less, if the truth were brought out. I know for a fact you're paying about four cents a gallon less for gasoline, and because your winters are shorter and less severe, you don't buy as much heating fuel —and what you do buy costs less. It doesn't have to be hauled as far. Food and clothing prices don't vary a lot over the country.

The squeeze we're all in up here is more serious than you think. There isn't work for all of us in the steel mills — and after we pay our living expenses we find there's nothing left with which to invest in steel shares. Our dollars buy less and less of the goods you produce.

We don't have much industry up here so we're up against a lack of opportunity that causes our bright young men to seek a living elsewhere. They move to the larger cities because farm prices and small-town wages remain about the same—at rock bottom.

Consequently, our population is fairly steady. If there was more opportunity our young people would stay on the farms and in the small towns—and the population gain would create a bigger market for you. Both labor and management would profit from it.

But, you both insist on killing the goose that laid the golden egg. This simply cannot go on because eventually the inequality between your income and ours is going to catch up with you.

Our living conditions might be low, but yours certainly could come down. Us folks up here in the brush think a little leveling-off might be a good thing. At ... rural areas get ... well during a depression whether there's a lot of money in circulation or not.

Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson

Early-Season Averages

In spite of the fact that Al Brunelle's Family Bowl alleys were given a re-surfacing this summer, and are what could be termed "tight," and that the pins are new and "heavy," the bowlers of the men's bowling association are piling up commendable averages.

For instance, in the Service and National league bowling on Monday night, some of the averages are tops. Gene Leslie, of the baseball Thieves in the Service league, has a mark of 183 for 27 games; and Del Harbott, of the Grain Belts, has a 181 for 45 games. Bob Pahlen of Joppru's in the National loop, has a 184 average in 26 games; and Millard Peterson has a 161 in 21 games.

The high-scoring on Tuesday night Business league finds Wally DuChamp of the Hamm's rolling at a 190-pin mark in 26 games. John Jaranson of the league-leading Elks Club has a 184-pin average in 27 games. The American league, also a Tuesday night circuit, has Roy Lee of the Lee Plumbing, with a 175-pin average in 15 games, the leader. Warren Larson, in 21 games with the Ranum Construction squad, has a 170-pin average.

Thursday night's Commercial league bowling finds Del Harbott of the Northwest Beverage rolling at 184-pin clip in 9 games. Am Wysoski of the Northern Chevrolet has 181 pin mark in 12 games. And John (Snort) Langseth of the Northwest Beverage has 172 pin average in 24 games. In the Northern league bowling, Jerry Engh, with a 173 pin average in 6 games, and who bowls for the Parkins Corner Drug, holds top place, with Charles Etterman of the Dacotah Paper and J. Noel of Dodd's Drugs having 166 pin marks.

The Friday night City League bowling averages are paced by a pair of Eagles. Chuck Krause, in 18 games, has a 181-pin average; and Emil Dostal, in 24 games, has a 170 pin mark.

First Call for Basketball

Included in the group of boys that reported to coach Hartley Story and his assistant Joe Mrkonich on Monday afternoon for the opening practice session of Prowler basketball were eight boys who were on last season's twelve player district tournament squad. These boys are Ron Solheim, Ronnie Hanson, Bob Pearson, Steve Embury, Dave Hauswirth, Gerry Rolland, Gary Anderson, and Eddie Lietzow.

Story, in his first season here, will have three weeks in which to pick a starting lineup for the Prowler schedule-opener, which will be against the Red Lake Falls Eagles at Red Lake Falls on Tuesday, Dec. 1.

Last spring's graduation removed four players — Phil Hanson, Lynn Nicholson, Mickey Hanson, and Stan Torgerson — from the Prowler squad, and three of these boys, Phil and Mickey Hanson, and Lynn Nicholson, were regulars. This trio will be difficult to replace, as Phil and Mickey were heavy scorers, and Lynn was a strong playmaker and defensive standout.

During last season's 19-game schedule the Prowlers scored a total of 1063 points (not too far off the school record of 1292 points set by the Prowlers of 1956-1957) and of this total Phil Hanson accounted for 327 points, Mickey Hanson, with the majority of his shots from the outside, piled up 237 points, and Nicholson scored 155 points, for a three man aggregate of 719 points.

Judging by the opening practice session, this season's Prowler squad, led by the six-foot seven inch Ronnie Hanson, a junior, the locals will be a lanky outfit. That is, the forward line will have adequate height for rebounding work off the boards.

Getting Better

The 1959 Minnesota deer hunting season, when it comes to a close at sundown on Sunday will be, according to the information we have been receiving, rated as one of the state's better seasons.

Herb Dill, superintendent of the Mud Lake game refuge, is busy compiling the figures of the deer "take" in the refuge during the five-day season that closed on Wednesday evening. There were 75 deer reported out on Saturday, and a total of 107 at the close of the opening weekend of hunting. Dill ventures the guess that approximately 200 deer will have been taken out of the refuge this season. This number should leave the refuge herd at about 600, the figure that last winter's census revealed.

The best hunt that has been reported to us was that of Charlie Smith and his party. Charlie along with his younger son Daryl, and Dave Hanson, Larry Gilbertson, and Emil Berglund, was hunting north of Grygla. The party left their hunting shanty at 7 o'clock, and after making one drive they had filled their five-deer limit, and were back in camp at 9:30 a.m. The "high gun" of the party was Dave Hanson.

The fourteen-man Skomedal-Rupprecht party, hunting the area south of Rapid river, had, as of Tuesday evening, eleven deer hanging like Christmas tree ornaments off the branches of a giant spruce on their camp site. We were in the camp on Tuesday afternoon and enjoyed a lunch prepared by Al Christofferson, who in addition to being in charge of the camp's culinary department, is a sturdy driver when the party makes their gruelling drives through the heavy timber and tamarac swamps. Al had the unusual experience Monday afternoon of bagging his deer while enroute to Thief River Falls for a Boy Scout meeting. Driving a logging camp trail, at about 3:30 in the afternoon, the deer was spied, and hurriedly loading his rifle and getting off a well-placed shot Al had his tag filled.

Why let excess weight shorten your life... ruin your appearance... hamper your success and happiness?

REXALL SLIM-PAC

You simply chew a piece of pleasant-tasting Slim-Pac gum 15 to 20 minutes before each meal... your appetite is safely reduced... you're satisfied with less food, and ugly, dangerous pounds begin to melt away.

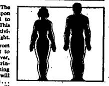
SLIM-PAC DISPENSER contains • appetite-reducing gum, and • multi-vitamin capsule, in handy purse-size packets plus the flexible diet plan

14-day supply $3.98

YOUR APPETITE IS ALL THAT STANDS BETWEEN YOU AND NORMAL WEIGHT... AND SLIM-PAC SAFELY REDUCES IT

Slim-Pac contains a harmless but effective appetite depressant that will curb hunger as your appetite adjusts to new eating habits. You've probably been overeating for a long time, filling your stomach with extra, unneeded food. If so, your appetite has probably become adjusted to overeating. It no longer tells you when you've had enough calories, when to stop eating.

With SLIM-PAC you will easily and quickly accustom yourself to eating less than your body requires. This "undereating" won't hurt you a bit. Your body will simply draw the food energy it needs from excess body fat—and YOU WILL BEGIN TO LOSE WEIGHT.



LOSE AS MUCH OR AS LITTLE AS YOU WANT. YOU CHOOSE THE PLAN BEST SUITED TO YOU.

Your wisest diet will deny only enough food to allow a weekly weight loss of 2 to 3 pounds. The correct diet for you depends upon how many calories you need to perform your daily routine. This varies according to age, sex, activities, height and actual overweight.

You get 3 suggested diets from which to choose, and you get to eat the foods you like. However, you should never decide on a stringent diet without first consulting your doctor. Slim-Pac gum will safely cause you to want less... and the multi-vitamin capsule will help maintain normal energy and pep!

YOU LOSE WEIGHT WITHOUT NERVES... WITHOUT JITTERS... WITHOUT HUNGER

With the Slim-Pac gum safely curbing your appetite, the Slim-Pac multi-vitamin capsule helping to maintain your vitality and pep, and the sensible Slim-Pac diets giving you enough food for your needs, you escape the nervous, depressed, and washed-out feeling so common to extreme and unaided dieting.

It's foolish, and actually dangerous, to go through life misshapen and unattractive; short of breath, uncomfortable in our clothes, ashamed in public and miserable in private, while the success and happiness we should have slips through our pudgy fingers. SLIM-PAC makes it all so unnecessary... so safe, so easy to change. START TODAY on the life you were meant to have!

REXALL SLIM-PAC IS GUARANTEED TO GIVE SATISFACTION OR MONEY BACK

Medical discoveries have made it easier to enjoy the later years without many of the illnesses and pains that used to go with them. As each year passes, more and more people can expect to relax and enjoy their "Mellow Years". Have regular check-ups by your doctor as you approach them. And if he prescribes corrective drugs, vitamins or tonics, bring his prescription to us for dependable compounding.

"SORRY, THAT REQUIRES A PRESCRIPTION"

If we say that to you, please don't be offended. The particular drug or combination you asked for is dangerous unless properly used and requires your doctor's advice before taking. If he agrees that you need it, we will be glad to compound such a prescription according to his specifications. Special care goes into compounding every prescription presented to us.

IT'S THAT TIME OF YEAR

It seems there are two times in each year when illness is most prevalent —fall and early spring. Then our bodies must frequently adjust to sudden changes in temperature. If they are in a run-down condition or have some habitual constitutional weakness, they cannot cope with these changes and illness takes over. Enjoy good health this spring. See your doctor now before the weather changes. Just as you can depend on him to detect deficiencies and prescribe remedial medicines, so you can depend on us to fill your prescriptions promptly and accurately, to supply you with any of the health needs he may advise.

25 Minnesota Cities to Get Safety Awards

"Three out of ten vehicles in Minnesota fail to pass voluntary safety-check inspection. Thirty per cent of Minnesota's vehicles are defective and below minimum standards for safe operation on our streets and highways," Governor Orville L. Freeman said today in announcing that 25 Minnesota communities had been awarded citation for excellence in voluntary vehicle safety check programs conducted last summer.

"There were 46 communities participating in this program," the Governor said, "where 21,164 vehicles were given a safety check. Of these 6,340 were rejected for one or more defects found in the ten-point check. These were vehicles of drivers who volunteered to have cars checked in safety lanes. Past experience has shown those who know their vehicles are defective do not participate in the voluntary program. If they had, I am sure the percentage of defective vehicles would be higher."

"The lives of drivers, passengers and pedestrians are dependent upon the operation of safe vehicles," Governor Freeman said. "That is why everyone of us must keep a constant check on the condition of our cars, either voluntarily or in other ways. The results of these voluntary checks clearly point out the need for a state-wide program where all cars and trucks are required to have regular mechanical inspections so the defective, dangerous vehicles would be removed from the highways until those deficiencies are corrected."

Communities where citations will be presented later by representatives of the Minnesota Safety Council are: Albert Lea, Austin, Chaska, Chisholm, Duluth, Fairmont, Fergus Falls, Glencoe, Hastings, Hibbing, Jackson, Montevideo, New Ulm, Northfield, Norwood, Owatonna, Red Wing, Richfield, St. Cloud, Silver Bay, Waconia, Watertown, Winona and Young America; and the county of Carver.

The voluntary safety check program is sponsored nationally by the Inter-Industry Highway Safety Committee and Look Magazine. The Minnesota Safety Council and local organizations were sponsors in Minnesota, with Harry A. Sieben, state highway safety director, the state coordinator and Donald Clough, St. Cloud, state chairman.

Rear and front lights were most often found defective with over 10 per cent of the vehicles rejected for these items. Defective tires and brakes were found on over five per cent of the vehicles checked. Other items of the ten-point check were steering, exhaust, glass, windshield wipers, rear view mirror and horn.

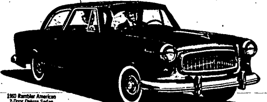
Cold War for State Motorists Ahead

Highway Safety Director Warns of Winter Hazards

Minnesota motorists had better gird themselves for another "cold war" in the months ahead, Harry A. Sieben, state highway safety director, warned today.

"The first skirmishes in the annual battle of drivers against the elements have been met," he declared. "The heavy battles are ahead, and the victors will be those car owners who are smart enough to be prepared and skillful enough in their driving to outwit Old Man Winter."



The state safety director urged motorists to "make sure now that your vehicle is prepared for the severe tests that Minnesota winter with its snow and ice can create overnight. Weather warnings and safety warnings have been issued before, so this is another reminder to have your car serviced by a reliable expert so that it is dependable."

He emphasized that "prevention maintenance pays off handsomely in any season, but particularly during the winter months." Maintenance should include anti-freeze, checking batteries, heaters, wipers, brakes and tires.

"With your car in shape and properly equipped, the battle of winter is half-won," Sieben concluded. "The rest of the battle will depend largely on careful attitudes and skill in driving under the variety of weather and road conditions which will prevail during the coming cold season."

Many Seek to Join '60 Conservation Reserve Program

Priority System to Be Used in Determining Contracts to Be Accepted

Farmers over the nation have applied to place almost twice as much land in the 1960 Conservation Reserve of the Soil Bank as the amount that can be accepted with the funds available, according to a preliminary national report received at the Marshall county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office.

The initial figures indicate that nearly 103,000 applications have been filed to place a total of 9.6 million acres in the reserve. While present indications are that somewhat more than the original national goal of 55,100,000 acres can be placed under contract, it will not be possible to accept all of the acreage offered.

This means, according to Edward A. Johnson, chairman of the Marshall county ASC committee, that the "best buy" priority system previously announced will be used in states and counties to determine which applicants can be offered contracts. The general order of acceptance will be on the basis of offers at the lowest percentage of the basic per-acre rate established for the farm.

The Department of Agriculture also announced that a total of approximately 22.4 million acres have been placed in the Conservation Reserve under the 1956-1959 programs. Approximately 14.7 million of this is in whole-farm contracts, under which all the cropland on the farm is retired from production.

The Conservation Reserve of the Soil Bank is a voluntary production adjustment program under which farmers sign contracts to withdraw cropland from production for a period of years and devote the land to grass or trees or to water or wild-life conservation. The government agrees to share the cost of establishing the conservation use and to make annual payments on the designated land for the contract period.

"Any government, like any family, can for a year spend a little more than it earns. But you and I know that a continuance of that habit means the poorhouse." —F. D. Roosevelt, 1932

Just As Inflationary

A Senate-House economic staff study has concluded that price increases for steel products in the postwar period were due primarily to wage increases and exerted a "strongly inflationary" impact on the nation's economy.

Such a conclusion is reasonable. The increased cost of steel was a factor in the cost of many manufactured products, and the cut in the buying power of the dollar was much deeper than it would have been if the effect had been limited to the additional dollars required to buy steel alone.

The study that is being made for the Senate-House committee is not limited to the steel industry. It is being conducted for the purpose of determining all of the causes of inflation, and the report could serve a very useful purpose.

It is to be hoped that the study will scrutinize carefully the inflationary effects of government spending and other government fiscal policies. The biggest payroll in the country is the payroll for public employees. Any across-the-board increase in this payroll would add up to an impressive total of increased costs, considering the public employee payrolls at all levels, state, federal and local.

Such an item of increased cost would not be reflected directly in the cost of a particular commodity, such as a pay increase for the steel industry. But the added cost would nevertheless be reflected in higher prices for all commodities for which higher taxes would become a factor in the cost of manufacturing or selling.

The fact that most of the taxes on business and industry become a part of the cost of operating, and are added to the prices charged for goods and services is not generally recognized. This is not true for agriculture, most of the products of which are sold in an auction market. Individuals, including farmers, have little opportunity to shift the burden of taxation. They must absorb it.

So anything that adds to government costs, to be paid by dollars collected directly or indirectly by taxation, becomes a burden mainly for those who pay taxes as individuals. Taking dollars from one group of individuals and giving them to another group would not in itself be inflationary. But to the extent that increased taxation does increase the cost of goods and services, government wage and salary increases are just as inflationary as higher wage scales in the steel industry.

Khrushchev Talks Peace

Writers and commentators are not finding fault with the statements made by Premier Nikita Khrushchev to the Supreme Soviet last week. He was speaking to his own people and to the people of his Communist world. He stressed the need for peaceful coexistence and a relaxing of tensions. It was not a sabre-rattling talk and that is good.

His talk was a preliminary to the summit meeting he looks forward to, and he was speaking to the people of the free world as well as to his own. Under the circumstances it may be assumed that he was striving to make a good impression both at home and abroad.

Khrushchev is speaking differently now than he did a few years ago. That may not mean that he is thinking differently, however, nor does it mean necessarily that he has given up his ideas of world conquest. But he may have reached a different conclusion, or at least moderated some of his old ideas.

The Soviet leader is no longer a young man and he no doubt is aware of the fact that he is approaching the end of his career. It is not unreasonable therefore to ascribe to him a sincere desire for peace in his time. As one who has a choice between a remote possibility for a successful war or a probability of failure and destruction, he could very well decide that peace is preferable.

But even if peace in his time is Khrushchev's sincere wish, it may not be for him to make the decision. His government is a dictatorship, but not necessarily a one-man dictatorship. There no doubt are men in the Kremlin who are waiting for Khrushchev to die. Perhaps they are waiting impatiently.

Khrushchev may not be the man we will be dealing with when the important decisions are made.

Paramount Concern

Railroad management and labor are already engaged in a wordy battle over working rules. They now are saying mean things about each other and if we were to believe all of the charges and counter charges, then the outlook for a peaceful solution to their problems would be dim indeed.

This is an argument that becomes difficult in a rail town such as ours, where we have friends, and interests, on both sides of the argument. This argument, like all arguments, no doubt does have two sides.

But we should keep in mind that the issues are not going to be resolved here at the local level. The negotiations will be carried on at some distant point and our information on the developments will be limited to the news releases and the quoted opinons of those who participate in the top-level talks.

Our hope is that the final settlement of the problems involved will be in the best interests of the industry itself, its employees, and the public. Maybe that is asking a lot, but that certainly should be the objective of those who direct the negotiations. It would mean some give as well as some take, and possibly an entirely new approach to industry control by the government.

Maybe it is unfortunate that the government itself cannot be brought into the action to justify the contribution its agencies have made to the creation of the problems with which the railroads are now confronted.

Most observers will agree, we think, that the railroads have been handicapped in their struggles with competitive forms of transportation by too much restrictive regulation. In this approach to the problems, perhaps railroad management and labor should join hands in a fight against a common enemy.

Maybe management should give more thought to the possibility that its employees could be the industry's best friend. And maybe labor should give more thought to the fact that the industry of which it is an important part, can survive and make progress only as it becomes more efficient. And maybe the public should be more conscious of the fact that railroads are basic in our transportation system; that we cannot move the enormous tonnage of freight that our economy requires, on the highways or by the flyways or by pipeline or barge.

There was a time when the railroads enjoyed a virtual monopoly in the transportation field, and at that time they were guilty of sins of both commission and omission. They invited the regulation that now serves as an added handicap in their struggle for survival and, shall we say, the right to provide an essential service.

This is a problem in which the industry, its employees and the public, have a common interest, and this common interest should be the paramount concern in the present struggle between railroad labor and management.

Canada Argues

Canadians are arguing unhappily among themselves about the purchase by their government of the old American embassy in London. The building, erected in 1937, will be adequate for all of the Canadian offices now scattered around the city. The purchase price was $4,500,000, considerably less than it would cost to build new quarters. Most of the criticism seems to be over the fact that it is an American "discard."

All of which is understandable, but if the government had not availed itself of an opportunity to pick up a bargain there probably would have been criticism too, and criticism for which there probably would have been greater justification. It is encouraging to know that there are governments that still are interested in saving a million dollars.

A small town doctor is said to have called the bluff of a mail order schemer and in return for a box of Christmas cards which he received thru the mail with a follow-up letter asking for a dollar, he sent a box of pills, demanding two dollars for them as they were worth a dollar more than the cards. A few days later he received a short letter from the company stating they had stricken his name from their mailing list. You need not send a dollar nor return the cards when unordered merchandise is sent you. Just lay it aside so that if the sender should ever call he could pick it up. —Sleepy Eye Herald Dispatch.

A recently organized non-profit missionary organization know as STEER, Inc., will sponsor a Missionary Round-up at Mar-Bel hall in Grygla Monday, Nov. 16, at 8 p.m. The key to the missionary farm program of Steer, Inc., is to get donors to contribute money for the purchase of feeder stock calves and farmers to volunteer to give care and feed to the calves until ready for market. When the steer is marketed the initial purchase price is reinvested in another feeder calf to start the cycle all over again, the gain being sent to the designated mission society. The aim is to help worthy missionary groups carry out their missionary obligations. Featured at the local rally in addition to Rev. Folden, who is field director, will be Rev. Arthur Knowles, public relations director of the Far East Broadcasting company, a Christian radio concern dedicated to the spread of the gospel in the Orient, and Rev. Phil Masters, missionary candidate to Netherlands New Guinea with region's beyond missionary union.

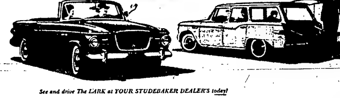
WHAT DOES THE LARK HAVE THAT THE OTHERS DO NOT?

IT HAS SIX BODY STYLES: New convertible, new 4-door and 2-door station wagon, hardtop, 4-door and 2-door sedan! Seven sophisticated colors. Handsome interiors appointed in distinctive pleated vinyls or cloths. Nobody else has them. Why settle for less?

IT HAS A POWERFUL, THRIFTY V-8 OR SUPER ECONOMICAL "6": The Lark V-8 topped all other eights in last year's Mobilgas Economy Run. Have your cake and eat it, too. The V-8 Lark costs just a little more than the "6") offers all the advantages of new dimension cars plus potent performance matched to economy. The "six" offers spirited performance with greater fuel economy. Why be limited? Choose with The Lark! (Important! The Lark couples safety with power...V-8 brakes are biggest in field.)



IT HAS CHOICE OF THREE TERRIFIC TRANSMISSIONS: Automatic, three-speed stick shift, three-speed stick with overdrive. Lark automatic transmission has a full range of speeds. Lark three-speed synchromesh is smooth, and, with overdrive, the engine loafs at cruising speed, cuts your gas bills even more. Which one suits you best? The Lark offers this choice—plus a selection of 7 axle ratios—the others do not!

IT HAS MANY UNUSUAL FEATURES: Reclining seats that make into beds, front seat headrests, hillholder, Twin Traction (for driving through snow, sand, ice or mud), air conditioning, 4-barrel carburetor and dual exhausts...many, many more. None of the others have this wide variety of options from which to choose.

IT HAS PROVEN PERFORMANCE WITHOUT RECOURSE TO EXPERIMENTAL RUNS: 150,000 Lark owners have driven a total of over 750 million miles under every conceivable road and weather condition. Result is: no "bugs" to iron out, no "hidden" mechanical faults...no problems for new owners. Dealers and service men everywhere know The Lark. Studebaker-Packard corporate records clearly show that Lark service and maintenance costs are one third of the automobile industry average. How can you go wrong on that?

Trust Funds in State Exceed $300,000,000

The total of Minnesota's permanent trust funds passed the 300 million dollar mark on Oct 31, State Treasurer Val Bjornson announced Monday.

The $300,000,000 total on that date was $25,000,000 higher than the total on Oct. 31, 1958. Of the total, $271,282,64 in the permanent university fund, $27,247,360.26 in the swamp land fund and $604,960 in the internal improvement land fund.

Only interest earned by the funds may be spent, Bjornson said, at a rate of more than six million dollars a year, and the money from the permanent school fund is allotted to grade and high school districts. Last year this amounted to $5,400,000.

Members of the state investment board are directed by law to invest funds directly in support operations of the University of Minnesota; revenue from swamp land fund interest is divided equally between public schools and the university; and revenue from internal improvement land fund interest goes into the county state aid highway fund.

The permanent trust fund total is the largest in the nation, topped only by the 750 million dollars in Texas.

Bjornson explained that rate of growth of the trust funds was slowed by adoption of Amendment No. 2 in 1956, which permits additional expenditure for the education of iron ore tax yields which formerly became a part of the permanent trust funds. The treasurer said that iron ore has accounted for 250 million dollars of the trust fund total.

Wool Promotion Program to Go on

Deductions to Be Made from Incentive Payments

A new three-year agreement program for promoting the industry for a program to promote increased use of wool and mohair was announced by the national Wool Growers Association. The agreement is used exclusively for the American Wool Growers Association.

The program will be financed by deductions from incentive payments earned by producers in the annual wool program. Under terms of the agreement, deductions will be made at the rate of 4.5 cents per pound for the 1959 marketing year (April 1, 1959 through March 31, 1960) at the rate of one cent per pound of lamb, wool and mohair sold from any shorn lamb pool of more than 5,000 pounds.

ONE GREAT CERTAINTY

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Day	Book	Chapter	Verses
Sunday	Ecclesiastes	6	1-8
Monday	Psalms	102	25-28
Tuesday	Daniel	2	20-23
Wednesday	Hebrews	1	8-12
Thursday	Hebrews	13	1-8
Friday	Psalms	115	16-18
Saturday	Psalms	1	1-6

We go back to the old homestead, the old home town. Perhaps we have long anticipated that visit, but now we find that the changes are so disillusioning that we don't care whether we ever return. We meet a friend of years gone by and hardly recognize him. He too has changed. We compare the face reflected from our mirror with old photographs and realize that, without knowing it, we have changed. We try to use a map of yester-year only to discover that it is out of date.

We shudder a little as we wonder if there is anything that remains the same.

The Church tells us that there is. Through the centuries it is the one institution which points to the unchanging God, "the same yesterday, today, and forever." Worship customs may differ, but every Christian congregation seeks to lead men to the one great Certainty, which is God. That is why you will want to start attending church regularly. Here is peace. Here is assurance.

Your immediate acceptance of our new NORDICA COTTAGE CHEESE proves that we were justified in believing that the folks of this area would appreciate the finer texture and full flavor of cottage cheese made to "olde country" standards. A great deal of research and thousands of dollars invested in new stainless steel equipment made this great cottage cheese possible. You have agreed with us that it captures the essence of the "olde country goodness" as found in the high meadows of Norway. Thanks again for proving to us that you know the best when you taste it . . . and the best is NORDICA COTTAGE CHEESE!

'59 State Tax Levy Hits New All-time Pe

Non-homestead l Set at 14.32 Mills Was 12.42 Last Y

Minn. Historical Society Historical Building Zone 1

The 1959 state rate to be on all property was fixed F at 14.32 mills, the highest in Minnesota's history.

This compares with the 1958 rate of 12.42 mills. Minnesota's highest previous levy was 13.57 mills in 1935.

State Auditor Stafford King, in accordance with state law, certified the state rate on all property, including real and personal, to all county auditors. Final assessments will include county and local valuations.

The total rate to be paid by Thief River Falls property owners will not be available until the city council has adopted its levy for municipal purposes.

The state rate on homestead property was set at 8.10 mills. This compares with 5.90 mills in 1958. One mill levied in 1959, collectible in 1960, will raise $1,959,177. Last year one mill raised $1,962,574.

The total levy, King said, will raise approximately 24 million dollars, or five million more than the 1958 rate.

Biggest factor in the increase is the 52-million-dollar state building program passed by the 1959 legislature. The program is spread over a 20-year period, which means that $2,600,000 must be raised this year. This accounts for a 2.62 mills jump.

Another major reason is the 2½-million-dollar state school building act spread over a 15-year period, to help school districts. This boosts the rate by .15 mill.

Shrinkage in the total tax base by 145 million dollars due to tax relief granted by the 1959 Legislature, means that each mill will yield about $27,000 less.

King explained that the tax relief includes elimination of the personal property tax on household goods and on grains and on grains and farmers' stocks from the state levy.

With the completion of payments for Mayo Memorial building on the University of Minnesota campus, no levy is included in 1959. A $500,000 levy was spread for ten years, ending in 1958.

Douglas Steiger and Associates Developing Huge Slide for Skiers

A winter sports recreation program initiated by Douglas Steiger, young Pennington county farmer, was started recently on the slopes of the Jos. Skala property two miles northwest of Red Lake Falls, says the Gazette of that city.

Steiger and associates started land clearing with bulldozers and were hard at it last week preparing the site for northwestern Minnesota skiers.

The project site is on the slopes of a meander of the Red Lake river and will provide skiers with one of the longest and best runs in northwestern Minnesota. Total drop is from 90 to 100 feet and will offer skiers runs up to 500 feet downhill plus a run-out distance on the flats below of several hundred feet.

Two tows are planned plus a 20x40 warming house with indoor plumbing, snack bar and relaxation room complete with fireplace.

Access to the area will be gained by driving down the slopes of the north bank of the Red Lake river near the Northern Pacific railroad bridge and then along the river for about three-quarters of a mile. The road which is partially completed, will be widened in places and more trees dozed out.

9th District GOP Is Headed by Fergus Man

Earl Williams Again Elected Chairman at Ada Convention

W. Earl Williams of Fergus Falls was reelected Ninth district Republican chairman for the ensuing two years at the district GOP convention held Friday evening at Ada.

Pennington county was represented at the meeting by Stan Mortenson, county chairman; John Keck of Goodridge, vice chairman; and David Brown, also of Goodridge, president of the Young Republican group.

Addressing the convention were Congressman Odin Langen; Ed Viehman, GOP state chairman; and George Etzell, national committeeman, who discussed the coming campaign.

Other district officers elected include Mrs. Eskil Erickson, Halstad, chairwoman; Maurice Nelson, Fosston, vice chairman; Mrs. Alfred Olson, Argyle, vice chairwoman; Mrs. Ted Peet, Wolverton, secretary; and R. S. Rice, Roseau, treasurer.

Named delegates at-large to the state executive committee were Leonard Dickinson, Bemidji; and Mrs. J. H. Herbranson, Bagley; with Gaylord Saetre, Moorhead, and Mrs. Ruth Miller, Crookston, as alternates.

Rep. Langen, in his address to the convention stated that 1960 offers ample opportunity for gains by the Republicans.

He pointed to three areas which he described as "extremely vital to the welfare of our nation and its people," and in which he said the GOP has "established and maintained a program and record which are of, by and for the people."

"Our job," he said, "is to make the people aware of this."

Langen discussed the Republican record in maintaining peace as the first of these areas. He pointed to the fact that we have been at peace since 1953 and to the improvement of American-Soviet relations as indications of Republican success in this field.

"In spite of a troubled world in many very trying points of international differences since 1953, we have remained at peace," he said.

Discussing inflation as the second of the three areas, the congressman stated, "There is no disputing the fact that the Republican Party has always been, and continues to be, the party of the sound dollar."

The third area, said Langen is the field of labor-management relations. He pointed to the steel strike and the longshoremen's walkout as present indications of the need for sound, sensible policy in this respect.

Three Structures Razed by Fire in Oslo Sunday Night

Vacant Furniture Store, Tavern and Cafe Are Destroyed by Blaze

Fire, apparently caused by defective wiring, destroyed three buildings in Oslo Sunday night, despite the efforts of the Oslo, Alvarado and Warren departments to quell the blaze, according to Art Grenlund, a member of the Oslo fire department.

The fire started about 10:45 p.m. in a vacant furniture store owned by Peter Gerszewski, Oslo fire chief. Gerszewski was upstairs in his living quarters watching television at the time and was forced to vacate the building through a side window as all other exits were blocked by the fire.

Fire from the Gerszewski building also ignited Jim's Bar to the north and Jeanne's Cafe to the south. Both were destroyed. Firemen fought the flames until shortly before 7 a.m. today.

Although they were unsuccessful in saving the three buildings they did manage to save the L. B. Hartz grocery store adjoining Jeanne's Cafe, Grenlund said.

There was no insurance on the bar, while the other two buildings were only partially insured, Grenlund said.

Farmers whose applications have been approved for either the stock-water pits or the ditching practices, and who have completed the project are asked to contact Don Lawrence of the Soil Conservation Service, because no cost-sharing can be paid by the ASC office until after the SCS has approved performance on the practice.

The double ring ceremony took place at the Gospel Tabernacle and was officiated by the fathers of the bridal couple. Preceding the ceremony Miss Lucille Melvie of Thief River Falls, friend of the bride, sang "O Promise Me" and "The Wedding Prayer" as the couple knelt at the altar. Mrs. Sander Gustafson of Hallock was at the organ, playing the nuptial music and accompanying the soloist.

Entering on the arm of her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of white bridal sileen of net and lace over taffeta. It featured a fitted bodice of lace with long pointed sleeves and a "V" neckline, edged with nylon and iridescent sequins. The bouffant skirt was accented by panels of lace at the sides and her fingertip veil fell from a crown of sequins, matching the trim of her gown. She carried a bouquet of autumn roses with a cascade of white carnations.

Jennie Riveness, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, followed by Mrs. Roy Johnson, sister of the bridegroom, as bridesmaid. They were attired in identical street length dresses of hammered gold Italian silk, featuring fitted bodices, scoop necklines and three-quarter length sleeves. Jeweled pin sets accented the bodices, they were gifts of the bride and their full gathered skirts were topped with self material shirred cummerbunds with a large flat bow in the back. Their headbands matched their dresses and they carried bouquets of autumn roses and feathered yellow carnations.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Stanley Ost, of Minneapolis, as best man with the bride's brother, Paul Riveness, as groomsman. Ushers were Roy Johnson of Warren, brother-in-law of the bridegroom and Leonard Thompson of Karlstad. All gentlemen of the bridal party wore dark suits with white carnation boutonnieres.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlors for relatives and friends. A three-tiered wedding cake, topped with a cluster of yellow roses, centered the bridal table. Mrs. I. R. Geving of Thief River Falls cut and served the cake while Mrs. Pauline Ptacek, also of Thief River Falls, poured. Miss Grace Ost, sister of the bridegroom, was at the guest book with Kathryn Lundstrom of Strandquist and Marie and Audrey Kelven of Thief River Falls at the gift table.

Don L. Olson, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce legislative affairs committee, reported that a meeting was held Thursday, Nov. 12, with James Schill, regional executive of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, who outlined the action course for practical politics.

The course will consist of nine weekly breakfast meetings where interested people will learn the mechanical workings of the two-party system.

In discussing the training course, Mr. Schill stated that it would be non-partisan in nature, and that in preparing this course the U.S. Chamber had close assistance from the national offices of both the Democratic and Republican parties.

These two parties provided the U.S. Chamber with a great deal of information concerning the operations and policies and procedures of each party. The information was received by a committee of personnel directors from several large firms which specialize in preparing short courses for their employees.

The action course in practical politics consists of eight pamphlets demonstrating the ability of the personnel directors to edit down the material to practical procedure length.

Person, including women's organizations, who wish to participate in this course may contact the Chamber of Commerce at MU 1-3720. The cost of the course will be $6.00, which will cover the cost of the pamphlets and each group will be limited to 15 persons.

Mr. Olson wishes to emphasize that this is not a training course in the normal sense of the word, but rather a series of open, informative discussions. The target for the first course to commence is November 25.

The various members of the EMV committee will tell of their phases of the work being planned. The climax of these preparations and meetings will be reached on Loyalty Sunday, November 29, when all the members of the church will be visited.

Minnesota 4-H Girl Leaves for India

Winnebago Girl Is One of Eight 4-H Club Delegates

When Patricia Bottomley, 19, Winnebago, left the Twin Cities Sunday morning she was on the first leg of a journey to New Delhi, India, where for two months she will represent rural youth of America at the First World Agriculture Fair.

The Minnesota girl and seven other top-ranking 4-H members were chosen from among more than 2¼ million 4-H'ers in the nation to represent rural youth of America at the fair. All of the eight young people have been 4-H members eight years or more, are 19 or 20 years of age, and all are college students. Miss Bottomley has completed her freshman year at the University of Minnesota.

Miss Bottomley lives on a 240-acre farm with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Bottomley. One of her most successful 4-H projects has been sheep. She owns her own flock, blocks her own lambs, has a long record of show ring experience.

Among the activities of the 4-H members at the India Fair will be to show and tell about their farm, home, community and other projects and the part youth can play in improving family living and furthering the economic development of agricultural resources. They will also entertain with vocal and instrumental music and with American folk dances.

The United States exhibit at the fair will have extensive displays and demonstrations showing its newest techniques in agricultural research, production and marketing.

GOING AWAY PARTY

By Donnis Thompson

I PUSHED into the kitchen just in time to hear Joe say, lightly, teasingly, "How 'bout you and me getting married and you coming with me?"

I laughed, sat my tray down, and started to replenish it. "So this is what the guest of honor is doing—getting the girls in a corner and tempting them with tales of the Yukon." I winked at Allie. "Has he mentioned long, cozy evenings in front of the fire yet?"

Allie smiled complacently. "He has just finished with dancing on the barroom counter. We've covered the spring break-up, the salmon run, and not a word about gold, the direction in which my interest lies."

"Nice sentimentality." I turned to Joe. "What do you mean letting your send-off party drink themselves silly without you in there to watch?"

"Okay, I'll probably be just a blur to them, but I'll go back in." He turned back to Alice and he grinned that flashingly white, lop-sided smile of his. "Remember, Allie, if you change your mind, and decide you can use a good man, the plane leaves at 6:30."

I waved airily over my shoulder. "Oh, she'll be there." I looked at Allie. "Good old Joe, isn't he a card?"

Anything for a laugh. We'll sure miss him in the gang. Do you suppose he ever had a serious thought in his life?" Allie picked up some relishes and headed for the other room. I went ahead stacking up my tray. That was my bunch: easygoing, fun.

Three trays and a dozen corny songs later, Joe made his rounds, elaborately saying his goodbyes. Everything was very gay and funny.

He slapped a careless arm around Allie's shoulders. "Plenty of room on the plane. Better change your mind and come with me." The gang really whooped this little tidbit up and Joe continued on his rounds. Since I was near the hall, I shook hands with him last. "Well, fella', when it's 60 below, think of our warm hearts and soft heads. 'Bye, Funnyboy."

As he grinned and said, "Sure, sure, sure," it struck me he wasn't putting much meaning in it. He waved a last goodbye to everyone in general and I saw his eyes slide over to Allie, but her back was already turned. That was the code of our living: never a backward glance. But as Joe turned to the hall past me, he wasn't grinning and I saw a look of pain cross his usually sunny countenance. His eyes looked cloudy and dogged. He didn't even see me as he brushed out hurriedly.

But, shrugging, I turned back into the blue haze of the crowd. They were paying their last respects in their own way. "Really a character. Never a dull moment around him. We should warn the North he's coming."

I went in the kitchen hunting Allie. Would she be surprised when I told her! I threw my arm around her shoulders in the casual way we had. "Wait 'til I tell you, Allie, about Joe—" She whirled around and buried her head against my shoulder and sobbed.

Oh, no, not Allie, too! What had been going on in our funny, easy-going, familiar crowd? All of our modern ideals and aspirations going the way of Adam and Eve. Was everyone in the whole darn bunch double-talking? I sighed, kissed Allie lightly on the nose and wiped at a few of the tears streaking her face. "Wash your face, Sweetie, I have something to tell you, but you'd better hurry, you have to catch a 6:30 plane."

Bank Debits Here for October $9,217,000 up 3 Pct. over October, 1958

Artificial Breeding In Future for Hogs

Artificial breeding may in the future be as commonplace in hog production as it is now in dairying.

University of Minnesota scientists say technical aspects of the procedure are now being refined. It's only a matter of time until it becomes widespread.

The technique is being studied cooperatively by two University departments — dairy husbandry and animal husbandry. Principal researchers are E. F. Graham, dairy physiologist, and R. J. Meade, livestock scientist.

As a physiologist, Graham is concerned with reproduction research on several classes of farm livestock — cattle, hogs and sheep. His earlier research on artificial breeding in dairy cattle provides important background for adapting the method to swine.

A recent trip to Japan by Graham led to the latest and most encouraging development in the research. He studied swine semen collection methods there and found them effective enough for general use.

Still to be worked out are semen storage, processing and freezing methods.

Artificial breeding could have a host of advantages to the swine industry. Each boar could service up to 26 times as many females per year as is now possible. Boars could be used 12 months per year instead of 6. And topnotch sires would be more readily available to small breeders.

As a result, more farmers could produce good meat-type hogs.

As in dairy breeders' associations, artificial breeding in swine would probably mean keeping a number of boars in one location. Semen would be collected and distributed to area technicians for insemination.

There would be other advantages, too. Swine testing stations would become more important. Farmers would get more information on breeding. Fewer sires would be needed and larger percentage could be "progeny-tested"—meaning getting records on their offspring. If semen could be frozen for a long time, it would be possible to test a boar and continue using the semen for several years. That isn't possible now, because of the relatively short service life of boars.

REV. ROBERT H. HARPER

AT THE WHEEL

DRIVING along Jackson Avenue in New Orleans, I stopped for a red light at Magazine, and saw a narrowly-averted accident. The driver ahead of me tried to make it across on the yellow light and the man coming down Magazine also tried to make it across on the caution light. With a great screeching of brakes, they succeeded in stopping before smashing up. Then each one angrily blamed and berated the other. In fact, each man was wrong. And the few seconds they expected to gain might have been lost with the loss of all earthly time for them.

The streets and the highways have become like courses crowded with racing locomotives. But the most of railway men, in the most of cases, obey the rules. When there is a wreck due to infraction of the rules, the "exception proves the rule".

But how many motorists drive strictly according to the rule? When you drive out into the street and later on enter upon a highway, you will not likely come to grief if your car is in good condition and you obey the rules of the road and watch the other fellow.

Good News for Sports Fans

We are glad to report that Doug Tegtmeier, the sports director of KTRF radio, will remain a city resident and will continue to broadcast the play-by-play account of the local and regional sports events.

There had been a rumor given circulation to the effect that Doug was to accept the offer extended by KROC-TV of Rochester, Minn. And there was some substance to this rumor, too, because Doug did make a trip to Rochester for an interview. The offer was attractive, and the position was undoubtedly a deserved promotion for Doug; but after considering all the factors, and perhaps responding to the pleas of local sports fans, he decided to remain here. That's good news, and it means that the stay-at-home fans, the shut-ins, and others will be assured of getting first-hand and objective sportscasts of the games in this area.

On the minus side, though, we must mention that Doug's decision to remain here probably guarantees that the weather at the Fair Grounds diamond, whenever the Prowlers or Thieves or the Buns play, will be cold, or windy, or rainy, or a combination of the three. It has been the rule that whenever Doug has been in the bleachers broadcasting the baseball games, especially the Prowler games, the elements have been waging a battle with the radio announcer. Who can forget last season's district tournament game between the Prowlers and the Crookston Pirates, with the lightning flashing between the towers, the rains pelting the players, and Doug huddled under an umbrella in the bleachers?

Fenomism

Our nominee for the honor of being the youngest hunter in this area to "fill" his deer tag is Pat Fisher, the 12-year-old son of the Walter Fishers. Pat, along with his dad, Walt, was a member of the Bill Bugge hunting party last weekend, and he killed his buck on the first drive. The party was hunting in the Goose lake area, and as father and son were moving out to their posting positions, a deer attempted to circle behind the pair. The father took a shot, and missed, and then young Pat up and nailed the deer. Incidentally, we have met up with Pat a number of times this past duck season, and he's been doing more than his share in keeping the Fisher game-locker stocked with mallards.

If you have occasion for a conversation with Norris Ace be sure and have him tell you of his deer hunting experiences with the Skomedahl-Rupprecht party. And how he, Norris, bagged his deer.

George Erickson and Otis Wold related a story to us that has a "believe it or not" tinge. The story pertains to Carl Kretschmar, a pioneer resident of the city who now resides in Indiana. Carl has, for quite a number of years, made deer hunting up here an annual event, and expended a considerable sum of money in the effort, what with non-resident license, etc. And he has had nothing but "blanks". And so it appeared to be this season, too. As he was trudging back to his car after making his last sortie into the woods for this season, he came to a small opening in spruce. He pulled up his rifle, taking aim at nothing, but making the fantastic wish that it would be wonderful if a deer should step out of the thicket. And that's what happened, believe it or not. It was surely a happy Carl Kretschmar who left town for Lafayette, Indiana.

Hockey Notes

Jackie Poole, center and all-state tournament selection on the 1956 Prowler state hockey champions, is in town and will remain for a week or ten days. Jackie had the misfortune of breaking his left forearm during an inter-squad practice session of the Green Bay Bobcats. Jackie played with Green Bay last season, and he was expected to be a valuable scorer for coach John Mayasich's club this season. He expects to be sidelined for about six weeks.

Marv Jorde, also a Prowler all-state tournament selection, being named to the 1954 squad, is a member of the Minneapolis club in the Central hockey league. Marv, who lettered at Minnesota the past three seasons, expects to complete his studies at Minnesota this year.

Danny Summers, the one-time defenseman with the senior hockey Thieves, is player-coach of the St. Paul club of the International league. Summers, who played with the Winnipeg Warriors the past several seasons, is a possibility for the coaching job of the Winnipeg club. Alf Pike, Winnipeg's coach, was named to succeed the ailing Phil Watson as coach of the New York Rangers of the National league.

Grygla Man's Car Stalls on No. 219, Hit by Another

A collision between a car driven by a Thief River Falls man and a stalled car on highway 219 about a half-mile south of Goodridge, resulted in approximately $250 damage to the two cars, Sheriff Charles Richards reported today.

A car belonging to Thorfin P. Ostby, Grygla, was being driven to Thief River Falls for repairs Tuesday, by Dale Newton and another youth when it broke down south of Goodridge.

The car was left there and it was struck Tuesday evening by another car driven by LeRoy Olson, Thief River Falls. Damage to the Ostby car was estimated at $100 and to the Olson car, $150.

Oklee Man Is Cut about Face in Car Accident Nov. 8

Joe Magnell of Oklee suffered severe facial cuts requiring more than a hundred surgical stitches when a car in which he was a passenger slid down an embankment at slow speed and came to an abrupt halt.

The accident happened at about 7 p.m. Sunday, November 8, near a deer camp north of Four Towns. Herbert Bakke, driver of the car, was unhurt. Magnell was taken to Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls.

SCS Scientists Tell of 'Rocksbury' Type Soil in E. RRV Area

One type of soil in this region deserves a much better reputation than it has. What soil scientists mean by this are the Rocksbury soils—loam and clay loam. They extend from the Canadian border south through Kittson, Roseau, Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake and Polk counties, along the eastern fringe of the Red River Valley.

Potential of these soils is greater than most people recognize. They are fine—with good management—for grass and legume seeds, small grains, flax, and other crops. Many dairy and beef farmers do well on this soil. With barley pelleting, more hogs may even be raised in the area.

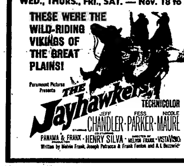
F. M. Scilley and Don Barron, Soil Conservation Service scientists at Thief River Falls, recently studied the soils in cooperation with R. H. Rust, University of Minnesota soil scientist. Their report is in the current issue of "Minnesota Farm and Home Science," an Agricultural Experiment station publication, stated county agent Paul Stelmaschuk. The "Farm and Home Science" publication will be mailed shortly to farm families. Those wishing a copy may secure one at the extension office.

Rocksbury soil have black loam or clay loam surface areas 7-9 inches thick. Next are layers of grayish-brown silty clay loam. Under that is a deep layer of clay loam material, often high in lime.

Most Rockbury soils are high all needed plant nutrients. Trouble is that some of these nutrients are partially "locked up" and are released slowly. Reason: Rather high alkalinity or poor drainage, or both. But where you do something to speed up natural drainage, this problem is often reduced and the soils produce more.

Tile or ditch drainage often helps external drainage. You can increase internal drainage by using four or five-year rotations with two or three years of grass and deep-rooted legumes, minimum tillage, and staying off the fields when too wet.

Rocksbury soil needs extra fertilizer. Some farmers find it pays to add nitrogen in spring. A hundred pounds of superphosphate fertilizer per acre often helps, too. Rocks and brush are relatively easy to remove with modern equipment.



For a complete look at the Rocksbury soils and ways to manage them, you can get the current issue of "Minnesota Farm and Home Science". The extension office has copies, or you can write to the Agricultural Bulletin Room, University of Minnesota, St. Paul 1.

Health Activity 4-H Work Revised

County Agent Reports on Changes in Program

Good helath affects your personality and happiness, says the ne 4-H bulletin "Health — the Wealth We Keep and Share." This bulletin was prepared as part of the revised 4-H health activity, report county agent Paul Stelmaschuk.

Listed are 12 areas in which 4-H'ers can work. They cover personal health such as dental health, posture, growth, immunization, diet and personality. For club members more interested in group health, there are areas in community health, farm and home sanitation, first aid, home nursing and family health practices.

Enrollment in the health activity will entitle 4-H'ers to have a copy of the bulletin. Accompanying it will be the new health workbook.

Climax of 4-H health achievement is a trip to health camp, awarded to 4-H'ers who have contributed greatly toward better personal and community health. At the camp the state health achievement winner is named.

The activity is sponsored by the University of Minnesota Agricultural Extension service in cooperation with the Minnesota Tuberculosis and Health association and the Minnesota State Department of Health. The Folger Coffee company provides funds for the camp.

Torgerson, Zimmerman Report to Commission

A. O. Torgerson, former assistant commissioner of the highway department, has told the legislative interim commission on highways that the department would be more efficient if it were not required to have administrative plans approved by the commissioner of administration.

L. P. Zimmerman, highway commissioner, reported he had to wait "nearly a year" for approval of plans to reorganize the department. The details causing the delay were not explored at this meeting. Arthur Naftalin, commissioner of administration, later stated that he was performing the duties assigned him by the reorganization act which the department of administration has followed since its enactment in 1939.

At the next meeting of the commission, 9:30 a.m., November 23, Capitol Room 113, representatives of the Automobile club, Minnesota Motor Transport association, Good Roads Association, Associated General Contractors, and labor unions have been asked to give their suggestions for improving the operation of the highway department. Other organizations will be heard at a later date.

The interim commission of highways urges individual citizens and employees of the highway department to send to the commission, 109 State Capitol, any suggestion they may have for improvements in the department. If sufficient individuals respond, a public hearing will be held for them to present their views. Commissioner Zimmerman assured the interim group that there would be no reprisal against any employee for criticizing the highway department.

HERE'S WHAT GOES INTO THE PRICE OF A PRESCRIPTION

You give the pharmacist a piece of paper. A little while later he hands you a package of medication. What you get for your money is not just a bottle of tablets or capsules or liquid. It's a great deal more. As follows:

Research

Thousands of man-hours and millions of dollars have been expended by the manufacturer to find the drug that will do exactly the job the doctor wants done. For every 20 drugs tested, at great expense, only one usually turns out right. Only after costly research . . . in the test tube, on animals, on human patients . . . is the product ready to go.

Production

To mass-produce today's wonder drugs . . . so that all who need them may have them . . . requires the most fantastically complex equipment. Moreover, complex and costly procedures must be followed to make sure that safety and potency and efficacy are guarded every step of the way — from raw materials to finished medication.

Availability

The finest drug in the world is useless if it's not available to the person who needs it — when he needs it. To deliver the newest drugs to every city and hamlet — overnight—the drug industry maintains a highly organized distribution network. Strategically located manufacturer's depots . . . wholesaler's warehouses . . . thousands of men and women are vehicles — all play a vital, indispensable role in getting every new life-saving drug into the nation's pharmacies in the shortest possible time.

Dispensing

To make sure he learns how to dispense your medication safely and accurately, the law requires your pharmacist to undergo 5 years or more of rigorous, costly education and training.

To do his job right, he must then invest thousands of dollars in stocking at least 3,000 different drugs, many of them rarely called for. He must also invest in a wide array of precision equipment — expensive equipment — designed for the proper storage, compounding and packaging of each prescription.

Those are SOME of the things you get when you pay for a prescription. But over and beyond all these, you also get better health . . . speedier recovery from illness . . . fewer hospital bills . . . and an ever longer life. They all add up the undeniable fact that:

Cancerberries?

When the secretary of health, education and welfare announced last week that "some cranberries sold in stores across the nation are contaminated with a possible cancer-producing agent," he revealed information that he no doubt thought the public should have. We may assume that he acted in good faith. But while we will not question his motive, there is justification for questioning his judgment. We question his judgment mainly because of an increasing tendency among government officials to make alarming statements that serve no good purpose and in some instances do irreparable damage.

The dairy industry, for instance, has suffered because of official reports of possible contamination of milk from the fall-out of atomic explosions. Such reports have been accompanied by statements to the effect that the contamination was not sufficient to be dangerous. Why then issue the report in the first place? There are many people in this world who devote much of their time to looking for things to worry about, and they accept as true and inevitable every evil possibility. Because there is danger in all things and in all places under certain conditions, there is an unlimited source of material for the alarmists to worry about.

The alarm was sounded about contaminated cranberries because it was discovered that a few cranberry growers had sprayed their crops with a chemical weed killer that was not supposed to be used for weed eradication in crops of this kind. This chemical may be capable of producing cancer in rats and it was assumed that if it proved to be harmful to experimental rats it might prove to be harmful to human beings. The alarm was sounded apparently not on proven facts but on supposition.

Chemical Week, a periodical devoted to the problems of chemistry, is of the opinion that the suppositions that led to the cranberry crisis are not justified. It states that a person ". . . would have to eat two quarts of cranberries every day for 28 years in order to reach the feeding test levels at which the weed killer first proved harmful" to experimental animals.

Censorship does not appeal to us. Better that we suffer bad effects of an occasional blunder than to deny our public officials the right to express their opinions. But we do believe that those officials who are authorized to speak for the government should be reprimanded or even relieved of their authority when by their guesses they cause irreparable damage to an industry.

In the present instance it is unfortunate that the announcement of possible danger was made at a time when cranberries are in greatest demand. The loss to the growers and to their industry is already great. And the damage will extend over a long period of time for to many worriers the cranberry will always be a cancerberry.

A Ten-Penny Shilling?

There is increasing pressure in New Zealand and Australia for a decimal currency system. Here, where we are accustomed to a 100-cent dollar and the ease of figuring that goes with it, it is difficult to understand why Britain and most of the Commonwealth countries still retain the awkward and antiquated system their forefathers inherited.

Discussing the possibility of change, the Manchester Guardian states:

"The report of a New Zealand Government committee in favour of the institution of a decimal currency system strikes another blow against what has been for some time a rather unstable bastion of British tradition. Australia, too, is to investigate the possibility of a change, and this news from down under may prove to be the last straw that breaks the back of the twelve-penny shilling — surely if not a camel, then a white elephant. For, whatever advantage there may have been to the present British system of weights, measures and coinage in the days of Charlemagne, these have long since ceased to be operative.

"Since 1801, when the metric system first became legal in France (it was only to become obligatory in 1840), a far more practical alternative has existed. In fact, the only justification of a system which is both difficult and illogical is that it would be too much trouble to change it.

Yet as far as coinage is concerned, the report of the New Zealand committee seems to show that this is not really so. The substitution of ten-penny for twelve-penny shillings would be a relatively simple step, and the units which would make up a ten-shilling pound already exist in the shape of florins. Once the first transformation is made, modernization of weights and measures (which we all learn in school and can never remember afterwards) will appear less revolutionary."

Until we adopt the metric system of weights and measures, we of course will not be justified in chiding the British about their stubborn resistance to progress in the currency field. The decimal system was one of the great inventions developed by the ancients. It is difficult to understand why it has not had universal acceptance.

No Longer Newsworthy

The public is no longer greatly interested in the launching of man-made satellites. That must be the conclusion of the New York Times for it gave only brief mention to the recent launching of Discoverer VII, which presumably is still swinging around in orbit a few hundred miles in outer space. The Times story was carried on page 47 of an inside section.

Most of the Times story had to do with the failures of previous Discoverers, and, in view of the fact that Discoverer VII did not eject the capsule it was supposed to parachute back to earth, it too will have to be written down as a failure. If these launchings had been more successful, the public interest probably would have been more sustained.

We have no right to be critical of the failures. Satellite launching is in the experimental stage and some failures must be expected. But it would be less difficult to be patient with these expensive failures if those who are directing the experiments would be more modest in their advance publicity. It is the big talk of the great thing that is going to be done, rather than the failure itself, that makes us look foolish to the rest of the world.

We would not adopt the Russian publicity plan which obviously reveals only the successful attempts and conceals the failures, but somewhere between the two methods there must be a better way.

Canadian Viewpoint

In his column in the Financial Post (Canadian), J. B. McGeachy last week wrote about the problems of Canadian universities, confronted, as they are, with the same problems of increasing enrollment as ours. And much of what he said has application for us.

He applauds the University of Toronto officials for setting the limit of that school's enrollment at 23,000 students. It will then become a highly selective school "enrolling only superior brains as undergraduates."

"This statement of policy may be unacceptable to the egalitarians," he states, "but it ought to be applauded by all who reject the dismal doctrine of equality and recognize that a truly great university — like Oxford or Harvard — remains great by excluding dullards. It is becoming extremely difficult to get into Oxford, Harvard and a few other schools of the same rank. If Toronto is moving into this choice company, so much the better for Canada."

And he sees nothing wrong with the idea of a student being required to pay a substantial part of the cost of education. On this point he says:

"As to a university's running expenses, it's entirely reasonable that students should pay substantial fees. Putting the question on a matter-of-fact pecuniary basis, a college education is worth on the average $100,000 in extra lifetime earnings; the investment of $5,000 to $10,000 in a university degree is a bargain.

"Most students, if they put their minds to it, can earn a substantial part of this cost. If they can't they might try emulating the Scottish students (not legendary but actual) who lived at Glasgow or Edinburgh on bags of oatmeal toted to college on their backs at the start of each term. Scholarships are a good idea; but heaven help the country if they ever become the means, provided by the taxpayers, of inculcating a belief that study at a university is just an effortless way of spending three or four halcyon years."

And on the question of how far we should go in gearing our schools to the production of men of science, he makes these observations:

"Briefly, the way I see it is this. We need more scientists, engineers and technologists than the universities are now turning out; but we are not going to be saved from destruction just because we produce as many of these experts per thousand population as the Russians do. The question is what sort of life is worth living under any political or social system; and for guidance on this matter we need people instructed in the ancient, seemingly "useless," wisdom and learning.

"Much nonsense is written and spoken on his point. "Science" is part of humane learning; and the same man may be both a scientist and a humanist. Likewise, there is nothing against a university being "vocational." For centuries the universities were nothing else but, producing only ecclesiastics, lawyers, doctors and other erudite professionals.

"The key question is what sort of vocation the student aims at. Most trades are much better acquired by practical experience than in classrooms; but the learned vocations need books, professors and leisure. Let us hope, for the general good, that a few will continue to select the vocation of scholar, wise man or whatever you choose to call him, and that Shakespeare and Homer will stay on the academic map."

During the past few years there has been a steadily increasing interest in problems faced by people over 45 years of age when they seek employment. It is generally known that many employers have either an official or an unofficial policy against hiring employees who have reached a certain age. It is not so well known that there is very little justification for such a policy in most instances.

Employment Service Studies

Both federal and state employment services have made studies of older workers. Most employers say that older workers tend to be more dependable, to change jobs less often, and in most cases work just as efficiently as younger workers. Employers themselves rate experience as a much more important factor than age. Yet old prejudices against hiring older people still remain.

Minnesota Leads

The state employment service in Minnesota has led the way in measures to develop a more realistic attitude toward employment of mature workers. Minnesota made one of the first surveys of attitudes of employers. Our employment service is now training staff members to become more effective in assisting older applicants to get jobs.

This training really brings results. Five years ago only 15 percent of the placements made through the state employment service were of people over 45 years of age. Last year this figure had increased to nearly 23 percent. In areas where the staff had special training, the percentage was 36 or 27 per cent.

New Attitudes Needed

Efforts to develop the practice of filling jobs on the basis of ability rather than an arbitrary age standard are proceeding along several lines. One is a three-way educational program. Employers are being educated to the advantages of hiring older people. Older workers themselves are being given opportunities to improve their skills and their approach to new jobs. And professional placement staffs are being trained for better service to older applicants.

Some States Have Laws

In some states there are laws to prevent discrimination in employment on the basis of age. Bills have been introduced into Congress to prevent such discrimination.

Some citizen organizations have taken an active interest in employment opportunities for older workers. And at least one company in Minnesota has a policy of hiring only those who are over a certain age.

Skill and Experience Needed

All of these efforts will result in a real benefit to individuals who seek work after the age of 40. But they will also result in benefit to all. There is a real need for skilled and experienced workers in many fields. If we in the United States are to make the progress we should make in our economic development we cannot afford to waste human resources. We must therefore provide opportunities for useful employment to all who have the ability, regardless of age.

Population Shifts

The changing nature of our population makes such opportunities ever more important. During the first half of this century our population doubled. But during that same time the numbers of those between 45 and 64 years of age trebled. And the numbers over 65 quadrupled.

Some one thought up a slogan: "We have added years to our life, now let's add life to our years." Constructive work is certainly one way to add life to the increased years that medical and related sciences have given to us.

'COAL OIL' LAMPS

The grease lamp and the candle preceded the kerosene lamp which did not come into use until after kerosene was first discovered in 1859. John D. Rockefeller discovered kerosene or "coal oil" as it was first known but the early kerosene lamps had such a disagreeable odor that it was sometimes called "sunk oil" and the first refinery was set up to remove this odor from the kerosene.

As the kerosene lamp became popular, rather elaborate combinations evolved — such as the hanging lamps illustrated above. Washing lamp chimneys, clipping the wicks and refilling the lamps with oil became a part of the housewife's daily chores.

PROTEST IN SUBURBIA

THE STUDIOUS TYPE

By Ruth Camp

"GERTRUDE," complained Betty Morris, passing her desk one lunch hour, "why do you keep your nose in a book?"

"I'm the studious type," explained Gertrude Carson. She peered over her heavy-rimmed glasses with a go-away-mosquito look.

Betty shrugged and walked on. "Heavens!" whispered Marie Bourdon, "What does she see in books?"

Mr. Danielson looked up from his figuring and glared at her.

"Well," said Betty boldly, "it's lunch hour."

Gertrude had put her book into the bottom drawer of her desk and inserted a letterhead in her typewriter.

Mr. Danielson spoke to her. "Miss Carson," he said, "are you any good with figures?"

"Certainly, Mr. Danielson," said Gertrude, getting up and going over to his desk. "Here," she said, in her washerwoman voice —that was what the other girls called it. "Let me take these and check them over."

Without waiting for an answer, she swept up the papers and went to her desk, where she worked over them half-an-hour, her pencil sharp and swift-moving. Then she carried them back to Mr. Danielson's desk, along a neat sheet which carried her figures.

Marie's mouth hung open, and Betty was near collapse.

"I see," said the boss. "Where did you pick up this gift? I don't remember anything about it in your application."

"Oh, that was over a year ago. I study. I settle on something useful and go after it. I get all the books from the library and study until I have it."

"I see. What are you studying now, may I ask?"

"I'm not sure. Catching a man, I think."

Betty Morris choked and rushed from the office. Marie just sat there with her pretty mouth open, looking silly.

A couple of weeks later, Betty and Marie finished patting their hair in place at about ten minutes after nine. "Where's Gertrude?" demanded Betty. "She's never late!"

"Funny Gertrude isn't here yet," ventured Betty, addressing herself to Mr. Danielson.

He paced the floor, accelerating his step to a nerve-racking staccato. Finally, he flung himself into his chair. Tired and troubled as he was, he suddenly looked very young.

The door opened quietly, and a graceful young woman swept in. She nodded pleasantly and greeted them all with a melodious "Good morning."

Marie and Betty stared, as the stranger went straight to Gertrude's desk, pulled out the typewriter, and sat down to it.

"Miss Carson—Gertrude. Thank goodness you're here!" He blushed handsomely. "Can we tell them now?" he asked.

The vision of femininity at Gertrude's typewriter smiled at him. A different pair of glasses was the least of her disguises. Where had she found those sparkling blue eyes, with the crinkles?

"Girls," proclaimed Mr. Danielson, his hand on Gertrude's shoulder, "meet the future Mrs. Danielson!"

Twenty minutes later, Betty had recovered enough to croak out one syllable of surprise. "Books!"

Pioneer Thanksgiving

Actual pioneer Minnesota menu at Shore House, Rainy Lake Minnesota, Thanksgiving Day 1897 included: Moosetail Soup; Venison; Spiced Blueberries; Wild Duck Salad; Filet of Sturgeon; Fricasseed Partridge; Planked White Fish; Blackberry Dumplings; Braised Caribou Liver; Wild Goose; and Spruce Gum. And since there were 11 breweries already operating in the state (some for as long as 40 years or more!) most pioneer Thanksgiving menus in Minnesota in 1897 likely included fine quality Minnesota-made beer.

Early State Brewers

When the warring Sioux Indians were stilled after their famous New Ulm Massacre of 1862, one of the few buildings still standing on the edge of the city was that of the Schell Brewery — even then already 2 years old. August Schell first tapped the clear spring water of New Ulm in 1860 to found his brewery there. Built in a setting like old Bavaria, the brewery had adjacent to it a park containing live deer — the basis for its "Deer Brand" trademark. Today, with stability typical of Minnesota brewers, the firm has withstood the passage of almost a century. Its present manager, Alfred Marti, is related to the founder.

The WORLD OUTDOORS

ONCE, as a young lad just beginning to discover the wonders of the world outdoors, I was easing along a Southern swamp with my trusty .22, looking for squirrels, rabbits, or anything else that constituted fair game. I came upon an old gentleman, resting comfortably on a Cypress knee, a very ancient shotgun cradled in his lap.

"What you hunting for, mister," I asked.

The old man looked at me, a merry twinkle in his eye, and replied very emphatically, "For fun, son. Just for fun."

I've never forgotten that meeting, nor the twinkle in the old gentleman's eye. He wasn't "kidding" me. He meant exactly what he was saying.

Many seasons later, I must admit that everytime I enter the woods my reasons are the same as his—"just for fun." With few exceptions, this holds true with the majority of today's hunters and fishermen.

Sometimes, resting comfortably against the bole of a tree, I'm apt to forget about squirrels and become engrossed in watching a flittering chipmunk at play, or a gang of blue jays chattering it up. My eyes may stray from a deer trail to the wide expanse of a great sky and the narrowing, searching circle of a hawk. Other times, there is pleasure in setting aside a casting rod to watch the rippling of a stream, minnows that frolic in the safety of shallow water or a busy raccoon that eases along the edge of the stream, searching, stopping, looking, then easing some more.

In the strict sense, man is the intruder in the world outdoors. He is brash and bold and noisy. But sometimes, if so inclined, he can with patience become an unobjectionable part of it. It is at such times that a man can find the "fun" that he seeks.

QUESTIONS answered for VETERANS

Q—I am the widow of a World War II veteran who died of an injury received during his wartime service. I receive a check each month from VA. Will this check in any way be affected by the new pension law?

A—No. The new law applies only to pensions, based on nonservice-connected disabilities and death. It does not in any way affect compensation payments made to veterans and others on account of service-connected disabilities and deaths.

Q—For personal reasons I could not enter school this fall under the Korean GI Bill, but plan to begin with the spring semester. My three-year deadline for starting training will be up before then, however. Is it all right to apply before my deadline and actually start my studies with the spring semester, as I plan?

A—No. This would not be possible, under the law. The law requires veterans to begin actual training within three years from date of discharge.

Q—I've got to sell my house because of a move outside the city, and I have a buyer who will assume the balance of my GI loan. In applying to VA for a release of liability, will there be any charges involved, and if so, who must pay them?

A—Either you or the prospective purchaser must pay for a credit report on the purchaser, and the costs of recording the Assumption Agreement and Release, if recording is necessary.

Q—Suppose a veteran dies without naming a beneficiary for his GI insurance policy. The money would, as I understand, be paid to his estate, but how? Would it be in one lump sum, or in installments?

A—The insurance proceeds would be paid in one lump sum to the veteran's estate.

Q—My town has a hospital school for nurses. Could I go to this school and receive training under the War Orphans program? I am eligible as a war orphan.

A—Yes. You would be able to attend the hospital school, as long as it is approved for War Orphans training. The War Orphans Education program is not just a college program. It provides opportunity for training in a wide variety of schools below the college level.

Q—When the new pension act becomes effective next July, I understand widows of World War II and the Korean War may establish pension eligibility, without being required to show their husbands died of a service-connected disability. What will be needed?

A—They need only establish that the veteran was in active service 90 days or more and was discharged under other than dishonorable conditions. This is the same requirement which applies for widows of World War I veterans.

Q—Is a veteran entitled to a GI loan while he is receiving other benefits, such as an educational allowance benefit?

A—Yes. Provided he qualifies for the loan. The fact that he is receiving the one benefit would not keep him from getting the other.

Q—I am thinking of converting my Korean War term insurance to a permanent endowment plan. Could I arrange that the proceeds be paid to me in monthly installments, after the policy is paid up?

A—Yes. You may choose either a lump-sum payment, or payment over a specified period, ranging from three to 20 years.

GROWING WITH YOUR CHILD

Institute of Child Welfare, University of Minnesota

The "Middle Aged" Child

The world of the middle aged child (the child from 6 to 12) is filled with tradition and ritual. During this time the group to which they belong (the "gang," or the "pack") has a lot to say about the way they behave. Where development doesn't determine the changes we see in these youngsters, the rules, rituals, or traditions of the "pack" certainly do.

I suppose most every parent has wondered at times how his child learned some of the expressions he uses and some of the games he plays. We wonder because, although we remember them from our own childhood, we felt that we had left them behind forever as we grew up. It almost seems as though some ghosts out of the past are returning to haunt us.

The solution, when we stop to think about this, is really very simple. These rituals and traditions are a part of children's society, and they are handed down from older children to younger children in a most precise manner. We, of course, lose contact with childhood during adolescence and young adulthood, until our children are of "gang" age and become the eager pupils and almost entranced admirers of the older ruling class in childhood society (namely, the sixth, seventh and eighth graders).

Being a part of the gang is very important to children this age. Skill and "know how" contribute mightily to their acceptance by others and this spurs their learning. Playing certain games will, at least having mastered the rules, is an absolute "must" for membership in most gangs and so these activities become serious matters, indeed. It is for this reason that traditional and ritual is such an important part of the middle childhood years, and it is for the same reason that they are handed down so faithfully from one generation of youngsters to another.

We must learn to respect the importance for the child of mastering the traditional games, and of learning the jargon of the gang. It may seem to us that some of these things are hopelessly outdated, and that childhood hasn't progressed at all since we were children, but we will do well to remember how vital these ceremonies and membership are. They provide children with the security which issues from being involved with others who look like them, think like them, feel like them, and act like them.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

A Real "Meaty" Subject

Today I've got a tale that really hits close to home—but it's okay, I've got the wife's permission to tell it.

My Mrs. Marsh has been cooking hams—deliciously, I might add—for years. But always, just before she pops 'em into the oven, she slices an inch off one end. Reason: she said her mother always did that to make ham tastier.

Last week, though, Grandma gave the real reason. Sure, she used to slice an inch from a ham but only when her roasting pan was an inch too short.

From where I sit, all of us do things that can't be backed up by reason or fact. Most times they're pretty silly things—particularly the petty prejudices we build. For instance, some folks may resent your preference for buttermilk at dinner, or mine for a glass of beer. If they'd stop to think "why"—they'd realize they were taking a "slice" off our friendship and for no good reason at all.

Joe Marsh

Our Land

Appearing in newspapers of the Minnesota Editorial Association through the cooperation of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service and the University of Minnesota Institute of Agriculture.

Pasturing contour strips posed a big fencing problem for Fay Sikkink, Preston, Minnesota. Oliver Strand, Fillmore county extension soils agent, says Sikkink was wondering how he could pasture his 29 Holstein on strips without complicated fence. He solved it all by installing some diversion and regular field terraces on most of the sloping cropland, leaving adjacent strips on steeper land in hay or pasture most of the time. This way, he was able to pasture on a field basis, and follow a rotation grazing system.

A high water table in Swift county is being turned into a good stock water supply. According to Edwin G. Johnson, SCS worker at Benson, many farmers in the county soil conservation district are using these stock water pits. Nearly 500 head of cattle are watered this way on the Charles Koehl, Henry Goll and Mrs. Melvin Dutcher farms. These pits had plenty of water during the past two seasons in spite of low rainfall. Deer, pheasants and ducks use the water too.

You can't stop wind but you can stop wind damage. Theodore F. Peet Wolverton, cooperator in the Wilkin county soil conservation district, plants oats in early September in his sugar beet fields. The oats grow just high enough to make a light but effective cover that guards the soil all winter and spring. In spring, Peet works the seed bed lightly with a rotary hoe and seeds among the crop residue. Even during the driest, windiest days last spring, Peet saw none of the characteristic black dust clouds rolling off from his beet fields.

"Never knew one piece of ground could produce so much feed." That comment is from Eldon Peterson, Yellow Medicine county farmer. With prospects of no pasture last spring, Peterson and county agent David Johnson worked out a ration-a-day plan on an alfalfa hay meadow. Pasture went farther and the cows did well.

"Cutting corners" in the fields can raise not lower, profits. Emil Dorf at Monticello wanted to save time and expense in his corn planting. He was concerned about wind erosion too. He licked both problems by wheel track planting 350 acres of corn and 150 acres of soybeans, according to J. E. Ellis, Wright county soils agent. Dorf, a soil conservation district supervisor, says the crop stood dry weather better, planting cost less, there was less wind erosion in early spring, the ground held moisture better and the corn grew better.

Top-dressing tame hay fields with fertilizer after the first cutting paid off for several farmers in the Mille Lacs county soil conservation district this year. And for Walter Blomer, Onamia, and the Wilhelm brothers, Princeton, it helped in spite of legume winterkill and lack of rainfall. William Kalton, SCS technician in the area, says the second cutting on each farm was mostly alfalfa, although the first cutting was mostly grass.

It pays to keep a check on tile drainage system outlets — and keep a rodent-proof screen on the outlet pipe. Clyde Cooper, farmer near Dexter in the Mower county soil conservation district, recently found his outlet system plugged up. What had happened: between the time the tile was laid and the anti-rodent screen was put in (about 4 weeks) a skunk moved in and filled up the pipe with grass and dirt. According to Lawrence Strief, SCS technician, the trouble was enough to prevent functioning and ruin two acres of crops.

A loose smut epidemic cost Minnesota barley growers more than $1.5 million in losses this year. According to plant pathologist Karl D. Fezer at the University of Minnesota, the damage was mostly in the Red River Valley, where the bulk of the state's barley is grown. The disease is seed borne, so better check your seed source if you raise barley.

Farmers Union State Convention Nov. 22d

Delegates and visitors from every agricultural county of the state are expected to be among more than 3,000 persons attending the 18th annual convention of Minnesota Farmers Union in St. Paul.

The convention will be held at the St. Paul municipal auditorium, opening Sunday evening, Nov. 22, and continuing Monday and Tuesday and closing with the annual convention dinner on Tuesday night.

Major business of the convention will include the adoption of recommendations for the improvement of farm programs and it is expected that it will be pointed out that the current Benson policies have failed to help farmers or to reduce surpluses. A farm program, such as that advocated by Farmers Union, would be of more direct help to farmers and rural communities, yet would cost only a fraction of what is now being spent.

Farm income this year is running about $2 billion below 1958 and a further slump is expected in 1960. With this in mind, the recommendations which are to be made on farm policy by the convention delegates will be very important Edwin Christianson, president of Minnesota Farmers Union, said this week. "Two months from now Congress will be reconvening and it will be under heavy pressure to accept more of the Benson recommendations, thus it is important for farmers to speak up in their own defense through their Farmers Union organization."

Convention reports will show that despite the loss of thousands of farms each year due to the unfavorable economic situation of farmers, Farmers Union members has exceeded 40,00 families for the third year in a row and the percentage of the state's farmers belonging to Farmers Union now is at an all-time high.

Co. Agent Advises on Fertilizer Use

Says Anhydrous Ammonia May Be Applied in Fall

On heavier soils at least, it's entirely proper to put anhydrous ammonia on fields in fall. This is especially important in Pennington county since most soils need more nitrogen than can be applied with the seed, states county agent Paul Stelmaschuk. Only 10 pounds of nitrogen can go down the seed spout with corn seed, and 20 pounds of nitrogen with grain, so that most farmers need to broadcast nitrogen this fall or first thing in the spring to get the yields of grain they want. Nitrogen is not "fixed" like phosphate, so applying it before the snow is too deep would be advisable.

University of Minnesota experiments show that applying this fertilizer in fall was just as good as putting it on in spring.

Some other findings: :

On some fields, especially those low in fertility, applying nitrogen in late April was a bit less effective in increasing crop yields than was applying the same amount as sidedressing a month or two later.

Concentration of crude protein went up as a result of applying nitrogen. This, combined with total yield increases, substantially boosted per acre yields of crude protein. In other words, nitrogen-fertilizer crop supplied more protein and feed value for cattle and sheep.

Where crops got nitrogen, it often paid to add some phosphate and potash, too.

Nitrogen applied a year earlier usually had some benefit for crops in the same field during the following year, as well.

Langen devoted most of his address to a review of the record of the last session of Congress, and also urged Chamber members to take a constructive interest in governmental affairs.

Preceding his talk, Andy Williamson, chairman of the nominating committee, submitted a slate of candidates for posts on the Chamber's board of directors, these being approved without any additions.

The nominees are Robert E. Baker, manager, J. C. Penney Co.; Ole Ekern, owner, Thief River Pharmacy; James V. Gelsen, manager, Credit Bureau; Philip Hess, owner, Jewel Box; Joseph B. ATTORNEY Curtis L. Charlson, a native of Kenyon, Minnesota, and a 1950 graduate of the University of Minnesota law school, this week became associated with H. O. Chommie, long-time local attorney, in the practice of law.

Princess Kay and Foreign Student Address Rotary

Rev. Oliver Hsu Tells Club Members of Life in China under Communists

Special guests of the Rotary club at the Monday, Nov. 16, noon meeting were Betty Jax, Princess Kay of the Milky Way; Mrs. Lew Conlon, chaperone for Miss Jax; Rev. E. V. Folden of Steer, Inc., Rev. Oliver Hsu, a member of International Students, Inc., and Rodney Brodin, chairman of the state board of Steer, Inc.

Miss Jax of Adams, who this fall was chosen to represent the dairy industry of the state, was making her first visit in the city since winning her crown. She told the Rotarians about her personal background and what she has done as the dairy industry's representative.

Rev. Hsu, who was born in China and lived there until 1951, is one of 10,000 foreign students in the United States under the International Students program. He said that the Communists had gained a foothold in China by promising the people security, equality and better living conditions. Since then, they have built up an army of 6,000,000, a great police and secret police force which must be supported by the people and a system of state capitalism in which the state owns everything.

Before the Communists came to China, farmers used to rent their land from large landowners to whom they paid 20% of their crops. Now, Rev. Hsu said, they pay the state 50%.

The visitor said that the Chinese will one day revolt and throw the Communists out of the country. The young people dislike Communism, he said, and the trend toward an interest in that form of government so apparent a few years ago has now vanished. At the present time, the people of China are seeking a leader for such a revolt.

Thief R. Watershed Development Assn. Is Advised of Progress

Reports on the progress made by their organization during the first year of its activities were heard by members of the Thief River Watershed Development Association at the first annual meeting held at Gatzke Wednesday night. The organization was formed in 1958 for the purpose of securing an overall plan for the development of the area, taking into consideration all of the problems and the possibilities.

Toward this end Congress had included the watershed in the Red River Valley projects referred to the U.S. Corps of Engineers for study. M. O. Jordahl, in charge of planning and reports for the St. Paul district of the Corps, told the group that preliminary surveys of the Thief River channel were nearing completion and that some tests of sub-surface conditions would be made this winter by borings.

Mr. Jordahl stated that the Engineers would confine their study to the main channel of the stream and the outlet problems at Mud Lake and Thief Lake. Their plans and recommendations would be based on information that will be made available to them by the soil conservation officials who are preparing a report on the large area for which the Thief River is the outlet. Their final report would not be available by June 30, he said.

The federal Fish & Wildlife service was represented by E. L. Doeling, hydraulic engineer of the Minneapolis office. He and Herb Dill, manager of the Mud Lake refuge, reported on the progress they are making in their planning for more satisfactory ways of handling the waters that drain through the refuge. They recognized the need for improved outlet facilities. Mr. Doeling expressed the interest of his organization in the overall problems of the watershed and gave assurance that it would cooperate in a development plan to the fullest extent of its authority.

The Soil Conservation Service was represented by John McMartin, who is in charge of the Marshall-Beltrami area, and Bob Farmes of Thief River Falls who spoke for the state conservation department. Other speakers were Senator Don Sinclair of Stephen Delmar Hagen of Gatzke who now is a member of the Red Lake River Drainage and Conservancy District board, and B. E. Youngquist, superintendent of the Northwest School at Crookston.

At a short business session four directors were elected for four-year terms. Otto Rupprecht and Milo Rantanen succeeded themselves and new members are Peter Hendrickson and Ronald Klamer. Dr. James Disse of Thief River Falls was elected secretary. A lunch was served by the ladies of the Gatzke community.

Dr. George Martin reported at the Lions club luncheon meeting Wednesday noon that arrangements are now being made by a group of local organizations to sponsor another high school junior for a trip abroad in the summer of 1960 under the auspices of the American Field Service.

Council Holds Busy Session Tuesday Night

Contributes $10,000 to Court House Fund from Liquor Profits

A dog, police car, snow plow and other matters were brought to the attention of the city council Tuesday night, Nov. 17, in one of the longer sessions of that body in the past year. All members were present with the exception of Bob Carlson, council president.

"The case of the $1,500 dog" again became a council item when Robert Wurst, city attorney, asked what action he should take in the suit filed by Walter Larson against the city, patrolman Donald Myers and Carl M. Johnson, who operates the city dog pound. Larson has charged mental anguish caused by the "willful, malicious and intentional" destruction of his dog by the city and its representatives. The council unanimously directed Wurst to represent the defendants in the trial which is scheduled for the Nov. 23 term of district court.

Bids on a police car were received from three dealers with the figures varying only $22 between the high and low figures. The Tunberg Motor company bid was $1,575 including the trade-in of the present car, Forkenbrock Motor company's bid under the same condition was $1,597 and Northern Chevrolet's bid was $1,581. All bids were tabled for further action at an adjourned meeting Nov. 23.

Monday evening, Nov. 23, was set by the council for a discussion of the city budget for 1960 and a meeting with the auditor was scheduled for the following evening.

A resolution was adopted by the council declaring a state of emergency to make it possible for the city to purchase a used rotary snowplow for the maintenance of the municipal airport. No equipment is available for the work at the present time since the demise of the aged motor patrol which was to be used for that purpose.

Francine Ebbighusen and Darold Olberg Are Wed

Dr. Walter M. Pedersen officiated at the double ring ceremony at the Zion Lutheran parsonage Saturday, Nov. 14, which united Miss Francine Ebbighausen of Thief River Falls and Darold Olberg of Minneapolis in holy matrimony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Ebbighausen of rural Thief River Falls, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Ellen Anderson of Middle River.

For her wedding the bride chose a waltz length dress of tiers of white illusion lace over taffeta, fashioned with a sabrina neckline and three-quarter length sleeves. Her chapel length veil was held in place by a tiara of seed pearls and sequins and she carried a bouquet of talisman roses and stephanotis. The traditional something old, new, borrowed and blue was carried out.

Sharon Olberg, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. She was attired in a dress of aqua blue chiffon over taffeta featuring a cowl neckline draping in the back into a bow and she carried a bouquet of yellow the roses and stephanotis.

Attending the bridegroom as best man was Harvey Ebbighausen, brother of the bride.

By STAN PETERSON

Who's Right?

"The public" is a marvelously complex body of individuals which apparently can be led to believe anything if it is fed enough propaganda, either good or bad, over a period of time.

Witness the insane tirades of one Adolf Hitler who repeated his lies often enough and loud enough that he was able to lead a nation into war. Remember the change of public opinion in our own nation which, prior to World War II, was led to believe that Russia was a nation of bomb-carrying, bearded assassins and which, overnight became a nation of "defenders of democracy."

In our daily lives, we are also inundated by waves of half truths and downright lies in commercial claims for everything from toothpaste to underarm deodorants. Being a nation of sheep, we rush down to the corner store to buy everything advertised to make us socially impeccable in the sight, smell and sound of everyone else.

It is with a great deal more reserve that we should consider the barrage of propaganda and counter-propoganda which has been reaching us in regard to management vs. labor. A little history in the long battle is not out of order.

Workers have, and always will, organize for only one reason—the promotion of their welfare. Through history individual workers have found that their requests and demands for improvement of their lot have been met with reprisals. Their only recourse was to band together for the presentation of their grievances.

In certain industries and businesses with favorable working climates, the formation of unions of workers has never or has been slow to come about. The rapidity of unionization has been in direct ratio to the conditions under which workers earned their daily bread.

Historically, we will remember that the labor movement was first looked upon by the public as a bad thing and management was considered as the injured party. Later, the pendulum had swung to the opposite side of its arc and "bigness" as applied to business was also "badness."

The pendulum has again begun another swing in its unceasing arc and we are being besieged by a verbal barrage from both management and labor defending their views and belittling the views of the other side. Which side is believed depends in large part on the way the stories are told and how "clean are the noses" of the opposition.

Traditionally, management has always told the best story not because of the amount of advertising money it has spent but because the story is better presented and better written. How much truth is contained in the advertisements and press releases from either side is something that the reading public does not know. It can only read and hear what is presented and form its own opinions. As in other "stories," the best-written and most acceptable will be the best sellers.

The public is, in many instances, bewildered by the flood of material fed to it for digestion. Its verdict in labor vs. management will probably be determined by a comparison of its own position and condition with those who are seeking something for themselves.

If labor is seeking too much, then the verdict will probably be against this side of the argument. If management's profits are too high and an employe is finding it "tough sledding" in this period of inflation and high prices, then the verdict will be adverse to management.

If the public knows that a business is prospering and its officers are doing well while the employes are subsisting on an archaic pay scale, management will be the loser.

If union members or unorganized workers are being well paid in comparison to others in similar work in the area, further demands for more pay will be met with national, state or community disapproval.

Management has, in the past, created the climate which produced the foundation and growth of the labor movement. Both are now an established part of our economic picture and their ups and downs will be determined by their behavior.

Business will, of course, grow in the future if it is wise in its relations with the public and its workers. Collective labor will also grow with the growth of the nation and will spread to now unrepresented area just as fast as the climate for its growth is maintained by business.

used at the city dump and for street purposes. Bids will be opened Dec. 15 at 8 p.m. Bids were also called for on a new garbage truck of 13 cubic yards capacity mounted on a two ton heavy duty truck. These bids will also be opened at the Dec 15 meeting

The bid of the Phillippi Equipment company of Minneapolis to furnish a sander for street department use in street maintenance and sealcoating was accepted The firm's bid of $325 was low in comparison to bids of $1,195 by the Public Works Equipment Co of St. Paul, $1,028 by the St Cloud Foundry and Machine, Inc., $1,220 by the Swanston Equipment company of Fargo and two bids, $1,150 and $978, by the Zeco company of Minneapolis.

Home Lumber company's permit for a 52-80-foot warehouse addition located at Eighth st. and Davis ave. to cost $2,500 was tabled for further investigation.

Matters pertaining to the construction of a storm sewer in district three were brought to the council's attention when two residents appealed against assessment at this time when they had already been assessed for a project in 1922 which was never carried out. The discussion revealed that certain properties on First, Second and Third sts. between Main and Knight aves. were assessed for both pavement and storm sewer but that the storm sewer was never constructed.

Mrs. Clarence Joringdal, representing Mildred Remmen, owner of property at 123 Third st. W., and Oliver Gullingrud, city, appeared before the council asking that they not be assessed again. Robert Wurst, city attorney, opined that the matter should have been brought to the attention of the council during the assessment hearings and that he doubted that the council could legally do anything about the matter now. The council directed Wurst to check into the law to see what might be done.

The matter of the contract renewal between the city and Eugene Rondorf for rental of 75 acres of airport land was referred to the airport commission. Rondorf also asked that some adjustment in the rent be made for damage to his crop by the construction of the radio building at the airport.

Higher city scale fees will begin next week following the final reading of the ordinance change by the council and the publication of the notice in the Times Monday. The first reading of an ordinance increasing the number of volunteer firemen by two men was also heard.

The matter of possible service of natural gas to Thief River Falls was discussed The city attorney revealed that the Midwest Gas Transmission company has enough surplus gas to service the city and would not oppose an application to the federal government The first step before such an application could be filed would be for the city to have a feasibility report made which was estimated to cost $10,000 Total cost of securing service was estimated at $1,100,000 Following some discussion, the city attorney was directed to inquire into the possibility of a firm Northern States Power company and Ottertail Power company being mentioned in the discussion, taking over the project to the city as a franchise

The council granted the request of Robert Wurst to attend the Nov. 20 meeting of the League of Minnesota Municipalities in Minneapolis which will also be attended by Mayor O. D. Belch.

P. G. Pederson, city clerk, was instructed to contact officials of North Central airlines to ask that a formal proposal be made to the city for additional space in the municipal airport administration building for the airline's use. An informal request had previously been made.

The city clerk was directed to pay the county auditor $10,000 from liquor dispensary earnings for the county court house building fund.

Two appointments to city commissions by Mayor O. D. Belch were approved by the council Robert Lund was named to the cemetery commission for a five-year term effective immediately and William LaFave was reappointed for a three-year term on the civil service commission, the term to end Dec. 15, 1962.

A resolution accepting the canvass of votes in the general city election of officials and on the bond issue of $225,000 was adopted.

A request by the Chamber of Commerce for $500 for Christmas decorations was whittled down to $300 by the council which added the provision that this amount would have to be matched by a like or greater amount by the Chamber.

The proposal of D. H. Stewart and Associates for engineering services in connection with the construction of additional water facilities for the city was approved by the council. First step in the work will be the preparation of working drawings and specifications for which the city will pay 7 ½ of the actual costs of construction.

The elevated tank will be built on property now owned by the city in the eastern part of Thief River Falls Sites mentioned for the location of the underground storage reservoir included the land immediately north of the water treatment plant which is owned by the Soo Line Construction of the facilities is expected to begin next year During the discussion the possibility of increased water rates was explored again.

Resolutions were approved for the payment of several estimates and for work completed including: $105,707.84 to Central States Construction company for estimate number one in the construction of the storm sewer in district three; $910.95 to Infilco, Inc., as the final estimate for the recarbonator at the water plant; $107.50 to K. Russell Anderson for architect's services in connection with the Riverside park comfort station; $3,209.50 to the state of Minnesota as a final accounting in the construction of traffic signals for which the state pays 50%; and $7,272.31 to the Harry Dahl Construction company as a partial estimate in the construction of the new entrance road and sewage disposal system at the municipal airport. On the final item, two thirds of the construction cost will be recovered from the state.

Police Chief Reminds of Security Lapses in T.R. Falls Stores

Cash registers may ring merrily this coming Christmas season — but Thief River Falls merchants will have worries, too

For with the gay, joyous masses of greenback-bearing humanity, some less desirable members of society are expected to celebrate the holiday season in their own peculiar fashion.

To call a spade a spade, they're usually known as shoplifters, pickpockets or just plain thieves.

In order to cope with the dubious talents of these social misfits, Police Chief Elton Cummings has reminded Don M. Olson, chairman of the merchants committee of the Chamber of Commerce, that he has noticed nine "security lapses" in store operations.

According to Chief Cummings, here's what the stores must guard against:

1. Unauthorized persons may wander through offices, ask for work or use some other excuse to be on the premises.
2. Front offices are left unguarded with ladies purses around. ("This type of theft occurs with monotonous regularity," the chief noted.)
3. Merchandise is left unguarded on streets or loading docks.
4. Fully loaded trucks with keys in the ignition are left open in parking areas.
5. Cash on hand far in excess of needs, is totaled in public view at the end of the day.
6. Some stores keep inadequate night lights, particularly in the area of the store safe.
7. Also: inadequate "fire boxes" in lieu of a safe. ("A good safe is an excellent investment," the merchants are advised.)
8. Skylights, windows, fire escapes and roof hatches are not protected.

gates are Cater and Gusa and alternates are Keith Dyrud and Bill Halvorson of Middle River.

Andy Erickson of Badger was named Roseau county chairman, M. B. Magnuson of Roseau was elected vice-chairman and Clifford Skime of Roseau was named secretary-treasurer. Producer delegates are Erickson and Magnuson and alternates are Wendell Swan of Greenbush and Elmer Monsrud of Roseau.

Andy Erickson of Badger was again reelected regional chairman of the American Dairy Association.

The morning session of the program was opened at 10 a.m. by the regional chairman, Andy Erickson, and was followed by a report of the regional Dairy Day by Stuart McLeod, chairman of the event. Following the election of officers, the meeting adjourned until the afternoon session.

Howard Ryan, publicity director, and Dick Tretaven, merchandising director, reported on the Minnesota Instate A.D.A. program and were followed by a presentation of the national A.D.A. program by the MDIC staff, headed by Lew Conlon, manager. The staff and Andy Erickson then discussed the Princess Kay of the Milky Way contest and were followed by a talk by Betty Jax, the present holder of the princess title

The meeting was adjourned following the reading of financial and membership reports.

J. M. Roche, Pennington county savings bond sales director, in behalf of the Minnesota savings bond division, presented Clarence W. Mattson, business manager of the TRF Times, with a citation from the U. S treasury department in recognition of the newspaper's participation in the bond promoton campaign.

Rep. Langen stated that the last session of Congress had failed to enact laws to relieve the farm problem, adding that this failure was due in part to the inability of the various farm groups to agree on any particular program. It is a difficult matter, he pointed out, to increase farm income and at the same time to bring production into balance with demand.

Langen cited the present $9 billion item of interest on the public debt as a strong argument against this nation allowing itself to incur any additional indebtedness.

He also stated that legislation enacted this year to halt some of the abuses of labor union leaders was a direct result of pressure brought to bear by the general public thru letters, telegrams and personal appeals This, he said, demonstrates that representative government still functions.

Langen challenged the Chamber of Commerce to exert a maximum of effort in local, state and national government.

Speaking of the need for such effort on the local and state level, the Ninth district lawmaker pointed to the many fears being expressed about federal government growing too large and too directive.

"This practice," he said, "is encouraged because there has not been displayed a full degree of responsibility by state and local units of government toward problems that might better be dealt with at those levels."

On the national level, Langen stated that our government and its efforts for peace and a sound fiscal policy will be no stronger than the extent to which the people participate in it, rather than are recipients of it.

A spirited question and answer period followed the congressman's talk.

The 4-H'ers that had done outstanding work in their project, received their award pins.

A very interesting program was presented. Thelma Peterson, chairwoman, led in community singing with action nursery songs which led to laughter from the young and old.

Mrs. Clarence Peterson showed her skill in making delicious Norwegian sandbakkels. She showed us several ways they can be attractively wrapped for Valentine or birthday treats. Gladys Harder and Doris Kaushagen presented a skit about how sick a person can get when listening to another one's ailments. Ed Berggren favored us with two accordion solos.

Calling All Hockey Fans

Senior and junior and midget and peewee hockey fans are advised that a meeting was called for the purpose of organizing a hockey booster's club here in town, will be held in the basement meeting room at the Eagles club tonight, Thursday, at 8 p.m.

Clarence Arntz has been busily engaged in contacting many of the proponents for today's meeting and he tells us that everything is in readiness.

The purpose in organizing a hockey booster's club is to certain the interest in the ice sport, and to encourage the kids to participate in it. Many cities have been active in sponsoring the hockey program. It is not just the intention of the new organization to "take over" any of the programs, but it is hoped that through cooperation it will be able to give assistance to those clubs and groups, and prevent a duplication of effort.

At tonight's meeting, the senior hockey "fathers" executive will discuss the prospects and plans for the 1959-60 season. Everything is in readiness, it appears, and it is probable that the Northwest Hockey League will be a four-team circuit this season, with Thief River Falls, Crookston, Roseau and Fargo, N. Dak., the participating teams.

Lube's basketball squad is shaping up fairly well, with the hockey practice series over. The Steelers, with coach Gene Jack handling the varsity squad, are busily tutoring the junior B squad, will begin their schedule on Dec. 15, playing Negin Gantsevo's Grand Forks Junior B squad.

And the Prowler wrestling squad, coached by Charles DeCrory and Dale Folgert, are given daily workouts in preparation for their first regular match, which will be against Greenbush, at Greenbush, on Dec. 10, a Thursday.

Mrs. Jimmy (Alfreda) Anderson will again conduct the ice skating lessons at the Arena rink. Mrs. Anderson is a graduate of the teach group and individual skating course of the Minneapolis Figure Skating club.

And the Prowler wrestling squad, coached by Charles DeCrory and Dale Folgert, are given daily workouts in preparation for their first regular match, which will be against Greenbush, at Greenbush, on Dec. 10, a Thursday.

Lube was hunting in the area near Lake Bronson recently, and when he was approached by a bear and her two cubs in their den in an uprooted tree, he let out a whinning and snuffling sound, and thinking that a pack of hounds had downed a deer, he attempted to drive the animals off his kill. Mother bear and her cubs left the den he realized that he had discovered her. One of the cubs was trying to crawl into the den and the other was playing over with some grizzled old tree stump.

Lube, who is not camera shy, set off the two cubs, and then he finished off the one-beer. He estimated that the bruins ran from 40 to 60 pounds apiece, and the cubs is that the term for a she-bear?) at about 200 pounds.

Prowler Winter Sports

Prowler winter sports activity got under way this week, with the basketball squad, which the Baskerville hockey and wrestling squads engaged in drills in practice sessions for the 1959-60 season.

Three Prowler basketball games—the 2 squads—are scheduled for this week. The B squad under coach Dick Lelland have been playing the high school gymnasium court. The C squad under coach Dick Eckland will be engaged in drills in the Auditorium as soon as the basketball and backboards have been installed. Incidentally, the high school gymnasium court will be outfitted with glass backboards.

The Prowlers will begin their home play on Tuesday, Dec. 1, when they meet Red Lake Falls at Red Lake Falls.

The city arena has been a busy spot within the past few days as the ice-makers are busily engaged in putting down the ice sheet. The Prowlers are giving Owner Lube, Ted Duffy and Chuck Daniel considerable assistance in getting the Arena in shape for the hockey practice series.

Other contestants at the Tuesday evening meeting were those who had Flying Pan into the Finals, which concerned the safety in the woods.

David Drotts to Direct February Heart Fund Drive

Local Insurance Man to Have Charge of Campaign in Pennington County

David A. Drotts, Thief River Falls, has been named Pennington county chairman of the 1960 Heart Fund drive. The appointment was announced by Hilding Anderson of Warren, regional chairman.

The 1960 Heart drive will take place next February. State goal has been set at $230,000, of which Pennington county's share of the state's goal has been set at $2,500.

The Association raises funds throughout Minnesota each February to carry out active and expanding programs of research, education, and community service, Anderson said. Last year, more than 1,000 persons received grants-in-aid for research into the causes and cures of heart disease.

The drive last year raised nearly $600,000 in a record campaign. Of the total, $1,080,000 was contributed by the people of Minnesota in memory of loved ones. Minnesota Heart Association officials began to hope for an appreciable reduction for the current year. However, September and October have been the worst two months in Minnesota's history. Casualties from Wisconsin, Michigan, the Great Lakes Patrol Commission, Bureau of Commercial Fisheries, and U.S. Fish and Wildlife.

Pedestrian Deaths Increase in October

Pedestrian deaths in Minnesota took a big jump during October when 18 were killed with 12 of the deaths occuring in urban areas, the Minnesota Safety council indicates this was the heaviest monthly fatality toll since October 1950 when 23 deaths were tallied in one month.

October was the second month this year in which there was a double figure for the walking dead since February of this year. Previously, the monthly toll has ranged from three to nine.

With the big jump in pedestrian deaths, the trend of deaths for the first 10 months of 1959 is running ahead of last year. There were 67 deaths in traffic during October, which brought the death toll to 371 per cent less than the same period a year ago—compared to a rise of 3 per cent for the end of September.

After six months beginning with March 1959 when traffic death tolls were from 16 to 25 per month, the fatalities jumped to 35 in July, 39 in August, and 40 in September. Minnesota Safety officials began to hope for an appreciable reduction for the current year. However, September and October have been the worst two months in Minnesota's history. GROWING WITH YOUR CHILD

Written Especially for Our Readers

As we have said before, the middle years of childhood from age 6 to 12 are the forgotten years. The baby is the center of attention, the adolescent is the problem, although 2 ranks as just the kind of a person who gives the impression that not much help is needed. Nevertheless, during this time. Well, is there?

Let's look at the word "teen" in the season adults are usually aware of what is going on in the world of the child. He is living in the same world as we do much of the time. But it is only when the "gang" (and we don't like that word) gets into trouble.

The youngest members of this age (6-12) are still strongly home - and - parent - bound, but they are beginning to find that the security parts of the family, the eagerness of the third grader to be in the circle—is recognized by the older children in the neighborhood as a nuisance.

Once in the gang, however, the child's loyalties swing to the gang always welcomes him. One of the most distressing things to the parent is the new attitude toward his parents. Only lately he has been proud of his father's job. Or he was delighted to go to school, and he enjoyed his teacher. Suddenly parents who simply don't understand children during the pre-school and even the early middle years are suddenly wise and kind. Teachers are simply super heroes and people who simply don't understand what it means to be a child.

Exactly what is there to understand about this raging set? Most of children indicate that this is a period in which many different skills are learned and this learning isn't confined to the school year. Learning to act in an acceptably way means trying out all sorts of roles and testing them in terms of consequences. The result of the child is in many ways a child, wild at least, and the gang is the important source of ideas. The kids are the begin ning of independence from the family. Many of the ideas are made up through loyalty to the gang. While this group new skills can be tried out, new roles can be assumed and progress made the hours spent with agemates.

QUESTIONS answered for VETERANS

Q—I have some talent in art, and I am eligible for training under the G. I. Bill, Vocational Education Act. Can I take correspondence courses under the War Orphans program?

A—Yes, if you have had a year of actual type of work before the college level. Considerable art work is offered and will be quite in order.

Q—I recently had a little wind. Call of money. Can I pay off part of my GI insurance in advance without the broker making a penalty charge?

A—Yes, that is possible under the law. You may pay off any part of your mortgage at any time, and there will be no penalty charge whatever. The advance sum paid must be not less than $100 or one monthly payment, whichever is smaller.

Q—How does a veteran get into a VA hospital? Is there a priority?

A—Yes. Emergency cases are admitted first, then service-connected cases, then veterans injured in line of duty, then service-connected cases, if a hospital bed is available, and the veteran is unable to pay for private care.

Q—A friend of mine, a disabled veteran, was injured while training under VA's vocational rehabilitation program. Can he get a VA hospital? Is there a priority?

A—Yes. Emergency cases are admitted first, then service-connected cases, if a hospital bed is available, and the veteran is unable to pay for private care.

"For the most part, the traffic in athletic scholarships constitutes one of the greatest educational swindles ever perpetrated on American youth. Its aim is not the education of that youth but the entertainment of its elders, not the welfare of the athlete but the pleasure of the spectator."

—President A. Whitney Griswold of Yale.

Hold The Line Now or Have More Inflation

The bus drivers' strike in the Twin Cities is not in itself going to affect adversely the economy of the nation. Even in the communities that now are without bus service there seems to be little inconvenience. Most families have cars of their own. Car pools are popular and even hitchhiking is encouraged.

While we have no direct interest in the strike, we do have an indirect interest. The settlement of one strike influences the wage trend elsewhere. Each strike that brings wage increases encourages more strikes, and so the result of a local strike may have more than local importance.

Some strikes may be justified. There always will be justification for wage adjustments among individuals and even among groups. It would not be good to freeze all wages at their present levels and decree that no upward revisions could be made.

But if we are going to hold the line against further inflation then all across-the-board wage and salary increases should be discouraged, and permitted only when the need for equalization is clearly proven.

If this approach is right then the steel workers should not have a wage increase. And if this approach is right, and if the figures on wages for bus drivers in the Twin Cities and in other large cities are correct, as they have been reported, then the Twin Cities strike is not justified.

Wage and salary boosts that result in increased costs for goods or services, or higher taxes, are not in our best interests as a nation. In recent years little of the benefits of increased efficiency has been passed along to the consumer in the form of lower prices. Wage increases have been followed by price increases, and the dollar has lost buying power.

This is the trend that must be stopped and reversed if we are going to remain solvent and competitive in a world that is rapidly becoming more competitive. We no longer enjoy a monopoly on mass production methods. Other nations now are highly industrialized, and they are getting machines that are just as good as ours. More than one million foreign made automobiles are already rolling over American highways. The St. Lawrence Seaway opened the gate for European steel products to be delivered at Duluth at prices far below the cost of American products.

These are matters of concern for all of us. We are pricing ourselves out of world markets and inviting world competition in our own markets. Wage and tax increases that must be reflected in still higher prices are suicidal.

The longer we put off the unpleasant task of holding the line the more difficult it becomes. We have a fair start at the present time. Let's not let the situation get out of hand again.

The Immediate Need

The Tracy Headlight Herald is hopeful that Governor Freeman is right in his prediction that Minnesota's greatest period of growth will take place during the next 15 years, but is skeptical about the governor's statement that the only requirement for such a good result is that we be good salesmen. The editor thinks there is a question as to whether "pure salesmanship will gain the ends we all so greatly desire."

He thinks that in order to accomplish that end we must make Minnesota an attractive place in which to live and do business. And the first thing we need to do, he says, is to create a more favorable climate for industry, "which, after all, must lead the way."

The best of salesmen cannot do a good job of selling unless he has a product that compares favorably with the products of his competitors.

Here in Minnesota we have some natural advantages and some natural disadvantages. There isn't much we can do about the disadvantages nature has imposed upon us. We must make the best possible use of the advantages we have been favored with. The important thing is not what has been given to us but rather what we have done and are doing with what has been given to us. To what extent we develop our natural resources will be an important factor in our future growth.

And another very important factor in the future growth will be the manner in which we manage our public affairs. The results of the management of our government at its various levels are reflected in taxes. Taxes serve as a dependable yardstick for measuring the quality of government and making comparisons between competing states and communities. Poorly managed states and communities have financial difficulties and heavy tax burdens. Well managed states and communities live within their means, provide essential services and then whatever frills they can afford. Well managed states and communities keep their financial problems under control.

We agree with the Tracy editor that before we can do a good job of selling our state we must do a good job of managing the affairs of our state, and that we are not doing under the leadership of Governor Freeman. It would not be fair to blame Mr. Freeman for all of the state's financial difficulties. Some of them he inherited, and partially to blame for all of them is the legislature. But Governor Freeman has not given the state sound leadership in meeting the state's problems. He has always been on the side of the spenders and he has encouraged trick financing to relieve temporarily the pain of rising costs.

We agree with Mr. Freeman that we have a selling job to do but the first stage of that selling job is right here at home, restoring sound management and good government. When we have our own affairs in good order it will be much less difficult to attract industry. Once Minnesota gets the reputation of being a well managed state we won't need to worry about industrial development.

United Effort

In his always interesting column in the Murray County Herald, Bob Forrest wondered last week if the millenium is on the way. The reason for his wondering is a home for the aged being built in New Richmond, Wisconsin, sponsored by eight local churches which he listed as follows:

"The churches backing the plan are the Assembly of God Church, Immaculate Catholic, St. Thomas Episcopal Church, The Federated Church, First Lutheran Church, St. Luke's Lutheran Church, First Baptist Church and the Emmanuel Evangelical United Brethren."

We agree with Bob that this is encouraging evidence of harmony, which we are sure is in the best interests of the religion that provides a common background for all of these denominations. And we are sure too that New Richmond is a better and a happier community because of this harmony.

'Thank You Thief River Falls'

In its November issue of Land O'Lakes News, Land O'Lakes Creameries, Inc. devotes considerable space to a report covering the Thirty Years of Progress celebration that was held here last month. The magazine also contained an editorial "Thank You" that we are glad to pass along to Times Readers.

For the Old Timers who were here and can recall the problems of the troublesome 'twenties, the importance of the establishment of a Land O'Lakes branch in this area is understood. For them the Thirty Years of Progress celebration was a well-deserved tribute to Land O'Lakes and to others who contributed to the recovery of our very sick community at that time and in later years. And for them the willingness of the community to pause at this time and look back upon a period of discouragement and failure, from which a successful recovery was made, was most gratifying.

And it now is gratifying to know that the organization that was recognized for the contribution it has made to the progress of our area, is glad it decided to locate a branch here. Here is its editorial "Thank, You Thief River Falls"

"This past month the celebration staged at Thief River Falls to commemorate the coming of Land O'Lakes Creameries to that city 30 years ago brings to mind what can be done when businessmen of a small town and farmers cooperate.

"Thief River Falls had many men of vision. They also had leaders, who yet today are recognized for their leadership and unselfish community service. To them and to those many others who have followed, Land O'Lakes wishes to say "Thank You" for your fine cooperation.

"In addition, no great success would have come of the venture had not thousands of farmer patrons used the services and marketing facilities. Land O' Lakes says "Thank You" for your fine support.

"To the many employees, past and present, who have and are working faithfully and loyally, Land O'Lakes says "Thank You." Each segment has made 30 years in Thief River Falls by Land O'Lakes a success and a part of your expanding community."

There's nothing like a new car—and no new car like a Chevrolet. This is the 1960 Chevrolet Bel Air Sport Coupe!

PEOPLE SAY THESE ARE THE THINGS THEY WANT IN A CAR...and CHEVROLET for '60 comes closest to meeting every need!

Interviews with thousands of car owners across the country show clearly what they like or dislike about their present cars . . . and what they want most in their 1960 cars. Here's what the people tell us they want . . . and here's how Chevrolet meets their needs.

"Price, that's what's uppermost in my mind." All Impalas and Bel Airs with V8 engines are lower in price, as are automatic transmissions and many other popular options. Also Biscaynes now include as standard equipment conveniences formerly optional at extra cost.

"And how about operating economy? And resale value?" You keep right on saving after you buy your favorite Chevrolet, too. And Chevrolet's traditionally higher resale value means you'll get more back when you trade.

"Give me plenty of good old-fashioned comfort." There's comfort and then some in this one. Chevy's long on space, for one thing. Once you're under way you'll know just how comfortable Full Coil suspension makes your ride.

"Safety—don't forget safety!" You're surrounded by safety features in a new Chevrolet. You've got big, sturdy brakes underfoot, for example, that last longer. As it has been for years, safety is standard equipment in Chevy.

"Let's keep upkeep down, too." More than ever, Chevrolet for 1960 is built to stay on the road and out of the repair shop. You can tell that from its hushed, unruffled way of going, from the solid thunk of Chevy's big doors. Of course, if you should need service, you're always near efficient, economical attention to your needs.

"I want a car that will stand up to the driving I do." For proof of Chevy's staying power, just spend a minute watching the nearest road. You'll see more Chevrolets traveling on it than any other car—evidence-on-wheels of Chevrolet durability. (And that higher resale value attests to it, too.)

"Ride for a sweet-handling car." Handling's always been Chevy's forte, and 1960 is no exception. But really, this kind of lightness and precision you've simply got to enjoy for yourself.

"...a car you can look at and be smug about buying it." Chevrolet for 1960 leaves the low-price field far behind when it comes to fashion. But you're the best judge of styling; so take a good close look at Chevrolet. We warn you: you're about to fall in love.

"And performance. Let's have a hot one!" Chevy's spirited V8's have set the standard for ultra-efficient power in American-built passenger car engines. You've got a long list of performance-minded transmissions to pick from, too.

So that, friends, is what you told us you want. We think it can be summed up rather well in just one word: value.

C.C. Gives Advice on Photo Registry Plan

Mr. Green cited the National Child Welfare Association, of which the Chamber is affiliated through membership, as stating that "photo registry or "baby book" promoters are fleecing thousands of dollars from gullible parents who are led to believe that the safety or welfare of their child may earn $5.00 or more for use in advertising.

Here's how the scheme works, it was explained.

"A 'baby book' is a collection of photos of would-be models published for profit by a promoter at the expense of the parents of contestants. The contestants are not generally considered, because (1) the usual quality of most of the photographs makes it impossible for anyone to judge whether the youngster is suitable; (2) the children are photographed in their own homes, where they appear at their most natural; and (3) they are not involved in dealing directly with the promoter, which is considered prohibitive.

Chambers of Commerce were warned to be on the lookout for advertisers do not use "baby books" as a source of child photos. They carry their photos through their advertising agencies who use commercial photographers and professional models. Photos submitted are returned, because (1) the usual quality of most of the photographs makes it impossible for anyone to judge whether the youngster is suitable; (2) the children are photographed in their own homes, where they appear at their most natural; and (3) they are not involved in dealing directly with the promoter, which is considered prohibitive.

Meditations While Deer Hunting

Certainly the most interesting and probably the most profound thinking of the year takes place inside of red caps in November, without distraction of telephones, conferences, office, factory, or problems of office, factory, or home except the animal, but in a day or two these problems are either solved or relegated to their proper position of insignificance by the more imaginative part of the brain taken out.

What do you think about while waiting for the deer that doesn't appear? I invent things—value-

DAHLBERG HEARING CENTER

ble things like jerkins made from electric blankets operating from a pocket battery, padded parka which make anyone look level and soft, and automatic rifle reports of Rivoton rifling that will serve as paper over the hood over a hunting cap.

Then, of course, dividing whether shooting a doe is manly luck or manly skill is always good for several hours of meditation. I've really learned from the experiences of other people's deer hunting. I've learned what types of hunting and fishing that the people I meet start the conversation like this—"So you're the game and fish director. Let me tell you about something that happened in 1952 when I was hunting in Lake county." What follows is always interesting, but I'm sure the hunter will have a shot more game or caught more fish because I was not there to interrupt a game and fish direction. I'm sure he will tell his wife of course, these is a difference. You would like to be proud what you did wrong and you tell the game and fish director what he did wrong.

Getting back to the issue of deer hunting, I've been hunting for 30 years, all heard of the hunters who fall asleep on the stand and awaken to see a buck standing 100 feet away, so there must be some luck in this business. However, I've noticed that the hunter who is first out in the morning is not credited with something more than luck. In addition to skill in getting to the right place at the right time and good shooting they must have patience and perseverance. Both are needed to shut from cabin withdrawal.

Of course you wives must not think that just because Creigh didn't bring home a buck that he's not working hard nine days in the cabin drinking beer and playing cards. I've been drinking beer with him for fact, the other hunters who didn't connect will agree that the whole thing is luck and deer are so scarce the season probably never should have been opened. But I'm not so sure that the "unlucky" hunter doesn't come home more relaxed than the "skillful" fellow.

This is perhaps one of the few literary masterpieces ever to be written by a hunter who was clinging to the branches high in a tree. The critics will gasp

Report on Viking News of the Week

Mrs. Arne Samuelson, Viking, Ph. [illegible]

Here is what the Viking teachers have to say about the school since the beginning of the year:

by JoAnn Ness

On September 8, 13 new first graders were enrolled and nine second graders, making a total of 22 pupils in our room. The pupils had their first day of vacation Sept. 15, while the faculty attended rural institute at Warren. The first graders are reading in their pre-primers and the second are reading the New Friends and Neighbors. This month, we have bulletin boards on Thanksgiving and Book Week. We all enjoyed the carnival Oct. 13, the grade school operetta and the class play at Newfolden. Larry Mozinski, one of our first graders, left for Florida Nov. 2. We will be looking forward to seeing him in the spring.

by Mrs. H. Anderson, principal

I have the first and second graders for arithmetic, spelling and art while Miss Ness teaches music. The students have been working hard in their number work book. The second graders have started learning the easy number combination, telling time and counting money. They are now having a six-word spelling test each Friday. Last Friday [illegible]. The first graders are busy learning to make the letters and numbers and are doing very well. In art, we have made several Halloween things. Last Friday we each helped to make a large turkey.

by Ione Gustafson

We have been having an exciting nine weeks of school. There have been so many new things to learn and do. There are 17 pupils in our room now. Bonnie Mozinski left last week for Florida. The fourth grade received new geography books this year. They enjoy studying about boys and girls living in other countries and a lady showed us slides on Africa. In third grade, we have been busy, too. For social studies, we have been making a large map of Viking to display in our room. Last week was American Education week and parents visited our school.

by Arlene Melvie

There are now 25 boys and girls in our room with eight boys and 17 girls. We were sorry to have Mark Mozinski leave us again for the winter. We hope he will be back in the spring. Last Friday, we had our Halloween costume party in the gym. Gary Hook and Kenneth Bjorgaard won first place with their costumes. Contests and games were played and lunch was served. Mrs. Bert Kron baked a very beautiful Halloween cake. The following have perfect attendance in our room: Evonne Kvamme, Judy Skjerven, Jon Sorenson, Kathryn Kezar, Anita Kvamme, Eloise Weltzin, Alayne Berg, Donna DeMaranville, Gary Hook, Karen Kron and Marlys Stokke.

by Mrs. Hjalmer Martin

We all enjoyed a costume party last Tuesday evening at school. Janice Sabo and Kenneth Carlson were the winners. We have organized a 7th and 8th Fun club this year. We elect new officers every ninth week. The first nine weeks the officers are: president, Kenneth Carlson; vice president, Jerry Sorenson; secretary, Judy Berg and treasurer, Claudia Melvie.

Officers for thhe second nine weeks are: president, Janice Sabo; vice president, Keith Grandstrand; secretary, Claudia Melvie and treasurer, Judy Berg. We meet the fourth Friday of every month from 2 to 3 o'clock. We have a program, games and lunch. Those on the 7th grade honor roll the first nine weeks are: Claudia Melvie A-; Jerome Sorenson, B-plus; Judy Berg, B-plus; Llewelyn Gustafson, B-plus and Jerome Bjorgaard, B. Those on the 8th grade honor roll are: Janice Sabo, A; Kenneth Carlson, A-; Judith Weitzin, B-plus; Geraldine Kvamme, B-plus and Orletic Melvie, B-plus. Our attendance has been good so far. Those who have perfect attendance are Janice Sabo, Judith Weitzin, Duane Oberg, Marsha DeMaranville and Jerome Sorenson.

Monday evening, Nov. 9, the PTA attendance was the biggest of the year with approximately 75 present. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. O. Swanson, followed by silent prayer, the singing of "America" and routine business. Parents were asked to sign their names in the child's room. Points will be given, one to mothers and two to fathers, and a prize will be given at the end of the year for the most parents. Being Education week, an invitation was extended to attend open house at the school Friday from 2 to 3 p.m. with coffee served. As the PTA membership is not completed, the booklets for the year were not ready, but will be out at the December meeting. Two reports on the Fall Workshop conference at Red Lake Falls were given by Mrs. Swanson and Mrs. Maynard Ranum on polio shots and parent and family life. The scholarship was discussed. Percy Hagen was in charge of the program which included an instrumental number by Darrell and Allan Swenson, Bobby Anderson and Billy Marquis of Rosewood; Arne Samuelson gave the financial report of the school; a duet, "Mansion on the Hilltop," by Mrs. LeRoy Sustad and Mrs. Ranum; Leonard Larson gave two readings, "What is a Teacher?" and "Rules for a Teacher in 1872." Miss JoAnn Ness played a piano solo and another instrumental number closed the program. Mrs. Clarence Kezar won the door prize. New SNOBOY apple and JELL-O Salad!

SNOBOY will send you 35c . . . the cost of your salad. Simply mail in front panel from a JELL-O box and coupon from a SNOBOY apple bag to: SNOBOY, Minneapolis 40, Minnesota. Limit one offer per family.

From General Foods Kitchens comes a new salad idea: crisp, juicy fanned apples . . . zingy from flavored Jell-O . . . sparkling ginger ale for a salad so pretty as it is bright and refreshing!

WALDORF ZIP

1 package Apple or Lemon JELL-O
1 cup hot water
1 cup ginger ale
1 cup diced unpeeled SNOBOY apples
½ cup thinly sliced celery
½ cup chopped nuts

Dissolve JELL-O in hot water. Add ginger ale. Chill until slightly thickened. Then fold in apples, celery, and nuts. Pour into individual molds, chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce. Makes 6 servings.

JELL-O is a registered trademark of General Foods Corp.

Why there is no apple like a SNOBOY

Soil, sun and temperature work in unique combination in the famed Yakima-Wenatchee Valley of Washington State to produce Snoboy's vivid coloring, extra juiciness and flavor! Then Snoboys are selected from the finest orchards.

Every apple has its day—the day when its flavor peak is reached. On that exact day, Snoboy field inspectors order the apples picked—and they specify the sun-drenched apples from the top and outside of the finest trees!

Within the hour after picking, Snoboy apples are rushed to cool storage rooms. There, at a constant 31 degrees, the flavor "matures" . . . starches change to natural fruit sugars . . . and Snoboy inspectors say "Ship!"

Once they've fully matured and ready to ship, Snoboy apples are showered, sized, wrapped and packed by hand to protect against bruising during shipment . . . to guard Snoboy's brilliant flavor!

Snoboy's tree-to-grocer control continues as the apples are rushed in cool, cool trucks to your grocery store. There, time after time, you get the famous Snoboy quality . . . true picked for flavor quality!

To enjoy all the eating pleasure Snoboy has worked so hard to promote, do your share! Always keep your Snoboys in the refrigerator until you eat them. Then they will be full-flavored and crisp!

Stepped-up Program to Boost Lambs, Wool

Lamb and wool produced in the United States will receive the added boost from promotion and advertising funds to be raised by a stepped-up program by the American Sheep Producers Council.

The council's board of directors, all sheep growers representing every part of the country, authorized the accelerated program at a meeting in Denver. Purpose of the increase in promotion and advertising efforts will be to help reverse to sheep producers on both lamb and wool.

The directors authorized the organization to spend more than the 4250 "assessments" in its promote and advertise domestic wool and American made wool products.

Don Clyde, of Heber City, Utah, president of the council, said the council will cooperate and coordinate its activities in wool advertising and promotion with other wool agencies.

The council's current budget, which ends Dec. 31, calls for expenditures of $1,000,000 and is to be increased slightly for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

For the lamb phase of the program, the directors called for an allied committee with representatives of all segments of the livestock and meat industry participating to discuss all problems of lamb promotion and marketing.

Clarence Miller, executive secretary for the National Wool Growers Association, said there is no doubt that the ASPC has done a good job of increasing consumer demand for wool. "We have had increased prices which is operative, but that there are basic problems that need to be solved before greater success can be attained. He pointed out that the retail price of lamb has held high and that the price of wool to the grower has not been reflected in low prices.

The lamb promotion and advertising budget for the next fiscal year will be increased slightly from its current level of $1,375,000.

County Residents Buy $27,687 Savings Bonds

Purchases of the new 2½% Series E and H savings bonds in October, 1959, totaled $27,687 in Pennington county, bringing the total of bonds purchased since 1941 to $7,271,000, according to a report for 1959, J. M. Roche, county chairman, announced today.

Savings Bonds purchases in Pennington in the first 10 months of 1959 totaled $500,113,867 and were 7.6 per cent of the 1959 quota.

From the dawn of human history, man has gazed with awe and fascination across the horizon. What secrets are buried in the sea's vast bosom and what strange lands and peoples and adventures are out there beyond the sunset?

The unknown has always presented a mystery and a challenge to mankind. Many have faced it with fear and shrinking. Others have accepted its challenge and have opened up new vistas of human knowledge.

Those who live and search in the Everlasting Light, His Holy Word, need have no fear of what lies beyond the oceans of water, the oceans of human experience, or the oceans of human thought. For the land and the sea are God's, and He rules in the kingdom of man.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Low Temperature in Oven Best for Turkey

Low oven temperature is the secret to tunning out golden brown, delicious turkey for the holiday meal, Mrs. Mildred Swanson, Home Service director for Northern States Power company, advised when preparing the Thanksgiving bird.

Don't pull the turkey the night before you plan to serve it, Miss Swanson cautioned. The best procedure is to remove the bird from the refrigerator about two hours before roasting. It should be at room temperature, such as 250 degrees F. Then temperature will not drop enough to cause bacteria to grow, and the turkey will require a somewhat longer cooking time. Miss Mildred suggests that you follow the following directions on the wrapping of the frozen turkey.

Place the turkey on a rack in a shallow roasting pan. Brush the skin with vegetable shortening during roasting. Brushing the skin with fat helps to prevent dryness, but is optional but is not necessary. Do not add water and do not cover the pan. Insert a meat thermometer in the thickest part of the inner thigh muscle next to the body, but not touching bone. Set the thermometer for 185 degrees F. Then temperature will register accurately when the bird is done. Roast the turkey at 325 degrees F. Do not preheat the oven. Allow 25 minutes per pound for a 10 to 16 pound turkey. Allow 20 minutes per pound for a 16 to 20 pound turkey. Allow 15 minutes per pound for a turkey over 20 pounds.

Gibbins and neck may be simmered in water to be used in the broth used for gravy.

Don't stuff the turkey the night before you plan to serve it. Stuffing should be prepared and stuffed into the bird just before roasting. It can be prepared ahead of time and refrigerated overnight for Thanksgiving. During the cooking period, the stuffing should reach 165 degrees F. to kill bacteria. Otherwise it may cause stomach upset or food poisoning.

If there are leftovers of turkey and dressing, store them in the refrigerator as soon as you have finished eating.

Nuptial vows were exchanged Saturday, Nov. 14, at the Bethany Lutuheran church of rural Thief River Falls, by Miss Arlene Peterson of Thief River Falls and Douglas Peterson of Plummer.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Peterson of Thief River Falls and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Peterson of Plummer.

Miss Virginia Walsberg of Thief River Falls, friend of the bride, was maid of honor, wearing a street length sheath dress of green with matching accessories, and a corsage of pink roses. Attending the bridegroom as best man was Dennis Hallstrom of St. Hilaire.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlors for 45 relatives and friends. Hosts for the occasion were the bride's parents. A two-tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom, centered the serving table. Mrs. Millard Peterson, aunt of the bride, cut and served the cake and also poured.

Upon returning from their honeymoon trip to Winnipeg Mr. and Mrs. Peterson are making their home on the bridegroom's father's farm.

Mrs. Peterson attended Lincoln high school and Mr. Peterson is a graduate of Lincoln high school with the class of 1955.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Martinson, Wayne and Jeniffer of Greenbush were Saturday evening supper guests at the Albert Swenson home.

Brunsdale Named Senator from N. D. to Succeed Langer

Appointed Thursday by Governor Davis to Serve until 1960 Election

North Dakota Republicans agree that Norman Brunsdale probably was the best choice for interim United States senator.

Gov. John E. Davis announced appointment of Brunsdale Thursday.

Brunsdale, Davis' predecessor as governor for three terms, will fill the seat of the late Sen. William Langer from January until June Langer died Nov. 8.

Brunsdale, 68, emphasized that he won't seek the senate post in June's state primary election.

Davis, who wants the job himself, probably will be the Republican nominee for the unexpired 4½ years of Langer's term.

State GOP leaders feel Brunsdale was a good choice for several reasons:

He has an outstanding record in his party, dating back to 1926 when he first was elected to the state senate.

He has been retired from active politics since 1956 and is about as noncontroversial as any appointee could be.

He is regarded by most North Dakotans, regardless of their political leanings as an honorable, respected man who will serve them well for six months.

Washington PTA Hears Panel Talks

An open house Wednesday, Dec. 16, at Washington elementary school will take the place of the annual Christmas program this year.

This announcement was made at the regular meeting of the school's P.T.A. Monday evening, Nov. 16, which was highlighted by a panel discussion on "The Challenge of our Youth Today."

Moderator of the panel discussion was Reuben Lockrem. Ray Henderson represented the schools in the discussion, Rev. Harold Johnson spoke in behalf of the churches, Orin Green spoke for the community and Mrs. Sig Folkedahl represented the parents. The discussion was followed by a question and answer period.

Fully 350 Attend Hearing on County & Township Govt.

the household goods tax and the smaller communities and rural areas have to pay even more to make up for it."

The feeling against the optional tax plan was predominant in the testimony. There was a division of opinion on the matter of assessors, with some wanting township assessors rather than county assessors and some wanting assessors appointed rather than being elected.

Although the matters of relief and education are not within the scope of the committee's hearings, they were brought up at the Friday meeting by representatives from Red Lake, Mahnomen and Beltrami counties. Equalization of assessments between counties was also asked by the Red Lake county spokesman and Chairman George explained that such is done by the commissioner of taxation.

Relief and school aid for Indian families off the reservations was asked by the Mahnomen representative and the official from Beltrami county spoke against the taxation of non resident districts for the capital improvements of districts where they send their students when the buildings are constructed and equipped to meet the needs of expanding school enrollments principally from the larger communities in which the schools are located.

OVER THE BACK FENCE

By STAN PETERSON

National Problem

The matter of the activities of a small percentage of the youngsters of our nation has, for the past several years, been a cause of growing concern.

It is easy to point the finger of blame and scorn at someone else, especially if that someone else is not in the position to fight back. What is more difficult, but probably more effective, would be for society as a whole to take a closer look at itself to discover, if it can possibly be the cause of some of this erratic behavior. Introspection might be distasteful but it might be good for the soul.

This is not in defense of the growing tide of lawlessness and misbehavior; rather it is the explanation of a possible cause for it. The matter was explored some time ago and was brought to attention again recently in a conversation.

The person who brought up the subject was one who is in the business of counseling young people. In his discussions with youngsters, he often asks the questions, "How often do you discuss things with your parents during the evening?" and "How often do you and your father go fishing and hunting together?"

"Here I am couseling others to get together more often as a family and I find that I am not spending much time with my own children," the counselor said. "It is seldom that we, as a family, have a chance to get together when I belong to several organizations, my wife belongs to others and the children also have their activities."

Is it possible that this is one of the things that is wrong with society today? Are we so busy with outside activities and in caring for the welfare of others that we are disregarding those with whom we should be most concerned—our own families?

What is the average daily life of many families today? Father leaves home after a sketchy breakfast about the time the children are just waking up. Mother rushes through breakfast preparations and the usual preschool battle of clothes, books and other items — then heaves a sigh of relief when the children are on their way. The family has begun another day with no hint of "togetherness."

At his work, the father looks at his calendar to discover that another meeting of one of his clubs or organizations is scheduled for noon. Mother's groups begin their meetings in the afternoon. The children at school discover that their organizations will be meeting after classes are over.

The end of the working day comes and, if there are no dinner meetings for Dad or Mother (a rare day), there will probably be club meetings or church meetings scheduled for one or both parents. The children, already tired by a full day, reluctantly sit down with their books. The weekends are hardly better.

In other words the normal day of a normal family is not normal. Members of the family have little contact with each other. Organizations on the outside, and there are no exceptions, take over the historical and natural functions of the family. Families have become only groups of people living under the same roof.

To some, this national rat race seems almost like a gigantic conspiracy to separate families—to decrease the dependency of family members on each other and to make organizations the basic unit of our social system.

Is it any wonder that there is often a complete lack of "closeness" between some children and their parents? Is it any wonder that they seek the companionship of others in a like predicament when none is shown at home? And is there any doubt that the outside activities of children with their groups and "gangs" is in direct ratio to how "active" their parents are in "clubwork" or the activites of other organizations, no matter how worthy?

Look around you. Pick out the most active "joiner" in your neighborhood, the most active workers in worthy causes. Do they fit this picture described? Multiply this family by the number in our community and you will get a small sample of the national problem.

This is an appeal for less activity for the betterment of our fellow men, less group activity to take us away from our homes and less "joining" to give people the excuse for shunning the responsibilities for which the institution of marriage was designed.

Let every organization, no matter how worthy or how sanctified, reduce its frequency of meetings by one-half to give us all a chance to catch our breath, get acquainted with our families and restore our lives to something resembling normalcy.

It might surprise some of us how much enjoyment we would get from the company of our own families. Above all, it would give our children the opportunity to have a home life—something some of them have never had.

We Need . . .

Now that the ice and snow are with us, local hockey fans are again expressing concern over the future of hockey in Thief River Falls.

Expansion of the arena, provision of practice areas and other matters are discussed but everything that is done and said will revolve around those already playing or who will be taking part in the sport in the next few years. Little is said or done to make certain that there will be a supply of future hockey players.

Rinks are provided within a few blocks of every child in the city. For the most part those on the east side, the ones which I am acquainted, were little used last year and will receive no more attention this year or in the future if some kind of warming facilities are not provided.

Mention "warming houses," and there is an immediate negative reaction that "it can't be done." Those opposing such construction can think up hurdle after hurdle which, when given a little thought, do not look either insurmountable or even moderately difficult. They mention, as the main objection, the policing of such facilities as something that "just can't be done" although other communities have somehow been able to do it without major difficulty for many years. A few letters to communities which have found warming houses possible would cost little and might produce some rather simple answers.

At the present time, children must either put on their skates while sitting in the cold or put them on at home and walk to the rinks to the delight of those who sharpen skates as a business and the despair of bill-paying parents and those who know that sharpened skates are a "must" for good skating.

Look out your front window when the youngsters are on their way to our city's rinks. Ask the mothers of the smaller fry what they think of the present system.

These young skaters are the future hockey players of Thief River Falls. They are not getting enough practice today to bring them up to the standard that hockey coaches would like to see. When colder weather comes, they will do little if any skating. These are part of the hockey problem that exists in our city.

Every year that the youngsters miss their practice will make the problem more acute. What are we going to do about it?

147 Deer Are Bagged on Mud Lake Refuge

According to figures released today by Manager Herb Dill, approximately 22,000 acres of the 61,000 acre Mud Lake Refuge were opened to deer hunting. The season ran from November 7-11. In 1958, 22,000 acres were opened.

A total of 147 deer were bagged in 1,079 hunter-days during the season for a success figure of 14%. In 1958, 90 deer were taken in 801 hunter days. Average success during the three seasons since 1957 has been 13%.

During the period 1949 thru 1956 when seasons were set later in the year, success averaged 11%. Hunting pressure has dropped by ½ since 1957.

Hunting conditions were good, said Dill. Fresh snow aided tracking and the marsh was frozen sufficiently to permit hiking to most parts of the area.

Thirty-four of the 87 Minnesota counties were represented. However, as in other years, 65% of the hunters came from Pennington, Marshall and Polk counties in that order. Eleven percent came from Hennepin county.

There were no accidents and the behavior of the hunters at the refuge was good, Dill stated.

Bemidji College To Get Dormitory

State Board Authorizes Building to Cost $753,000

Bemidji State college will be able to house 772 students on campus next fall due to action of the state college board which met at St. Paul last week.

C. R. Sattgast, president of BSC, announced that the board had approved the construction of the north wing of Pine Hall, a 200 bed men's dormitory at a cost of $753,000. Architects will be Melander and Friseleo, of Duluth.

The south wing of Pine Hall is currently under construction and is scheduled for occupancy May 1.

The new building will be financed under the revenue bond financing plan authorized by the 1959 session of the Minnesota legislature.

The college currently has 486 students housed in buildings normally planned to house 363. With the completion of the south wing of Pine Hall the college will be able to house 572 students and, when the building approved yesterday is completed 772 students will be housed on campus.

Leads for the 19th century drama go to Bruce E. Gronbeck, Crookston, as Governor; and Jon Olson, Milaca, as Khlestakov, according to Director Clair Haugen.

Supporting roles will be filled by a group of students including Carol Torgerson, Janet Torgerson and Stan Torgerson, all of Thief River Falls.

Performances will be given January 14-16 in Old Main auditorium, Concordia college, Moorhead.

Also scheduled are several out-of-town performances. The traveling Thespians will perform at Crookston January 8-9 and at Wadena January 12.

Slippery Streets Cause Many Minor Mishaps Saturday

Half-dozen Collisions Are Reported in City and One on Highway 59

Icy streets following the sticky weekend snowfall caused a rash of minor automobile collisions in the city, police reported today. All the mishaps occurred Saturday.

At 11:55 a.m. a car being turned off Atlantic av. onto Fourth st. by Gerald Johnson, city, struck a parked car on Fourth st. when the Johnson vehicle went out of control.

Both the Johnson car and the car owned by Mrs. Helen Bendickson, city, sustained $30 damages.

At 2:10 p.m. a car driven by Jeanette Arhart, city, was going south on Duluth av. when it was struck in the left front fender by another car driven west on Eighth st. by Mrs. Melvin Carlsen. Damage to the Arhart car was estimated at $35 to Carlson's, $95.

At 11:20 p.m. a car driven west on Third st. by Loren D. Joppru, rt. 1, struck another car driven in the same direction by Larry Haugen, city, when Haugen stopped at Main av. for a line of cars. The Joppru car was damaged to the extent of an estimated $40.

Several other mishaps in which damages were negligible were listed. Police urged that local drivers use extreme caution.

The highway patrol reported one minor collision near Kal's Automotive Service on highway 59 Sunday. Icy pavement also got the blame when cars driven by Joseph Havlik, Plummer, and Clifford Swanson, city, were involved in what was apparently a rear-end collision. Damage to the Havlik car was estimated at $45, to Swanson's, $75.

Drotts Back from Attending Heart Fund Workshop

Over 125 Heart Council and campaign volunteer leaders attended an enlightening eighth annual workshop held on November 13 and 14 at the Hotel Lowry in St. Paul. Friday's sessions were devoted to Heart Council organization and programming and the Saturday portion of the workshop dealt with plans for the 1960 Heart Fund campaign. In attendance was David Drotts, Pennington county chairman.

Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson

One Good Term Deserves Another

The local golf club members held their annual meeting on Thursday evening and, recognizing the effort and devotion that he had given to his job during the 1958-59 season, the membership re-elected Arnie Lee club president for the 1959-60 season.

We can testify to the fact that Arnie, as president this past season, put in long hours and toiled mightily in behalf of the club. And his re-election for another year was well-deserved. It's a job that requires patience and tact, and a willingness to accept responsibility.

It's remarkable, too, that Arnie's golf game was able to progress as well as it did last season, considering all the details of the club operation that he had to master, and the minor complaints and frievances he had to answer. In spite of these diversions, Arnie was a sharp operator off the first tee, where the various games and handicaps are arranged, being able to finagle a stroke or two in addition to his handicap. The Lee Benefit fund should have shown a pleasing surplus at the end of the season.

Taking Shape

In an informal scrimmage at the high school gymnasium on Thursday night, coach Hartley Story's squad were quite impressive as they rolled up a win by about fifteen or twenty points. The starters for the Prowlers had Ron Solheim and Bob Pearson at the forwards, Ron Hanson at center, and Steve Embury and Dave Hauswirth at the guards. Moving into the game, and given considerable playing time, were Don Ulferts, Gary Anderson, Darrell Nelson, Eddie Lietzow, and Elton Hornseth. Harvey Ebbighausen, also a varsity squad member, was not present for the scrimmage.

Hanson, a six-foot, seven-inch junior, was the game's high point player, with the lanky center dropping in eight field goals (during the scrimmage, personal fouls were called but they were not converted into a free throw tries, the ball being given to the fouled team on out-of-bounds), and he proved effective on rebounds against some aggressive opposition. Solheim and Pearson, too, were rolling the ball into the hoop with pleasing regularity, with Pearson hitting on some left-handed hook shots.

It is apparent that the Prowlers will have a better "bench" this season than for the past several seasons, with Ulferts and Anderson being available for forward line duty, Nelson and Lietzow at the guards, and Hornseth at center. Ebbighausen is a forward. It is hoped that Wayne Bjerken, a nimble playmaker, will join the squad shortly.

Miscellany

Doug Halcrow, the strong-armed righthander of the Drayton Junior Legion team of a couple of seasons ago, and last year a freshman at the University of North Dakota, is attending Mayville Techer college this year. Halcrow, who was a member of the Sioux frosh basketball squad last season, is a member of Mayville varsity cage squad this season . . . Bill Mosienko, the veteran Chicago Black Hawks wingman, was named coach of the Winnipeg Warroars, replacing 'f Pike who moved up to the New York Rangers of the National league. After completing his long career with the Black Hawks, Mosienko returned to his native Winnipeg and played three years with the Warriors. He retired from active play this season . . . Merle Hasz, the burly forward on last season's Ada club, the district 30 champions, is attending Moorhead State college. Hasz, who was also a standout on Ada's baseball club, is a member of the Dragon's varsity basketball squad, being a promising guard candidate.

40,000 Tons of Sugar Beets Frozen in the Ground in RR Valley

Forty thousand tons of sugar beets—worth over $500,000 to the farmers who grew them—are frozen in the ground in the Red River Valley and written off as lost.

That's the report of O. A. Holkesvig of East Grand Forks, district manager for the American Crystal Sugar Co., which contracts for all beets raised in the Valley, southern Minnesota and northern Iowa.

"Rains kept us out of the fields when temperatures were above freezing," he said, "and the sudden switch into winter has made harvesting almost impossible.

"It's a miracle we were able to get 96 per cent of the beets out of the ground.

Most of the beets lost in the Valley were in the area north of Grand Forks, in the Neche and Cavalier vicinity.

A similar situation exists in southern Minnesota and northern Iowa, where some 17,800 tons of beets are still in the ground.

There still remains a flicker of hope, however, that some of those beets may be harvested.

There is a bright side to the story, however. Sugar beet production in the Valley set a new record for the second year in a row with total production of 1,100,000 tons.

At the same time, yields per acre harvested set new records throughout the producing areas in North Dakota, Minnesota and Iowa—12.5 tons per acre in North Dakota and Minnesota, and 14.5 in Iowa.

Total volume of pure granulated beet sugar processed from the beets may also reach near record proportions of 350 million pounds.

Three Minnesota Jaycees Will Get Service Awards

Chapters Throut State Begin Work of Picking Outstanding Young Men

Jaycees, members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, are looking for Minnesota's outstanding young men in 105 communities. Large cities, outstate cities, small towns, and entire counties are being combed for the state's leading young men.

The Jaycee chapters will hold Outstanding Young Men contests in December and January and will present the distinguished service award to the top young men in their towns. These candidates will then be entered in state competition.

State-wide, the Minnesota Jaycees will select three recipients for the distinguished service award, Roger Maxfield, state program chairman, explained. Minnesota's candidates may then be entered in the Ten Outstanding Young Men program of the U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce.

"We seek to recognize community leadership, outstanding service, and business accomplishment," Maxfield said. "Recipients include employees of small and large business, the self-employed businessmen, professional men, farmers and public servants."

Candidates must be of Jaycee age . . . 21 to 36, inclusive. They need not be members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and they can be nominated for recognition by anyone in their community.

Refugee Problem Subject for 4-H Radio Speakers

District Winners in Contest to Get Free Trip to Twin Cities

"Why am I concerned with the world refugee problem?"

As hundreds of Minnesota 4-H'ers answer this question in preparation for the 1960 statewide 4-H radio speaking contest, they will be doing their part in World Refugee Year, says county agent Paul Stelmaschuk.

Fifty-two nations have set this year aside as a time to help solve the world problem of two million refugees.

The radio speaking contest, now in its 18th year, is open to all county 4-H club members between the ages of 14 and 21. Contestants must write original speeches from five to eight minutes in length. Judging will be on originality, composition and delivery.

Last year more than 800 state club members took part in local and county contests. In 1959, Margaret Wayne of the Mavie 4-H club won the county championship and then went on from district competition at Crookston to the state level.

County contests must be held February 12. The state meet is scheduled for March 11 and 12 in St. Paul. Winning contestants from each district will receive a transportation paid trip to the Twin Cities.

Contest awards include a $200 first prize, a $100 second prize plus $50 and $25 to champion and reserve champion respectively to buy books for their local public or school library. District winners receive $15 and a trip to the Twin Cities. County winners will receive $5 cash and a try at the district meet.

The Jewish Community Relations Council of Minnesota cosponsors the speaking contest with the University Agricultural Extension service.

Detailed information on the contest and tips on delivery of a radio talk are available at the county extension office.

Jet Plane Lands on N.D. Highway

Plane Hits Oncoming Car Near Forest River Nov. 19

An Air Force jet from the Grand Forks Air Base and a slow-moving car collided on a county road near Forest River, N. D., Thursday as the pilot was forced to make an emergency landing when his power failed.

"Didn't have time to think—I just drove for the ditch," reported William Krause, 62, Grand Forks, N. D., alone in the car. He suffered a cut finger from flying glass.

"It just took up the whole road and I got going fast," said Krause.

Duane Oswold, 23, the pilot, was unhurt. He said he was on a flight testing radar detection devices in the area when the flameout came.

Oswold estimated his speed when he hit the gravel road at 180 m.p.h. Krause said his car was doing about 30.

"My car was only about half in the ditch when, whiz, that speeding plane's wing smashed the windshield and sheared off part of the top" said Krause. "Then it just kept on going down the road."

Officers at the Grand Forks Air Base, commended Oswold for gliding the ship down. They said the plane was not badly damaged and would be towed into the base for what repairs are needed.

U. S. Fire Losses in October Drop Below '58 Figure

Estimated fire losses in the United States during October amounted to $71,160,000, the National Board of Fire Underwriters has reported. This loss represents a decrease of 3.0 per cent from losses of $73,393,000 reported for October, 1958, and a decrease of 14.3 per cent from losses of $83,027,000 for September, 1959.

Losses for the first ten months of 1959 now total $872,047,000, a decrease of 1.4 per cent from the first ten months of 1958, when they amounted to $884,204,000.

Ford Quits Making Edsel Automobile

Slightly over 100,000 Sold in Past Two Years

The Edsel has become the first casualty of the new automotive battle of the compact cars. Ford announced it will abandon the medium-price car immediately.

Introduced only two years ago, the Edsel never captured a market. Slightly more than 100,000 were sold. Less than 100 have been built in the last two weeks as Ford diverted scarce steel to its other lines.

In an official statement, Ford said sales of the 1960 Edsel model, which look strikingly like the 1959 Pontiac, "have been particularly disappointing" while response to all other company lines has been good.

Total 1960 model production of the Edsel has been approximately 2,800 cars. In all of 1959, only about 30,000 of the cars have been built.

The Edsel has been assembled at Ford's Louisville, Ky. plant. This plant will continue to build Ford trucks. The Mercury-Edsel-Lincoln division will become the Lincoln-Mercury division of the company.

Might we be more thankful on an empty stomach?

What has happened to our observance of Thanksgiving Day?

It seems that we have enjoyed the bounty of this land so long that we accept it as a right, for which no thanks are due anyone. We have prospered . . . grown so strong, proud and seemingly self-sufficient that we have forgotten how to be humble.

Never before in the history of nations have so many people had so much. We enjoy the blessings of liberty and opportunity. Yet of gratitude and humility we have too little.

"God of common good and human brotherhood, I give Thee thanks for siren songs of temptation that lure and entangle, and the understanding of other men they reveal; for the weaknesses and failings of my neighbors and the joy of lending a helping hand; for my own shortcomings, sorrows and loneliness, that gives me a deeper sympathy for others; for ingratitude and misunderstanding and the gladness of service without other reward than self-expression." —Arthur W. Newcomb

This Has Been A Good Year

If the purpose of Thanksgiving is to give thanks for material things then our community has much to be thankful for. As an agricultural community, and thinking in terms of farm production, 1959 has been one of our better years. We had neither drouth nor flood. There were no severe storms and hail damage was scattered. Fall work was set back by wet weather but the harvest was completed. Winter came early but the early snow storms by-passed us.

Our area is well supplied with good feed and we should be able to survive even a long and severe winter, which, according to the law of averages, may be about due. But if we never have a worse year than 1959 we will have little reason to complain.

And during 1959 there has been comparative peace in the world, along with some easing of old tensions. This alone justifies a thankful Thanksgiving.

Hockey Boosters

A Hockey Booster Club, to support hockey at all levels and to encourage more adequate skating facilities in the city, was organized Thursday night. We are happy to give the new organization a pat on the back along with our best wishes for its success.

Hockey is a natural sport for this area and deserves more encouragement than it has received here in recent years. The main reason for the decline in public interest in the sport locally probably is the inadequacy of the Arena from the standpoint of spectators. The building provides standing room only and that is not conducive to attendance. Because of its lack of seats the Arena has been ruled out as suitable for high school tournaments and the end-of-the-season playoffs have not been held here for several years.

Adequate facilities have not been provided largely because those who favor better facilities have not been able to agree on what should be done. Some favor extending the present building to First Street, which would lengthen it nearly a hundred feet and provide for good seating sections at both ends. Others favor a new building of the field house type.

The present building cannot be widened at a reasonable figure but it can be lengthened at a comparatively low cost.

We hope the Hockey Booster Club will be able to develop a plan that will meet our needs and that will have united community support. Under new methods now in use, the cost of artificial ice has been reduced, as we understand it, and artificial ice must be considered as one of our future needs if we are going to remain in the running as a hockey town.

The Hockey Booster Club has assumed a big assignment in trying to revive interest in the sport. It deserves the support of all community organizations.

Poison Milk

When Arthur Flemming, secretary of health, education and welfare, made his sensational announcement that some cranberries were tainted by a chemical that caused cancer in laboratory rats, he, in effect, served notice on the public that cranberries are poisonous and should not be eaten. This announcement is resulting in heavy losses for the cranberry industry.

If some cranberries are actually unfit for human consumption then of course steps should be taken to protect the public from the danger. There is a reasonable doubt however as to whether this matter was handled properly. Secretary of agriculture Ezra Benson supports this doubt by admitting that it is entirely possible that Flemming could have protected the public "without alarming the public."

It is significant that Flemming has not questioned the truth of statements of chemists to the effect that huge amounts of contaminated berries would have to be eaten over a long period of time to be harmful to a human being. Dr. Theodore R. Flanagan, University of Vermont agronomist, says "it is practically impossible, short of suicide intent, for a human to absorb a harmful dose of the chemical in question."

Another point that might properly be raised in question of Mr. Flemming's alarm is the matter of timing. It is reasonable to assume that his agency had been aware of the facts for some time. Why did he not confer with industry leaders early in the season when steps could have been taken to make the necessary inspections in an orderly way, thus protecting both the public and the industry?

We do not know Mr. Flemming, and perhaps we are unfair to him, but his conduct in this instance suggests that he is one of those little men with great authority who prefer to do simple things sensationally. Most of them mean well but they have a passion for publicity that sometimes overcomes their good judgment.

We have no direct interest in the plight of the cranberry producer. Most of the crop is marketed through cooperative associations and we are sure the growers average up to the producers of foods in our area. They are good people and are making an effort to produce a better product. It is unfortunate that they will have to carry the burden of a loss that probably is forced upon them needlessly by the unwise conduct of a public official.

But we do have a very direct interest in the tendency of too many of these government officials to toss facts around carelessly and in a way that is harmful to producers. The dairy industry, for instance, has suffered a great deal by the statements of official alarmists who seem to be making a determined effort to frighten the public into a belief that milk is not a safe food.

The Minneapolis Tribune, in yesterday's Sunday edition, carried a lead story quoting an official of the federal food and drug administration to the effect that "a nationwide enforcement drive to eliminate penicillin and DDT residues from milk" is being launched. The headline read "FDA Launches Drive Against Impure Milk." The second paragraph of the story stated that the traces of the impurities are not sufficient to create a public health problem. The third paragraph read, "The insecticide residues were far below the amounts which can legally and safely be present in other foods."

The story went on to tell that in 1956 the food and drug administration had checked 1,700 samples of milk from retail markets across the nation and had found "very small" traces of penicillin in about six per cent of the samples. In 1958, after an educational campaign among farmers, a new survey found penicillin residues in only 3.7 per cent of the samples.

For most people penicillin is a recommended chemical. The nationwide drive to completely remove this impurity from milk is justified according to officials because "medical experts have voiced fears that the few people who are acutely sensitive to penicillin might suffer 'reactions' from drinking even minute amounts of the drug in milk." But these "few people who are acutely sensitive" may eat penicillin legally in other foods in much larger amounts than the slight trace that may be found in a small percentage of the milk that is sold.

This kind of publicity, under "scare" headlines in hundreds of newspapers thruout the country, loses many customers for the dairy industry. And that is why we are inclined to be sympathetic with the cranberry growers who will pay a heavy price for the bungling of a bureaucrat. We too suffer from such bungling.

Strange Paradox

Don Peterson of the Truman Tribune uses some interesting points in the following paragraph dealing with the cranberry crisis. In the interests of a better undersanding of human behavior we are glad to pass his observations along. Here they are:

"One thing that makes the reaction of the Welfare department, the Pure Food and Drug department and the American people such a mystery is the fact that for years the doctors and surgeons throughout America and other countries have issued one warning after another concerning the danger of contracting cancer from smoking tobacco. On this subject, the Welfare department has remained silent, and the American public goes merrily along inhaling more and more tobacco smoke. Movie actor Alan Ladd points out that he knows a man who really lives dangerously: A man who smokes cranberry cigarets."

REPORT from the GOVERNOR
by Orville L. Freeman

The state government, here in Minnesota, receives only five cents out of the average dollar paid in property tax. The other ninety-five cents goes to the several local government subdivision, and is used to pay for parks and playgrounds, schools, streets, police and fire protection, and all the other services provided by local governments.

Only Five Cents for the State

Many citizens do not realize that the state gets only five per cent of the property tax, and as a result they ask what the state is using the money for when there is an increase. They have the right to know how much of the tax they pay goes to the local units and how much to the state. And they also should know how the state spends its five-cent share.

Two Programs for a Nickel

Minnesota now spends its five cents out of the property tax dollar on two programs. One of these is the teachers' retirement program, that provides retirement pensions for all public school teachers in schools other than those in cities that have their own pension systems. The other is on repair, remodeling and construction of buildings for state institutions.

Old Policy Abandoned

Minnesota formerly used a part of its share of the property tax to pay for current operating expenses, but we discontinued this practice two years ago. Under existing policy the major share of the property tax goes to cities and villages, school districts, and counties, for which it is the principal source of revenue.

Teachers' Retirement

For several years we have been working toward strengthening the teachers' retirement program. In 1955 we found that the funding of this program was extremely shaky. Its inadequacy was being given increasing attention, and threatened to undermine the ability of school districts to secure teachers because of the lack of assurance of a sound and dependable retirement system.

Now we have corrected the major defects in this program, and a small part of the property tax is being used to pay for these corrections, and to make up for contributions to the fund that should have been made in years long past. As a result the teachers have a greater degree of security, which they so well deserve.

The Building Program

In our building program, too, we are paying for repairs and construction that in many cases could have been made much more economically in years long past. During the depression much need building was postponed. During the war years, and the period of scarcity of materials, still more of our building needs were postponed. And they were neglected in the years immediately following the end of the war.

As a result, when we surveyed the situation five years ago we found the need was great for overdue repairs, for essential expansion and for new buildings. This was true in our state education institutions, our state hospitals, and our penal institutions. We found instances of serious overcrowding, and even fire hazards.

Planning Ahead

We therefore set up a building commission to study and plan for a sound, long term building building program, to schedule our activities in this field for ten years and to meet the most critical needs as soon as possible. We now have one of the finest building programs and the most orderly planning in the country. This year two or three cents out of the state's five-cent on the dollar share of the property tax goes to pay for this construction program, to provide facilities that will be used efficiently in the years ahead.

GROWING WITH YOUR CHILD

Pigtails and Baseball

Children's feelings and attitudes toward one another go through a number of interesting shifts in the course of "growing up". It's especially interesting to watch what happens to boys' feelings toward girls and girls' feelings toward boys. When children first begin to play in groups there is little or no concern about being a boy or girl. Even in the primary grades, boys and girls get along quite well, rather willingly working and playing side by side.

But then a shift begins to take place. During the middle years of childhood, ages 9 - 12, boys and girls go their separate ways. At first the separation is quite casual, brought about largely by different sorts on interests. Girls like leisure, and dress-up, hopscotch and skipping rope, while boys prefer rougher play farther from home, and baseball. As the "gangs" become more solidly formed and more important to the children who belong, the separation, between the sexes becomes conscious and often exaggerated.

It is at times like these that parents wonder what has happened to the brother and sister who previously got along so well. Now, especially when any of the gang is around, they seem to have nothing but contempt for one another. The girl's advantage in growth rate is beginning to make a noticeable difference. She is becoming taller and heavier than boys her age. She is closer to sexual maturity and her interests are more adult-like. This disposes her to a somewhat superior attitude and she considers boys her age some lower form of animal.

Boys strike back through ridicule and very loud denunciations of practically all females. Mother is still okay. They consider anyone who would have anything to do with girls somewhat soft in the head, and are puzzled and often outspokenly contemptuous of their slightly older friends who are beginning to not only tolerate but seek out the companionship of girls. This is the last straw.

Yet in a few years the breech begins to close. Wounds are licked and forgotten and young adolescents begin to show greater interest in members of the opposite sex. This, as we will see has its problems, too, but at least we know that the boy-girl antagonism of middle childhood is ordinarily just a "stage".

Run fewer acres and get more income? Certainly—if you do a better job on smaller acreage—says Carl Nering, Jacobson area farmer. Aitkin county agent Fritz Gehrels reports that Nering pastured 28 head of milk cows all summer this year on 9 acres, except for a brief period in August. Secret to the whole thing was fertilizing according to soil test, using ladino clover for pasture, and grazing by a ration-a-day system. Nering says since he began his pasture management system, he has had more income from his 104 acres than he used to when he rented several fields in addition.

Barley is a good wind stopper, a Halstad farmer has learned. Glenn Wiese seeded the barley to control fall wind erosion on summer - fallowed land. Also, Wiese tells Merlin Jennings, SCS worker at Twin Valley, the barley catches a lot of snow for winter cover. Now the idea is spreading and several other farmers are also seeding their summer-fallowed land.

Solving one crisis sometimes untangles another knotty problem at the same time. Cyril Burke had a severe gully on his farm near Janesville. The small crevice was threatening the road, too. Burke took care of it by putting in a drop inlet type control dam. The gully then became a grassed waterway and—in addition to not having to worry about the road—Burke has squared up his fields. The gully made it impossible to use contour strips before; now Burke has several of them.

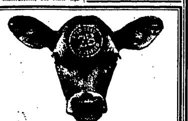
Research that can save $60 million per year farm production costs is underway at the new U. S. Department of Agriculture's North Central Conservation Field Station at Morris. And that applies solely to savings from cutting out unneeded tillage steps on row and grain crops. Specific problems to be studied there include water intake rates and storage capacities of soils, soil drainage, supplemental irrigation, wind and water erosion and soil compaction. The research will cover 38-million acres of Minnesota, the Dakotas and Iowa.

The nickel-iron storage battery, which is still used extensively today, was invented in 1901 by Thomas A. Edison.



It takes a BIG Turkey...

Holidays on the iron ranges of Minnesota are turkey days, just as they are all over the country!

It does take a lot of poultry to meet the demands of more than 33,000 families whose livelihoods depend on iron mining and the businesses that serve and supply it. These people consume nearly 1,700,000 pounds of chicken and turkey each year. They spend almost $850,000 on these poultry products.

The iron mining industry, in producing iron ore, provides jobs for thousands of people in Minnesota—jobs which provide markets for the farm products of Minnesota—markets right within Minnesota's own borders.

PEEKIN' into the PAST

HOME INCUBATOR

Between 1910 and 1920, the home incubator replaced the mother hen in bringing baby chicks into the world. About Easter time, the house was filled with peeps and cheeps as the baby chicks cracked the egg shells in the old incubator.

Usually the incubator was heated by a kerosene lamp and the better ones had a wire thermostat that put a "damper" on the heat as the temperature rose. This machine required careful watching and the eggs had to be turned at regular intervals. Even then, the per cent of "hatch" was pretty much a gamble.

Most Rainfall in Minnesota from Gulf Area

Drainage, the soil bank, stepped up corn acreage, and tree cutting have no important effect on amount of rain or snowfall in Minnesota. Neither do other farm practices.

The reason: Most precipitation here originates from 500 miles southeast of Florida and from the Gulf of Mexico. Ocean winds circulate this moisture over the Mississippi River basin.

Philip W. Manson, University of Minnesota soil and water conservation engineer, points out some interesting facts on water and rain. Here they are:

It's estimated, Manson says, that 86 to 88 per cent of the Mississippi River Basin precipitation comes from the Atlantic ocean and the Gulf of Mexico.

Since water can't be made or destroyed, and there's just a certain amount, use and management of it deserves rural-urban attention. Manson advocates a complete inventory of the state surface and ground water resources, and a utilization program that will not exceed the available water supply.

Good water legislation, he says, should be supported by all people. And it's important for citizens to understand some of the basic "water facts" such as:

* Size and frequency of major floods have not been altered by farming practices. There may be greater monetary losses from floods now, but these are due to increased development of the hazardous low areas—not more flood water. Actually, good soil and water conservation practices will generally reduce peak runoff from small areas, thus somewhat reducing the flood damage to these areas.

* Artificial or natural drainage does not remove water useful to crops. Plant growth depends on capillary water. That's moisture loosely held around each soil particle, the way a wick draws up oil in a lamp. Drainage removes the excess, or harmful water. It doesn't affect capillary water need by plants.

* The deep well-water supply varies greatly around Minnesota. Geologically speaking, the southeastern part of the state has an excellent ground water supply. The southwestern and western part have moderate supplies, and the remaining areas range from moderate to poor in supply of ground water. Amount of deep ground water is closely associated with geological formations. And there is no evidence that water shortages in deep wells are appreciably affected by farm practices. On the other hand, shallow wells only a few feet deep and separated from nearby drainage ways by porous material, may be affected to some extent. The water in these wells may seek the same elevation level as water in adjacent drainage ways. Also, water elevation in shallow wells may be quickly affected by wet and dry periods.

* Urban and rural folks need to encourage and support planning of water projects on the large watershed basis. It's difficult to properly design water projects on piecemeal plans that involve only small sections of a watershed and only limited water interests.

* With the exception of a very few limited areas, Minnesota seems to have an abundance of water. Even so, it is important that water not be wasted by a lack of planning for the future.

Starting a field windbreak next spring can be easy—particularly if you do it the new way and just set out a single row of trees and shrubs.

It will also be a good idea to make sure your trees are on order soon.

With the single row, you need fewer trees and you tie up less land for the windbreak. Yet, a single row gives good protection from wind erosion. The important thing is to have enough shelterbelts for the entire farm.

If you run them from east to west, for example, space the rows no more than 80 rods apart—and 40 rods is even better.

In the past most field windbreaks in Minnesota have had two or more rows. However, farmers sometimes object to using up so much land for trees. In Canada, one-row shelterbelts set out in the 1930's have been markedly successful.

A tall tree and a shrub is recommended for the one-row shelterbelt. Simply alternate them: a tree, a shrub, a tree and so on. One good combination would be green ash and either caragana shrub or honeysuckle. Another is cottonwood or hybrid poplar with either Russian olive or Harbin elm.

Horn of PLENTY

This great land of ours has been blessed with the riches of the earth and with the freedoms, the rights, to enjoy them. But does the mere ownership of these goods guarantee our happiness?

All of us have experienced a disappointment at finally possessing some much-desired article. After weeks and sometimes years of looking forward to it, we find that the actual ownership brings little pleasure.

Could the fault lie with the gift itself? No, apparently it is within ourselves. Our own attitudes, our own relationships, our own understanding have certainly much more to do with our final satisfaction.

How then are we to derive the greatest blessings from the goods which have been put at our disposal? The best place to begin is in the Church. Here, in a personal search for God and our own understanding of Him, we may achieve a spiritual harmony, which will bless our lives and those of our fellow men.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

State Farm Bureau Asks Spending Slash

The Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation backed up its demand for a reduction in government spending with a series of resolutions before adjourning its annual meeting in St. Paul Wednesday night.

Before returning Clarence W. Meyers, Blue Earth, to the presidency by acclamation, delegates representing more than 30,000 members in the state called for:

Strict economy and less duplication of government services.

No increases in federal aid to education or in Social Security benefits.

Denial of welfare aid to anyone refusing to work and publication of names of those drawing public welfare payments.

A ban on fair price laws as being monopolistic.

Increasing third and fourth class postal rates so service in those categories will be self-supporting.

Opposition to a state milk control board, as well as to federal livestock supports and subsidies for lightweight hogs.

Ending of local and state milk barriers.

Enactment of federal and state "right to work" laws and a statute at the state level making strike interference with delivery of farm products a gross misdemeanor.

Delbert Best of Mankato and Mrs. Arnold Lawin of Burtrum were named to the state board of directors for three-year terms, Chris Rigalia of White Bear Lake for one. Delegates also confirmed Mrs. O. M. Bollum of Goodhue as chairman of the bureau women's committee.

Council Begins Paring Budget for Next Year

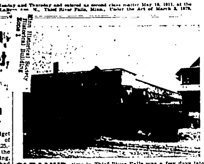
First of Series of Meetings Was Held Last Monday Night

A preliminary city budget calling for the expenditure of $119,562 more than the $1,425,041 for 1959 was handed to the city council Monday evening, Nov. 23, and immediately had some air let out of it.

The informal meeting, attended by all council members and Milton Reierson, alderman-elect from the fifth ward, was the first in a series to consider departmental needs for 1960.

Requests for every department were up with the exceptions of finance, city scales, street department, recreation, parks, liquor dispensary and general obligation assessment, revenue and hospital bonds.

The greatest increase requested was for unallocated general expenses (up $21,001), water utility (up $20,101), revenue bonds (up $13,265) and airport utility (up $11,001).



Council members wasted little time in excising the first layer of fat included in requests. Equipment and capital outlay items came in for the first paring and there was little doubt that subsequent meetings will result in further reductions.

There was some discussion of the possibility in the future of consolidating the parks and recreation boards to make the operation more economical but no definite action was suggested.

In considering the electric utility department request for $293,188, an increase of $9,027 over the 1959 budget, Morris Owen, superintendent of the power plant, told council members that two additional circuits would have to be provided to take the load off two circuits which are dangerously overloaded. He also recommended rewinding a generator driven by water power. What the city can generate with present equipment will not fulfill city needs after the next two years, he said.

The informal meeting followed a short adjourned meeting at which the bid of the Tunberg Motor company to furnish a police patrol car was accepted. The Tunberg bid, which was low, was for $1,575 including the CLEANUP time in Thief River Falls was a few days later this year than it was in 1958. Street department crews went to work this week, plowing out residential streets the first part of the week and in the downtown area Wednesday. On Main ave. S., the payloader scraped up the accumulation at the sides of the street and dumped it into trucks to be hauled away.

Farmers to Learn of Income Tax & Social Security December 3

A meeting of special interest to all farmers of the area will be held in the court house assembly room on Thursday, Dec. 3, at 1:30 p.m. it was announced today by County Agent Paul Stelmaschuk. Income tax and social security are the topics to be covered by two specialists.

Income tax regulations will be discussed by Paul Hasbargen, specialist in farm management at the University of Minnesota. "Farmers lose considerable farm income annually by not properly using exemptions provided under the law," Hasbargen states.

An understanding of revisions in the tax law from year to year and knowledge of exemptions provided are important to every farmer even when they have an agent file their tax returns. It is easier to keep proper records when the information of tax requirements are understood.

The second portion of the meeting will be on social security. Every farmer approaching retirement age will want maximum protection by social security and a full discussion of this topic will be provided by an officer from the social security office at Grand Forks. Young farm couples will want to know the protection to a survivor, or children in case of disabling or fatal accidents. Wives in particular will want to know the protection available under social security in case of a husband's disability.

All farmers and homemakers are urged to mark their calendars now and attend the meeting December 3, Stelmaschuk stated.

THANKSGIVING SERVICES AT COMMUNITY CHURCH

A special Thanksgiving Day worship service will be held at Community Methodist church at N. Horace and First st., Thursday morning, Nov. 26, at 10 a.m. The Rev. Henry Friedman will speak upon the theme "The Spirit of Thanksgiving".

Drive on Muscular Dystrophy to Open Here November 30

Mrs. Israelson, Chairman of Drive, Asks Support of Local Householders

The muscular dystrophy drive will begin here Monday, Mrs. Agnes Israelson, county chairman, stated today. Muscular dystrophy is a chronic disease of the muscle, the exact cause is not known. Research, however, has indicated that it may be due to faulty metabolism of the muscles, related to their inability to use vitamin E. There are approximately 200,000 men, women and children suffering from M.D. in the United States — 35 known cases here in the Red River Valley.

There is nothing now known to science which can stop the progress of this disease. Once it starts it follows a steady downhill course. Gradually all the voluntary muscles of the body are affected and the victim is helpless.

There are four types of M.D. The most prevalent strikes children between the ages of 3-10. Its course is more rapid than any other type. It is hereditary in 35 per cent of all cases. It affects three times as many males as females. At first a child may have difficulty in going up the stairs, may have a tendency to fall, will develop a waddling gait. The disease progresses rapidly and very few children reach the age of adolescence.

"This year," said Mrs. Israelson, "instead of having a volunteer worker make a house-to-house drive, we are going to ask each and every housewife to take an active part. An envelope will be given to the house on the corner of your block. She, in turn, will be asked to take it to her neighbor and she to her neighbor, so on down the block until it reaches the last householder who will take it across the street where it will continue the same process from neighbor to neighbor. The corner house will take it back across the street where it originated and will be picked up by a volunteer worker."

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Benson and children of Evansville, Minn., will arrive this evening, Wednesday, and will spend the Thanksgiving holidays at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred D. Lorentson.

Legion Auxiliary Units Sponsoring Gift Shops Again

TRF and Ninth District Units to Serve Veterans Hospital Patients Again

Christmas gift shops will be operated by the American Legion Auxiliary this year in 174 Veterans Administration hospitals and in many other hospitals where veterans are under care, Mrs. Harold M. Johnson, president of the 9th district American Legion Auxiliary, announced this week. At these shops, hospitalized veterans can select gifts to be sent to their families, with the gifts, gift-wrapping and postage a donation from the Auxiliary.

"American Legion Auxiliary gift shops bring to the veterans in the hospitals one joy of Christmas giving," explained Mrs. Johnson. "The Auxiliary also gives each veteran a gift for himself, but we feel that they appreciate most the opportunity to send gifts home to their wives and children.

"The gift shops are set up by Auxiliary volunteers in a spare hospital room, decorated gaily and gift articles attractively displayed. Patients able to leave their beds come to the shop and make their selection of gifts, which the Auxiliary's volunteer workers then wrap and mail for them. Bedfast patients make their from carts loaded with gift articles and wheeled to their bedsides.

"Hundreds of thousands of dollars are expended by the Auxiliary each year in buying articles for the gift shops. The shops are operated by state organizations of the Auxiliary and supported by local units throughout the state. The Ecklund-Holmstrom unit of Thief River Falls is helping support gift shops."

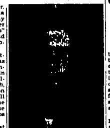
To Meet Dec. 4 on Lost and Mud River Area Watershed

Chmn. Oliver Howland Announces Meeting to Be Held in Grygla Hall

A meeting of residents and landowners of the Lost and Mud Rivers area in east Marshall and Beltrami counties will be held at the Grygla hall Friday evening, December 4, for the purpose of discussing the proposed survey of the drainage needs of the area.

The meeting is being called by the steering committee of the organization that was formed several years ago for the purpose of securing such a survey under the provisions of Public Law 566, known as the Small Watersheds act. Oliver Howland, chairman of the committee, is hopeful that the government will soon be able to proceed with such a survey if the people in the area are still interested.

Mr. Howland urges all interested people in the area to attend and make their wishes known. Slides will be shown of the Tongue River Watershed development in North Dakota.



The cranberry furore is dying a somewhat quiet death and there apparently will be plenty of the uncontaminated tart, red fruit to grace Thanksgiving tables. Both fresh and canned cranberries were noted on local grocers' shelves but they report sales are down considerably due to the cranberry scare.

MAKING evergreen ropes, equipping them with lights and installing the Christmas decorations in downtown Thief River Falls has been the work of these three power and light department employes during the past week. Morris Olson, lft, Paul Bedard, center and Don Olson, right, have put the decorations together at the municipal power plant before using the city's ladder-equipped truck to garb the business district in its annual holiday attire.

Richard Parnow, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Parnow of Kratka township, was named Monday evening, Nov. 23, as the winner of the "Farm Boy to Chicago" trip during which he will attend the International Livestock Exposition.

RICHARD PARNOW

Parnow, a member of the Kratka 4-H club for seven years, was selected by a committee composed of Jon Metusalem, Lincoln high school vocational agriculture instructor; Paul Furuseth, president of the Pennington county Leaders' council and Dell Christianson of the Jaycees. The selection was made from the representatives of 10 4-H clubs in the county.

The committee reported that Parnow was chosen on the basis of his club record, the benefit that he would derive from the trip, his cooperative spirit in club work and other factors.

The Kratka boy will leave Minneapolis November 27 for the exposition and will return Nov. 30. The trip is a project of the local Jaycees and is sponsored by the Osborne McMillan elevator, Midland Co-op, Farmers Union, Peterson-Biddick company and Land O'Lakes.

The Jaycee project has been carried out by a committee composed of N. H. Kortuem and Dell Christianson assisted by Paul Stelmaschuk, Pennington county agent.

In a meeting Thursday evening, Nov. 19, the Jaycees heard that the teenage dance which they sponsored Saturday evening, Nov. 21, had been very successful with over 600 youngsters in attendance.

The membership decided to aid the Salvation Army again this year in the collection of Christmas funds. Ormond Johnson urged everyone interested in playing in the municipal band to get in touch with him.

The annual sale of Christmas bulbs will be from Nov. 30 to Dec. 2, with the proceeds to be used to enlarge the Nativity scene by the addition of more figures.

Dedication Rites for First Baptist Edifice Nov. 29th

Secretary of Baptist General Conference and Former Pastors to Speak

Dedication services for the new First Baptist church edifice have been set for next Sunday, Nov. 29th. Three services have been planned at 11 a.m. and 2 and 7:45 p.m. The main dedication service will be at the afternoon session although there will be special dedicatory activities at the others also.

The Rev. Lloyd Dahlquist, general secretary of the Baptist General Conference, will be the guest speaker at the morning and afternoon meetings. Two of the former pastors of the church, Rev. V. L. Peterson and Rev E. L. Brenneise, will have parts in the dedication service in the afternoon and they will be the speakers at the evening session.

Featured in the musical parts of the program will be a solo by Albert C. Ahlquist, former choir director in the church; selections by the choir and ladies trio and a number by the musical Dalzell family.

Construction on the superstructure began last May and the final work is being done this week with the laying of carpet and installation of the bulletin board. With the exception of the bricklaying, all of the work on the church was done by local firms. The First Baptist church was organized in 1886, and in 1961 will be celebrating its 75th year in this community. The church is located at 414 North Horace Avenue and the pastor is the Rev. W. Ronald Dalzell.

He will bring with him a station wagon filled with demonstration equipment, much of which he and his fellow traveling teachers built themselves from simple, inexpensive components during the summer training at M.S.U.

Storm Sewer Bill vs. Schools Upsets Budget

District Assessed $24,794 Instead of Expected $16,000

The coming year's budget for the Thief River Falls school district suffered a setback Monday evening when the board learned that the sum of $16,000 included in the budget to meet the cost of storm sewer installations along school property would be far short of the amount assessed which has now been fixed at $24,794.92.

The school board, said Supt. Irwin Mickelson, had been supplied with incorrect estimates as to the amount of the assessments. The board voted to apply the $16,000 levied for the purpose on the cost of the sewers, and to let the balance carry over until the following year.

Contracts were approved with the Oakland Park nursing home and St. Mary's Hospital in Detroit Lakes for affiliation for clinical nursing experience with the practical nurses course in the area vocational school.

A contract with Bemidji state college also was approved, whereby the college will pay $64 for each practice teacher who serves in the local system. It was agreed that the supervising teacher will be paid $45, with the remaining $19 going to the school district.

The board also approved a contract with Dale Dunning, recent graduate of St. Cloud state college, to teach social studies. He succeeds Frank Hamerlinck, who recently was named assistant Lincoln school principal.

The board heard a report on the audit of school district books for 1958-59 made by the state public examiner's office, no major criticisms being made. Also presented was a report on the school libraries by Miss Ruth Ertsad, state supervisor of libraries with the department of education.

Shirley Kulseth and Rev. Marvin O. Carlson Are Wed

Before an altar graced with baskets of fall flowers and lighted candelabra, Miss Shirley Ann Kulseth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Kulseth of this city, became the bride of Rev. Marvin O. Carlson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Carlson of Sioux Falls, S. D., Monday evening, Nov. 16, at 8 p.m. in this city.

The double ring ceremony took place at Trinity Lutheran church in the presence of approximately 325 relatives and friends. Dr. Walter E. Carlson of Moorhead, Minn., officiated at the ceremony with Miss Shirley Peterson of this city, assisting at the organ. Rev. Lauren Youngdale of Hallock, soloist, sang "Entreat Me Not to Leave Thee," before the vows were spoken and "O Lord Most Holy" and "The Wedding Prayer," as the couple knelt at the altar.

Entering on the arm of her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of white chantilly lace and net over bridal satin. It featured a fitted bodice of lace with long sleeves, coming to a point at the hand, a scalloped neckline with tiny buttons down the back of the gown. The bouffant skirt was accented by pointed panels of lace over net, ending in a chapel train. Her fingertip veil of illusion net fell from a cap of seed pearls and sequins, and she carried a bouquet of autumn roses with a cascade of white carnations atop a white testament. Her gold cross was a gift of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Amerin Olson of this city, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing a street length dress of beige brocaded taffeta, styled similar to that of the bride, with a matching pillbox hat of taffeta and net. Miss Sandra Nabben of this city, friend of the bride, was bridesmaid. She was attired in a dress identical to that of the matron of honor, of copper brocaded taffeta with matching hat and shoes. Each carried a bouquet of bronze mums, and their gold cross necklaces were a gift of the bride. The attendants' dresses were created by the bride.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Kulseth chose a dacron print on navy background dress, with matching accessories. Mrs. Carlson wore a navy blue suit dress with white accessories. Their corsages and that of the grandmother of the bride, Mrs. Martin Kulseth, were of yellow roses and white carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlors by Mr. and Mrs. Kulseth for approximately 250 relatives and friends. A three-tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom, centered the serving table. Mrs. Kenneth Miller, friend of the bride, cut and served the cake, while Mrs. Edward Stanina and Mrs. Gail Rux, relatives of the bride, poured. Mrs. Edgar Longren was hostess in the dining room with Mrs. Durlyn Robinson as kitchen hostess. They were assisted by members of the Esther unit and Naomi unit of the church. Waitresses were Ila Jean Robinson, Karen Mittlestadt, Margaret Ellingson, Patty Hornseth, Linda Boreen and Marva Lawrence.

Mrs. Carlson is a graduate of Lincoln high school, and prior to her marriage was employed at Elaine's in this city. The bridegroom is a graduate of Gustavus Adolphus at St. Peter, Minn., and Augustana college, Rock Island, Ill. He is now serving as pastor of First Lutheran church in this city.

For going away the bride wore a black tweed fitted suit with matching accessories and the corsage from her bridal bouquet.

Following a month's honeymoon trip through the southwestern part of the country, the Rev. and Mrs. Carlson will be at home at 228 Merriam av. N. in Thief River Falls.

Marshall County Red Cross Adding to Its Activities

Chapter Is Preparing to Meet Any Emergency, Says Chmn. Ralph Larson

An expanded program of Red Cross activities for Marshall county was announced this week by chapter officials, following the quarterly meeting of the county organization in Holt earlier this month.

More authority has been delegated to volunteers on the local level, according to Ralph Larson of Argyle, chapter chairman. "If a fire breaks out or any other emergency occurs in any part of the county, we want Red Cross volunteers on the scene within minutes to assist. This necessitates a complete network of Red Cross workers throughout the county," Mr. Larson stated.

Two new board members have been added to the Marshall county Red Cross chapter. Henry Knutson of Warren, county highway engineer, is the new disaster chairman. Richard Omdahl, employed at the State bank of Warren, will serve as county fund drive chairman. Duane Nielson, who has headed the fund drive for the past three years, is now chairman of members and funds. At the Holt meeting, Mr. Nielson was awarded a citation for services, issued by national headquarters.

The report on the water safety program held annually at the Old Mill park revealed that more than 800 youngsters received swimming instruction this year. Plans are to increase the program next year if funds are available.

A first aid class is being organized in Holt, with Mr. and Mrs Ernie Jewell of the Old Mill park in charge. Another class is slated to begin in Argyle soon.

Enrollment in the Junior Red Cross is now underway in all of the schools in the county, according to Mrs. Walter Coplin, chairman of this division of Red Cross work.

During November the Marshall county Red Cross chapter has aided in two disastrous fires. The Charles Lamb home near Middle River burned to the ground about four weeks ago, leaving the Lambs and their six children homeless. The Red Cross has also been assisting the Conrad Serklands after the Oslo fire of a week ago.

The date for the annual meeting was set at February 23, with Newfolden as the probable site.

Rotary Hears Talk on Thanksgiving

Rev. Reuben Wangberg Addresses Club Monday

The pressures of everyday living tend to make us forget the things for which we should be thankful, Rev. Reuben Wangberg told Rotarians at their Nov. 23 noon meeting.

The Trinity Lutheran church pastor said that we are becoming slaves of the machines, schedules and businesses we have created and that they are robbing our hearts of the constant spirit of thankfulness that we should be expressing, especially at this season of the year.

"One wonders at the price of success," Mr. Wangberg said. "When success robs us of our personal well-being, it may be a very questionable thing." He used as an example a survey made of several top executives after a period of time which revealed the high cost of their living and the short duration of it.

Turning to another aspect of the problem, Mr. Wangberg said that memories may also rob us of the feeling of well-being and may twist our personalities.

"The greatest truth in the Bible is that God can forget. We too should forget those things that plague us and disturb our peace," he said. "At Thanksgiving, we must go beyond our regular expression of thanks and rediscover our personal relationship with God and Thanksgiving must be every day.

Rev. Wangberg's address was arranged by Rev. Henry Friedman, program chairman for the month of November.

Patrol Captain Reports Highways Are Slippery

Captain Walter Anderson of the highway patrol headquarters here reported today that roads in the entire area are very slippery and that he cannot emphasize too strongly the importance of careful driving.

Snow which fell over the past weekend and through Monday, has compacted on highways making driving very hazardous, Anderson said. He stated that all drivers should be wary of driving too fast for conditions and to keep a sharp eye out for potentially dangerous situations.

Highway department crews are busy with application of a salt-sand mixture in danger spots but Anderson said somewhat warmer temperatures are needed to make the anti-icing measure fully effective.

Despite the icy road conditions only one minor mishap has been reported in the Thief River Falls vicinity by the patrol this week, none since Monday.

U.S. Safety Council Offers Advice on Use of Christmas Trees

The traditional burning of the Christmas tree outdoors is a thrilling sight, but when set accidentally indoors it can be a tragedy, the National Safety Council said today.

"Filled with natural pitch and resin, the Christmas tree is one of the most combustible objects known—virtually impossible to extinguish by ordinary methods.

"When the needles fall," the Council said, "it should not be forgotten that they are a fire threat. Because the resulting fire is difficult to control, it should be burned outdoors, in a fire-safe area.

"The months of December and January," the Council added, "have had their share of fires in which Christmas trees played the fourth occurred during the Christmas holiday alone."

The Christmas tree tradition is a wonderful part of the season, the Council said, so keep it wonderful by observing these few precautions:

1. Buy a tree no bigger than you can get into the room, the larger the fire hazard.

2. Wait to put it up until just before Christmas. Keep it in a cool place, if at all possible.

3. Set it up, outside, at least an inch of the trunk and place in a stand filled with water.

4. Place tree away from sources of heat such as TV sets, radiators, powerful electric lights, wood stoves, or the drying period will be shortened.

5. Be unfashionable deprivation. Keep breathable living air flowing through the house. Ventilating into the socket, they can cause short circuits or flash fires. Do not overload circuits or replace normal fuses with oversized ones.

6. Use only fireproof decorations. Be sure they are. Underwriters' Laboratories Inc. check for frayed cords, faulty sockets, and loose connections. Prefer to switch some distance from the tree to turn it on and off. Do not string tree lights indoors/outdoors.

7. Never use candles on the tree or around any combustible decorations.

8. Turn off tree lights before you go to bed or leave the house.

9. Don't operate electric toys, such as trains, beneath the tree. Area can ignite decorations or wrappings.

10. Use stool or ladder while trimming the tree. Let children help hang ornaments that are low and within their reach.

11. Burn the tree in a fire-safe area outdoors. Some communities have tree-burning permits, under the supervision of the fire department. If your community does not, contact your fire department and seek its cooperation. Youth organizations may collect the trees.

Social Security Man Here Tuesday

Inquire Before You Retire, Citizens Told

A representative of the Grand Rapids district office of the Social Security administration will be in the Third Floor Parlor of the Auditorium Tuesday, Dec. 1, at 9 a.m. he will answer questions about social security and accept applications.

A representative will be at Gooding, Minn., at the Fire Hall on Wednesday, Dec. 2 at 9 a.m.

Naturally you want to receive your fullest social security check when you retire. To accomplish this, Walter D. Staples, the Grand Forks social security district manager, has this advice: "Inquire before you retire at your social security office."

Staples also suggests that anyone who serves the seven-county area, a man age 65 or older planning to retire, you should contact your social security office two or three months before your retirement.

"If you do not receive your first social security check when a little foresight will help you avoid delay, your next pay check," Mr. Kistler concluded.

Probate Judges, Parole Officer Discuss Problems Last Thursday

The possibility of establishing a detention home for the Northwest Probation area, which covers seven-county area, including Pennington county, was discussed by all attending of probate judges in Roseau Thursday, according to Lawrence Johnson, Probate Judge of Lake county.

The group also talked of the new probation and parole system to be set up in Minnesota counties beginning January 1.

The need for a detention home for juveniles in the area was discussed and it was felt by the group that a home would be located at Detroit Lakes, Johnson said. Other areas represented were Fergus Falls, Bemidji, Thief River Falls, Warren, Crookston and Roseau.

Mr. Prosseth operated the Prosseth Food Market on First and Second Ave. East for 25 years before it was been located in Ft. Frisby and it was a member of the Community Methodist church, member of the IOOF Young Fine Arts Club and the Farmers Union of Galgas, all of Thief River Falls.

Surviving are his wife, Irene; two daughters, Mrs. Milton Seiler, Mrs. Elmer, Ariz., Erling J. Olson, Barbara, both of Thief River Falls; one son, Dr. Robert Prosseth Institute; Perry of Thief River Falls, Henry of Minneapolis, and Charles of Grand Forks; three sisters, Mrs. Al Weber, Ruth, of Richland, Wash., Mrs. C. J. Bergland, Alice, of Fergus Falls, Minn., and Mrs. Hannah Lee, International Falls.

Last Rites For Ole C. Froseth Set For Friday

Ole C. Froseth, a life long resident of Thief River Falls, died suddenly Sunday afternoon, Nov. 22, at the age of 72 years, 10 months and 22 days.

Funeral services will be held Friday, Nov. 27, at 2 p.m. at the Community Methodist church with Rev. Henry Friedman officiating. Interment will be in Greenwood cemetery.

The body will lie in state at the Dahlen funeral home from 4 p.m. Thursday until 11 a.m. Friday and at the church one hour before the services.

Ole C. Froseth was born in Thief River Falls, May 1, 1887, and attended school and grew to manhood here. On Dec. 24, 1913, he was united in marriage to Rose Dostal at Thief River Falls and they have made their home here since.

tracts of the present year. Other bids were $1,507 by Fordham Construction company and $1,581 by Northern Chevrolet.

The council accepted the bid of Northern Chevrolet company for supplying gasoline for the police cars and for three diesel patrol cars. A decision was delayed until the council can be furnished with exact specifications for the bid to be let by Northern Chevrolet.

The matter which stated that those who dig trenches in streets to install water lines must restore the street to the original condition, was referred to the committee. It was considered advisable, according to Ickestaat and Bigley. After some discussion during which council members agreed that changes were possible in order, Aldermen Roy Bigley, Ralph Ickes and Ralph Hall were appointed to a committee to study the ordinance and make recommendations to the council.

The matter of adjustments in easements in storm sewer district three brought up at the meeting by Mayor Ralph Hall, was referred to Robert Wood, city attorney. He said that the council could legally have a hearing and correct inequities but that the entire proceedings may again be laid open by such a move and that the council would be subject to another such a hearing could they be appealed to the district court — an action which a petitioner in one now precluded from doing. He said that he was not certain of it, but that he thought others could be. Hearing on the matter will be held at the meeting which closed to only 20 days after the assessment hearing was closed. The matter will be discussed again at the Dec. 15 council meeting.

With $25,000 in sewer revenue bonds sold, the city will have to pay only $1,000 in bond interest payments.

Better Proteins

If someone says one protein feed is as good as another for chickens, don't believe him.

The fact is that a ration containing protein from soybean meal will generally out-perform rations containing any of a variety of other proteins. This could hold true even though both rations meet total protein requirements.

So the question is: Why?

Nobody has all the answers. But the University of Minnesota poultry nutritionists say the solution will be found mostly in the amino acids — the "building blocks" that make up proteins. Right now, the scientists are digging into the problem with fervor. They're doing it by feeding "highly purified" diets. In these rations pure amino acids are substituted for complete proteins, such as fish meal or soybean meal.

The full story on this research is in the current issue of "Minnesota Farm and Home Science," from the University's Agricultural Experiment station. Poultry scientist David Snetsinger discusses the studies in this publication.

What are these amino acids? Small nitrogen-containing molecules which form proteins in other plants or animals. It's these amino acids that animals need for growth and health.

Scientists separate them into essential and non-essential amino acids. The essential ones must be supplied in the feed. The others can be synthesized in the animal's digestive system.

Animals can get amino acids in two ways. First, digestive enzymes in the body can break down intact proteins such as corn or soybean meal. Second, scientists can make amino acids in the laboratory.

Trouble with many feeds is that they don't have the right balance of essential amino acids. If you feed enough to supply all essentials in required amounts, the animal may get an overdose of others.

Too much of some amino acids can actually reduce growth, or at least produce a deficiency of some other essential amino acids. So, the problem is to get feeds with all the essential amino acids in the right balance. If the feed isn't naturally balanced, deficient amino acids must be added.

For example, peanut meal has plenty of glycine, one of the essential amino acids, but is short on lysine and methionine. Soybean meal has more lysine, but is short on the other two. Put these two feeds together—60 per cent peanut meal and 40 per cent soybean meal — and lysine and glycine are in balance. There's still a shortage of methionine, so enough synthesized methionine can be added to bring that amino acid into balance, too.

This kind of research will have some important benefits. Eventually, nutritionists feel that adding amino acids will mean improved protein supplements.

Christmas Kettle to Be at Ben Franklin Corner

The cheerful sound of bells will again ring out in the downtown district of Thief River Falls beginning Friday, Nov. 27, as the Salvation Army begins its annual Christmas Kettle appeal.

The kettle house will again be located on the Ben Franklin store corner and several organizations have indicated that they will assist in the annual collection of funds to provide a happy Christmas for those in need.

The Christmas appeal will be opened nationally Nov. 26 when the New York staff band of the Salvation Army will be featured from 7 to 9 a.m. on the Dave Garroway TV program.

Lt. Robert Burkhardt, local Salvation Army officer, said Tuesday, "Contributions to the Salvation Army Christmas appeal will assure a happier Christmas for many in our community. Report on Viking News of the Week

Mrs. Arne Samuelson, Viking, Ph. [illegible]

Thanksgiving Meditation

Thanksgiving is the time to pray,
For God to guide me on my way . . .
To ask His help, so I will be
A credit to my family.
So make me honest, Lord, and fair,
Let me spread sunshine everywhere.
And may I be, in thoughts and deeds
Considerate of other creeds . . .
Thoughtful, helpful, brave and kind.
With a just and open mind . . .
I bow my head and humbly pray,
For God to guide me on my way.

Sports writers figure Pee Wee Reese is taking a big gamble in giving up his coaching job with the Los Angeles Dodgers to become a baseball scout for TV guys at the week. Reese has long been regarded as one of baseball's most dexterous managerial material. Reese's reputation as a smart baseball mind is unchallenged, but he's never had to manage a team. Coaching and managing, I whopping between is a huge, gray matter-soaking hurdle for a finally man. Reese's decision to quit the Dodgers is a surprising one, but it is a surprised controversy for a re-search of Mississippi and Louisiana State University in the Super Bowl. Ole Miss is rated a 7½ point favorite to win the game, and the Tigers are rated a bit to return in 1960 so that they can get in where it fits, since in the new American Football League a new television contract expected the British soldiers to be the most successful in the history of the league. Both teams will be in the night spot at London.

Getting All Well Rounded

It has been estimated that wolves have killed over 100 head of cows and lambs for various farmers during which it is said to be this winter. Elks is located in the Thief River Falls area and Bagley.

The farmers who have suffered these losses have asked relief for a wolf hunt to be held on Sunday, Nov. 29. The hunters will assemble at the Thief River Falls Christensen farm, located two and one-half miles east of Elks, by 1:30 P.M. on Sunday. The hunters are asked to bring shot guns.

The game wanders from Pennington county into Polk county to take charge of the drive, and it is hoped that a large number of hunters will participate as there is quite an area to be covered by the drive.

It is expected that a conference of conservation officials will accept the invitation to join in the wolf hunt.

Crookston Youth Dies in Shooting Accident Sunday

Gerald Audette, Age 19, Killed When Gun Discharges Accidentally

A Crookston youth was killed Sunday afternoon when a gun he was carrying accidentally discharged as he was climbing a fence in a wooded area near Crookston.

Gerald Francis Audette, 19 years old, apparently was the victim of his own carelessness when he was using the weapon to target shoot.

Gerald is survived by Sheriff Carl Knutson and Dr. H. E. Nelson, county coroner, Audette had been target shooting with Larry Gillespie, 19 years old, and Gerald Ness, 20 years old, when Audette fell down and the gun, all of Crookston.

Knutson's investigation companions he and Mary Ann were attempting to climb a part of the cab in which they had ridden to the scene when the gun accidentally discharged, the shot striking Audette in the right side.

Gillespie and Chalmos were in the back seat, where Gillespie was reloading the gun, when Audette fell down he handed the gun to Gillespie, who laid it on the floor of the cab. The gun discharged as Audette was climbing the fence.

Coroner Nelson said that the deaths of Audette and Chalmos were in the hands of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Audette, who live at Rt. 1, Box 194, Crookston.

Gerald was a graduate of Crookston high school in 1958.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 25, at the Immanuel Lutheran church in Crookston. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery.

Rural Youth Group Hears Police Chief

Law Enforcement Duties Are Commings Outline

Thief River Falls chief of police, addressed the group on police work and duties. He emphasized the importance of cooperation between police to protect business life and property. Safety work which involves the checking and tagging of speed law violators and other traffic violations makes much of the officers' time. This phase is part of the protection of human life and carries property losses caused by careless driving.

Various weapons taken from delinquent youngsters were exhibited, and steps in detecting stolen and matching law violators were outlined.

The following committees were elected for future Rural Youth meetings. Chosen were Darlene Gilbertson, Darlene Lien, Harry Loggens and Dale Sverdrup.

The next meeting of the group will be held on December 14 at the meeting room. Every woman regardless of county, town or county residence are urged to mark the date on their calendar and attend the meeting, said President Dale Sverdrup.

Records indicate that the first generation of cities in Canada—the world's leading producer of the metal—was made in 1953.

State Forced to Trim '60 Highway Program Due to Slash in Funds

The Minnesota highway department's 1960 fiscal year highway program between engineering and right-of-way acquisition program of $135,500,000 has been reduced to $78,000,000, but underlying even this reduced amount of work will be delayed as a result of the withholding of $10,000,000 in construction funds authorized by the federal government on its allotments of federal aid to the states, according to L. F. Zimmerman, commissioner of highways.

Although it has been the practical policy of the department to have as much of the next fiscal year's construction for which plans are completed under contract in the fall and early winter months, we cannot do so this year because of the delay being limited to only one-half of each aid funds on $24,000,000 for this fiscal year, we must also abide by quarterly maximums of federal aid which we can place under contract.

As referred to the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads "Scientifically Obligation Schedule" which sets up the maximum amounts of federal aid which the Highway Department can utilize for each quarter of this fiscal year and which limits the amount of federal allocations to Minnesota last month, the department has been engaged in revising its earlier announced construction programs for the regular trunk highways and interstate highways, but more especially the latter, inasmuch as great emphasis is placed on federal aid in that which is earmarked for work on interstate highways.

Instead of the anticipated $47,000,000 in federal aid for work on interstate highways for this fiscal year, only $23,500,000 will be available, and of this amount only $23,500,700 was allocated, leaving a very sharp reduction in work on the 88-mile interstate highway.

"But even here," Zimmerman said, "we have been able to work out a program which will not be cutback in federal aid but in which the emphasis will be placed on tentate funds which we have not committed cannot be utilized this year because of the limitation on the amount of federal aid which can be obligated in the next year. As a result, the $31,500,000 in federal aid carried over for use on interstate highway construction will be put to work as engineered and on which preliminary plans have been completed will be let to contract before the end of the year as time as we are authorized to do so by federal authorities.

He pointed out that the revised federal interstate highway construction program for this application would not be exceeded $36,000,000 as compared with the originally announced program for this fiscal year of $47,000,000.

The interstate projects remaining to be placed under contract, estimates of the department for the forthcoming December 11 call by bids, follow:

Paper Many Brushes Are Worse Than Useless

While the ordinary toothbrush is the best means available for the battle against tooths decay, few people realize that it is also the principal source of infection in the mouth. State Dental association.

Contrary to what most people found in the average home are more likely to harm than help the mouth and gums, says Dr. Ed. J. Spring, president of the association.

The ideal toothbrush according to Dr. Spring, is one that is small enough to reach all teeth surfaces anywhere in the mouth, bristles must be firm and resilient.

The dentists recommend two brushings daily, after the noon meal and each tooth receiving at least 10 strokes.

For best results, brush upper teeth downward and lower teeth upward. Using a circular motion, work bristles between the teeth and gums. Don't forget to brush the tongue. Don't discard the bristles and chewing surfaces of the teeth either, say the dentists.

According to Dr. Springmeyer, Minnesota dentists feel that correct toothbrushing can cut family dental bills substantially, possibly as much as 50 per cent.

Commenting on School problems, it asked, will be glad to help in the examination of correct after.

Similar studies are still being made in Minnesota, Dr. Morris where officials indicate that "in most cases, the cause of death was mechanical. This includes birds and animals killed by cars, farm accidents, senile weakness and those crippled by hunters."

Similar studies are being carried on throughout the midwest in an effort to uncover more information.

Higher Education Mess

The reaction to the announcement made by University of Minnesota officials that the farm school at Morris would be converted to a college, and operated as a branch of the University, is interesting. The good people of Morris are thrilled with the prospect. Citizens of Waseca, Grand Rapids and Crookston, where other farm schools are located, applaud the decision hopefully, pointing out that the change at Morris is the logical first step in a program that should lead to the conversion of all farm schools to colleges.

Much less enthusiastic is Minneapolis, where leading citizens are convinced the best interests of the state will be served only by concentrating all public facilities for higher education in one big school, to be spread over the presently blighted areas on both sides of the river but not in the Farm school area that is in St. Paul. St. Paul thinks the Regents have made another mistake in the Morris decision, the first mistake being the tricky shift across the river into the blighted area of Minneapolis. St. Paulites favor a big central operation but are sure the expansion of the present University facilities should be to the East and into their city.

Also unhappy about the Morris decision are the small cities that see their own hopes for a state college dimmed.

It is apparent that all of these communities, large and small, are motivated primarily by selfish interest, and that is understandable. They all are able to rationalize their positions, and prove conclusively, to their own satisfaction at least, that their sole concern is what is best for the state as a whole. The good people of these communities are reacting naturally, as normal people may be expected to react, under such conditions.

The responsibility for bringing about such a condition rests with the legislature. The confusion is directly the result of its failure to act on a problem that was recognized as urgent. Instead of meeting the issues head-on, the legislature decided to look the other way and let the state drift into a solution. Leadership from the University itself, on this problem, has been characteristically weak. In the field of higher education Minnesota has been, and is, adrift on a rudderless raft, without map or compass and no destination; moving only with the winds of political pressure and expendiency.

In this statewide problem we are concerned only to the extent of our interests in the overall problems of higher education, and what we get for what we spend. We do have a community interest in what is done here in Northwestern Minnesota, and we believe we are capable of viewing the problem, in this area objectively.

Our area has one state college, located at Bemidji. We are satisfied that the area does not now need two state-supported colleges. The area has one farm school, located at Crookston. The farm school and experiment station at Crookston have made important contributions to the agricultural economy of this corner of the state. We believe there is need for the continuation and expansion of the services this school has provided. If there no longer is a need for those services, then the school should be discontinued, and, if possible, some new use found for the facilities.

But there is no justification for establishing another college at Crookston which is within 25 miles of a neighboring state University. This area of the state will be better served by making the Bemidji State college a good school rather than by establishing a new school for which there is no need.

We urge making Bemidji State college a good school advisedly. We cannot afford low standard schools. Our state colleges must be up-graded to provide higher education for those who deserve higher education, and the emphasis must be shifted from quantity to quality production. Bemidji State college is too large now in physical plant for the actual needs of higher education in Northwestern Minnesota. With the facilities the state has there now the school will be adequate for the real needs of this area for many years to come.

We believe our approach to this problem is objective. We are not asking for anything for Thief River Falls. Under present conditions we could not afford to operate a junior college of our own, and junior colleges do not appeal to us as a solution for the needs of small communities such as ours. Small schools cannot be good schools unless they are very expensive schools, and the taxpayers cannot afford those that are very expensive — not unless they are very rich taxpayers, and very rich taxpayers are not numerous hereabouts.

So we suggest that the proper answer for the present mess is to shift the problems back to the Legislature where they belong. And let us hope that the members of the Legislature will have the courage to act upon these problems in the best interests of the state as a whole. Toward that end we suggest again that a study of the problem be made by an independent agency in the hope that a solution will be found that can be justified by actual need and within the limits of our ability to pay.

Farm Politics

The Secretary of Agriculture has outlined the administration's farm program for the coming session of congress and the announcement drew the usual criticism from those who favor higher rather than lower price supports. But the discussion of this problem is gradually becoming more realistic as it becomes clear that higher price supports can be maintained only by decreasing production. The cotton growers accepted this as essential when they accepted a lower support price for the privilege of growing more cotton. They concluded that they would have to accept lower prices in order to get back into the world market.

It is unfortunate that so much of the talk about the farm problem has been inspired by political considerations rather than by a sincere desire to improve conditions. As a result, the farm bloc no longer has prestige in the nation's law making body. Those who presume to speak for agriculture are hopelessly divided among themselves. They are, in fact, their own worst enemies.

It is interesting to note that Senator John Kennedy, a Massachusetts Democrat and a leading candidate for that party's presidential nomination, now favors the idea of the dairy industry taking over its own support program, setting up its own marketing controls. Some prominent leaders in the industry have advocated such a solution. The support has come mainly from organizations that represent the producers. Those leaders concerned only with the marketing of dairy products have been happy to operate in the security of a government program that assures them against loss.

The dairy industry complained bitterly when Benson lowered the support price of butter, but the fact that there no longer is a butter surplus and that butter is up more than five cents a pound over a year ago, indicates that Benson was right in the predictions he made at that time.

And now, with the surplus gone, would be a good time for the government to return to the dairy industry the responsibility for managing its own affairs. The fruit growers have been reasonably successful in their marketing operations. The potato growers are making progress in getting their production and marketing under control. There is no good reason why the dairy industry should continue to be a plaything of the politicians.

No Rate Increase

The Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission has turned down for a second time a request for higher bus fares by the Twin City Rapid Transit Co. The commission is to be commended for taking this position. Under present conditions it should reject all applications for rate increases over which it has jurisdiction, and serve notice on all the utilities that there will be no rate increases because of wage and salary boosts.

Such a stand would be helpful in holding the line against further inflation. In recent years the utilities have followed the pattern established by industry. Only token resistance has been offered to demands for wage and salary boosts and, with proof of higher costs, they have been permitted to increase the charges for their service.

It would be in the best interests of all of us if all federal and state rate regulating agencies would adopt such a hold-the-line policy.

Marked Patrol Cars to Be Hearing Topic

Commissioner of Highway L. P. Zimmerman announced today that a public hearing would be held in the new Highway Building, St. Paul, for the purpose of adopting rules or regulations establishing uniform colors and markings for motor vehicles which are primarily used in the enforcement of highway traffic regulations by any police department, highway patrol or peace officer. The hearing will be held in room 818 at 10.00 in the forenoon of December 21.

The action follows a directive of the 1959 Minnesota legislature which provided that all of these vehicles shall be uniformly marked.

The hearing will consider rules proposed by Commissioner Zimmerman following a study and report made to him by representatives of police and other agencies who considered various colors, designs, size of lettering, placement of insigna and other distinctive features.

The commissioner announced that copies of the proposed rules have been forwarded to police and other agencies and interested persons for their information in advance of the hearing.

The proposal provides that vehicles used by the Minnesota Highway Patrol shall be maroon in color with gold trim and that the panels and trim of both front doors shall be white in color with contrasting identification markings on these panels.

Vehicles used by county and municipal agencies shall be black in color and may have additional trim in white except that the panels and trim of both front doors shall be white in color with contrasting identification markings on these panels.

The rules also cover lettering, size of identifying shields, and display of identity of the governmental subdivision. One section provides that the words "Police, Sheriff or Highway Patrol" must be displayed on the rear deck of each vehicle. In addition, a method of uniform markings for private motor vehicles when temporarily used in the enforcement of highway traffic regulations is included.

October Traffic Count Down 3 Pct.

Lessened Activity on Iron Range Is Blamed

The steel situation and the port of Duluth continued to be significant factors in state traffic counts during the months of September and October.

Based on an analysis of 27 automatic traffic recorders throughout the state, the Minnesota highway department reports that traffic counts for October were nearly three per cent under figures for the same period in 1958. This drop is attributed mainly to lessened activity in the Iron Range area as a result of the steel strike. The largest difference, a drop of 21 per cent under October of 1958, was noted at the counter on T. H. 169 east of Calumet.

In comparing the traffic count for October with that of September of this year, completion of the grain haul to the seaway accounted for a 15 per cent decrease as recorded on T. H. 2 west of Bagley. On a state-wide basis, October traffic figures were nine per cent under the totals for September.

The only sizeable increase was on T. H. 52 north of Rochester, where traffic incident to construction activities in the area accounted for a 14 per cent gain over September of this year.

Squirrel, Rabbit Hunt Ends Dec. 31

Geese May Be Taken Thru December 15th

"Hunters, don't hang up your guns yet." This bit of advice comes from Dave Vesall, state game chief, who points out that some good squirrel and rabbit hunting lies ahead.

Squirrels, both gray and fox, can be hunted through December 31, from sunrise to sunset, with a daily bag and possession limit a daily bag and possession limit

Also, rabbit hunting is open through March 1. Cottontails, jacks and snowshoe hares are fair game, and while there is no limit on jacks, a bag and possession limit of 10 and 20 is established on cottontails and snowshoes.

Heavy Traffic Is Due over Holiday Weekend

Thanksgiving Day weekend will be marked by the heaviest motor traffic since the Labor Day weekend, Harry A. Sieben, state highway safety director, warned today. "Thousands of our people will be drawn by the magnetic power of this holiday to get 'back home' with relatives and friends who mean the most in their lives," he declared.

"No one plans to become one of the holiday weekend traffic fatalities," he warned. "Somehow, we think that the accidents —especially those which bring death—always will happen to other people."

"The accidents that occur will often be more severe than over a normal weekend, because the cars will be carrying full passenger loads. Family automobiles will be carrying father, mother and the children; bound for a visit with grandparents. College students will be sharing rides back to the home town, many of them for the first time since they enrolled in school back in September."

Sieben urged that travelers expecting to make trips over the Thanksgiving weekend make certain their cars are in good condition, ready for any unusual weather changes which may develop. He hoped the weather would be good, but warned that motorists should always be prepared for the worst from now through March.

QUESTIONS answered for VETERANS

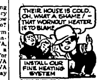
Q—I sold my house and the new buyer has taken over liability for the unpaid balance of my loan. Does this automatically entitle me to another GI loan?

A—No. Loan rights may be restored only for certain compelling reasons such as health or condemnation of your property by the government. They are not restored automatically when you are free from liability.

Q—I am a Korea veteran holding a GI term insurance policy which I understand I can now convert. What can I convert to?

A—You may convert your term insurance to any of six permanent plans offered by the VA, or you may exchange it for a lower-priced term policy. For details, visit your nearest VA contact office, or write the VA insurance office where you pay your premiums.

Q—I am a widow who will be eligible for pension under the new VA pension program which becomes effective July, 1960. In computing my income, may I deduct expenses incident to my husband's last illness and burial?



A—Yes. Payments by an eligible widow of the veteran's just debts, and the expenses of his last illness and burial may be subtracted in computing income for VA pension purposes.

Q—I am an experienced carpenter, but I would like to take a carpentry course under the Korea GI Bill to brush up on my skills. Would this be possible?

A—No. Under the law, a veteran may not train for an occupation in which he is already skilled.

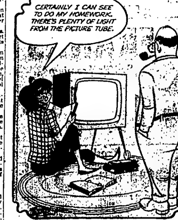
Is A Girl Of 15 Too Young?

THIS WEEK'S LETTER: "I am new in this town. Before I moved here the boy I liked went steady with another girl. A friend arranged our first date. Since then I have grown to like him more. We dated during the summer and a few times since school started. The other day he told me that he enjoyed dating me, but he thought I was too young for him. I'm fifteen, and he is seventeen. I like him very much but I think he likes the first girl again. Please give me some suggestions on how to make him like me again."

Our reply: In our opinion, the boy still likes you. We would be willing to bet that he has only recently reached his 17th birthday and probably just about the same time he decided that while it was all right for a boy of 16 to date "younger" girls, a fellow who had reached 17 should be going out with "older" girls. Boys are generally more "age conscious" at 17 than at any other time. Sometimes it lasts but a short time, and perhaps such will be true in this particular case.



If our assumption is correct and the only reason the boy is now dating the other girl is because she is 16 or 17 we think that time will solve our young lady's problem for her.

The difference of a year or two in the age of a boy and girl is important in the early teens, less important in the later teen years. Few boys 17 or older like to date girls who are fifteen. But a girl of 16, if she is popular, attractive, or has a pleasing personality, usually gets requests for dates from many 19-year old boys.

So, to our young friend, we say, "Don't be too obvious in any efforts to "win" him back. Be friendly and agreeable, and don't turn down other dates while you are trying to win him back. Make yourself as popular as you can with everyone. You'll find that a bright and happy world lies before you.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss, or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, NATIONAL WEEKLY NEWSPAPER SERVICE, FRANKFORT, KY.

AMERICANA Cities to See

Duluth, Minnesota

Earliest legends of the area around Duluth, Minnesota concern the Sioux Indians. Later came the Chippewa Indians, followed by French, British explorers, then the Americans. Radisson and Groseilier, French fur trappers and explorers were in the region in 1660 and were probably the first white men to see the site of Duluth. Daniel de Greysolon Sieur du Lhut, French voyageur for whom the city was named, raised the French flag on the shores of Lake Superior in 1679. Duluth was platted in 1854 and incorporated as a city in 1870.

Duluth is famed for its excellent climate. Summers are mild and refreshing, with cool winds from Lake Superior, the world's largest body of fresh water.

The 1950 U.S. Census lists the population of Duluth as 104,511. Agriculture is important in St. Louis County. Chief products are butter, eggs, poultry, hay, potatoes, fruit and vegetable crops. The Census of Agriculture lists 7,472 farms in the county. More than 60 per cent of the iron ore produced in the United States and 25 percent of world production is mined in northern Minnesota. Iron ore deposits, grain and dairy products and vast forest areas insure not only a continuation of large tonnages for water and rail carriers but also the continuing industrial development of the region.

Duluth and Superior are connected by three swing type railroad bridges and two bridges for motor and pedestrian traffic, one a bascule bridge and the other a swing bridge with the longest swing span in the United States.

Points of interest include the famed 26-mile Skyline Drive and Enger Tower, on Duluth's highest point of land.

HOUSE WITH BANNISTER

By S. J. Stites

"BRAND new, that's why I saved it for last." The real estate man threw open the door and moved his cigar to the opposite side of his mouth as though to make more room for them to enter.

Tom Fender glanced at his wife's face as she moved through the door ahead of him. For the first time this afternoon she seemed pleased. The tired cape-cod, the too expensive french provincial and even the friendly two story frame had failed to move her as did this house. Tom frowned and followed.

"Two bedrooms, living room—say, I must show you the kitchen." The agent hurried across the tiled living room as he gestured for them to follow.

"Basement?" asked Tom.

"Nope, utility room—no stairs in the place. Be good for you when you get old."

Tom thought of the nice basement they had seen in the frame house and as for getting old—well, stairs didn't scare him.

"Two steps and you can reach anything in the room." The man demonstrated this fact, using the cigar as a pointer to indicate the labor saving arrangement.

Tom pulled his thoughts from the comfortable old frame, the house that had made him feel comfortable for the first time since they had sent him to take over the branch office here and tried to concentrate on what the agent was saying. He looked past the tobacco pointer through the small window over the sink. Just across the drive was another house, identical to this one except that it was painted a different color. His eyes moved to his wife's face again. A look akin to rapture was there as her hand moved slowly over the smooth finish of the birch cabinet. "Oh, it's just beautiful!" she said.

With a sudden feeling of being cramped, Tom moved from the room. How small this place seemed. Again his thoughts were upon the last house. Mentally, he pictured it with a new coat of paint and odd repairs that he knew himself capable of doing. Besides it would give them something to do while they were waiting for the baby to arrive. At that moment his wife and the agent were pushing past him to look at the bathroom. Already her coat exhibited a suspicious fullness. The family they had always talked of would soon make a house like this seem even smaller.

At the sound of her words he took a deep breath and exhaled slowly, resignedly. Nancy was sold.

The man left them at the motel with a promise that they would give him their final decision as soon as they had a chance to talk it over.

"I could tell him which one I want right now," said Nancy as they entered the room.

"Yeh, I know." Tom's words lacked enthusiasm.

"Course we'll have to paint and scrub——."

"Paint? It's brand new!"

"New? Oh, you mean that development thing, that's not for us. It has no personality and it's so small."

"But I thought—. Well, you certainly oohed and aaaahed enough over it."

"Certainly, it's beautiful. Every woman dreams of a brand new house and maybe someday when we can build—. Oh, Tom the house with the bannister is the one for us. I felt almost like I was home again. I'll bet that bannister is just like the one we had and how we loved to slide—."

"You know what?" said Tom, as soon as he regained his voice.

"I'm going to let you have the first slide on that bannister."

THE 86th Congress, during its first session, appropriated nearly $15 billion to pay for a wide variety of aerospace projects ranging from air traffic control towers to satellite probings of the radiation band around the earth.

This roundup includes procurement, research and development and related construction funds appropriated for the Department of Defense, National Aeronautics and Space Administration, Federal Aviation Agency, and the Atomic Energy Commission. It does not include funds for maintenance, operations or salaries.

Largest single amount of money—$6,657 million—was appropriated for the Air Force, Navy and Army. This was $140 million less than requested in the Federal Budget. Along with funds appropriated in previous years, this provides for the procurement of about 1,500 aircraft. This includes additional strategic bombers, jet tankers, fighter-bombers, and turboprop transports.

Appropriation for Defense Department missile programs was $3,624 million, which is $7.6 million more than requested in the budget. These funds will provide for the accelerated development of anti-missile missiles. The high priority ICBM's and air-launched missiles will receive more funds in Fiscal Year 1960 than in the previous year. Present air defense missiles will be funded at just about half the amount of last year, a reduction of more than $500 million.

Missile programs that are not technologically promising or have been superseded by more advanced developments have been cancelled.

Congress appropriated $3,817 million for research, development test and evaluation which is $44 million more than requested. The extra funds were provided for anti-submarine warfare.

It is not possible to make valid comparisons with this amount for previous years since it includes many development projects formerly included in procurement appropriations. But the trend, figured on either the new or old basis, is upward.

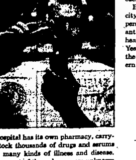
How do you measure the cost of keeping your hospital ready?

The whole city is sleeping . . . the streets are quiet and dark. Everything is closed for the night . . . everything, except the hospital.

Here, the lights are ever on. A hurried call sets the emergency room staff into instant action. The nurses are making their usual rounds, pausing to soothe a frightened child, stopping again to answer the needs of an elderly patient. This is business as usual . . . twenty-four hours a day, every day of the year.



Your hospital must be fully staffed for 100% occupancy . . . even if there may be some empty beds. Your hospital must be ready at all times. The next hour or the next day may bring the need for every bed . . . for every available life-saving machine . . . for every drug in the pharmacy.

This is the cost of being ready

The hospital is a small city that never sleeps . . . a city that is prepared to meet all the needs of all its patients. Most hospitals have their own electric power plants for emergencies . . . extensive cleaning and repairing facilities to keep the hospitals bright and efficient . . . even their own kitchens that prepare nutritious foods for each patient.

Lights, cleanliness, food . . . these are only a few of the many important, personal everyday necessities that your hospital provides for your comfort and swift recovery.

The hospital has its own pharmacy, carrying in stock thousands of drugs and serums to treat many kinds of illness and disease. Eighty percent of these drugs were unknown just 20 years ago! For example, over 400 new medicines have been added to hospital shelves during the last year. Many are rare and most are expensive . . . but your hospital must have them all, ready to give relief if you should ever need them.

This is the cost of being ready

The finest machines and the most modern wonder drugs would be useless without dedicated hospital personnel to use them. The hospital people . . . the hundreds of highly trained technicians, doctors, nurses and administrators . . . the many cooks, engineers and custodians organize the countless details into a living, effective hospital city. Ten years ago, hospitals employed between one and two persons for every bed . . . today, there are more than two hospital employees for each bed, 24 hours a day.

But the wonder of it all . . . this hospital city with its countless machines, drugs and personnel . . . is your giant health-care servant, ready to protect and sustain your good health and the health of your loved ones. Yes, the cost of being ready is great . . . but the security of knowing that complete, modern hospital care will be there when you need it is something more precious than money.

So, the next time you walk by a hospital late at night . . . let the light shining from its windows remind you that your hospital and its many services are always there when you need care!

You can depend on Blue Cross, too!

As your hospital protection becomes more complete . . . as new drugs, new machines and new services are made ready for your welfare . . . the value of Blue Cross to you also increases. This is because Blue Cross provides full coverage for most vital hospital services. And, of course, Blue Cross provides liberal allowances for room and board and general nursing services. So, the next time you think of hospital care . . . think too, of the modern, economical way to help prepay the cost of this vital care . . . Blue Cross, your hospital's own health-care plan.

Always there when you need care

WATER—one of our most important resources for survival—is the theme of National Farm-City Week 1959. During the week, November 20-26, the aim was for a better understanding of water and watershed protection.

We all know the value of the air that we breathe—and what would happen to us if our supply of air was cut off. We know that we must have food to live; but how many realize that we can live much longer without food than we can survive without water?

The availability of water, and the quality of the water that is available are of direct importance to us all, regardless of where we happen to live, city or country. Thus the aim of Farm-City Week 1959: to place emphasis on the importance of protecting and insuring our vital water sources.

It is important that farmers know the value of watershed protection, for our water supply falls in the form of rain and snow in the forests and in the fields.

It is important that the industrial giants of the cities realize that pollution and waste of water resources is a needless crime that will bring misery to the future generation, if not the present.

It is important that every individual realize that, while it is often quite convenient, a stream is not the proper place for dumping trash, rubbish, tin cans and bottles.

The protection of our water supply concerns us all. The use and treatment of all land in a drainage determines to a large extent the quantity, quality, and dependability of the water supply in that watershed for agricultural, domestic, municipal, industrial, recreational and other purposes.

R. Lake Indian Council Heads Address Lions

Chairman Jourdain Treasurer Needham Outline Policies

Roger Jourdain, chairman of the Red Lake Indian tribal council, and Dan Needham of the Goodridge community, treasurer, discussed the new and more progressive council which took over the administration of reservation affairs in talks at the Lions club luncheon meeting last Wednesday noon in the Elks club rooms.

Arrangements had been made by Bill LaFave for the appearance of the two officials, who were introduced by W. E. Dahlquist.

Pointing out that the need for reorganizing the tribal government had reached a climax following the death a few years ago of Peter Graves, long-time leader in reservation affairs, Needham outlined a program designed to improve the status of the Indians. He said an effort is being made to build up the band's trust fund, to improve educational facilities for the Indians, and to promote industry in the area, stating that the council is prepared to offer incentives.

Roger Jourdain recounted the history of the reservation, going back to the 1860s, and said that in an election in 1934 the old chief had retained control of the government by a narrow margin of 19 votes. He also told of the maneuvering that went on before the new regime was placed in power. He stressed the importance of local administration of Indian affairs, and closed by saying that the council is now beginning to see daylight in its efforts to solve tribal problems.

Postmaster R. J. Dryden announced his annual "Mail Early for Christmas" campaign today and outlined plans for insuring delivery of cards and parcels by Christmas Eve.

"We've found from past experience," the postmaster said "that the two biggest factors in successfully handling the Christmas mail rush are first, to get our postoffice facilities into high gear from every standpoint, and second, and most important, to have the full cooperation of the mailing public."

He then offered some helpful suggestions by station. "It's not too soon to start checking your Christmas gift and card lists very carefully — making sure that each address includes full name, street and number, city, zone and state." He also said, "Early Christmas shoppers should stock up now on heavy wrapping paper, sturdy corrugated cartons, strong cord, and paper adhesive tape to insure secure packing and wrapping of their Christmas gifts. Buy stamps for your Christmas cards now, before the rush, and thus avoid those last minute Christmas mailing headaches."

Predicting that this year's Christmas mail will set a new, all time record, the postmaster especially directed his appeal to "the lady of the house" for cooperation on his "Mail Early for Christmas" campaign. She's the one who usually selects the Christmas cards, buys most of the gifts, and sees to it that the

E. Jewell Reports 39,845 Visited Old Mill Park in 1959

Attendance Down from 49,004 Registered in Centennial Year 1958

Although visitors at Old Mill State Park were fewer this year than during 1958, Minnesota's Centennial Year with its attendant celebrations at the park, the total stayed remarkably high. This is what the annual report of Park Superintendent Ernie Jewell shows as the park continues to be one of the most used of the 67 in the state park system.

Total park visitors and guests this year was 39,845 as compared to the 49,004 during 1958. Campers were about the same both years with 2007 registered last year and 2,053 this year. Tourist vehicles registered numbered 459 last year and 452 this year.

Visitors to the park in 1958 came in 8,528 cars and 253 buses while this year they came in 7,230 cars and 259 buses.

Total revenue of the park this year amounted to $8,324, according to Superintendent Jewell, while last year the total was $8,943. The total this year came from the following sources with last year's figures in parentheses: refectory, $3,932 ($4,047); bathhouse, $586 ($563); camping, $368 ($238); stickers, $3,320 ($3,962); miscellaneous, $86 ($130).

Income Taxes and Social Security to Be Topic Thursday

Area Farmers Invited to Share in Discussion by Two Authorities

Income tax and social security are scheduled for discussion at a farm meeting set for Thursday. The meeting will be in the court house meeting room and will start at 1:30 p.m., stated County Agent Paul Stelmaschuk. Farmers and homemakers are urged to attend the meeting.

In another month farmers will be filing estimates of their income tax or paying their tax. Knowing all the exemptions provided under the law can save money. Laws are changed from year to year and it is well to know about exemptions, and law changes even if an agent works out the tax payment for the farmers. The income tax subject will be discussed by Paul Hasbargen, farm management specialist at the University of Minnesota.

Socail security also is vital to all farm families. This is true for young couples as well as those who are planning retirement. Social security covers farm families in case of the farmer meeting a fatal accident or being disabled. Wives need to know the extent of this coverage and are urged to attend the meeting with their husbands. Also, older families planning retirement need to know how much social security will really pay them after they retire. This subject will be discussed by a representative of the social security office at Grand Forks. All farmers and homemakers are asked to mark their calendar now and come to the meeting Thursday, Stelmaschuk stated.

Soil Sample Analysis Show Need for Added Fertilizer in County

Analysis of soil samples taken in Pennington county the past two years revealed that the greatest need is for nitrogen, phosphate and potash, according to Paul Stelmaschuk, county agent.

The most acute need for potash is in the eastern one-third of the county, Stelmaschuk said, and at least 90 per cent of soil in the county needs phosphate treatment. Nitrogen requirements are determined by the original organic matter in the soil, the rate of organic matter breakdown and cropping practice.

Nitrogen fertilizer should be applied in the fall, according to the county agent. This will distribute the labor load on the farm and will also prevent "fertilizer burn" of seed. The breakdown of nitrogen fertilizer is determined by spring temperatures with warmer temperatures causing higher bacterial action.

There is great danger in putting on "just a little fertilizer" according to Stelmaschuk. This will promote the first stooling of plants which can be damaged by early drought if there is no extra fertilizer to carry through the growth. Too little fertilizer may thus actually retard a crop. The use of the recommended amount of the proper fertilizer is urged to prevent this from happening.

On the average, reports from the state laboratory have recommended the use of from 120 to 150 pounds of fertilizer per acre at a cost of about four cents a pound. With the proper use of the right fertilizer, a net return of $2 from every $1 invested in fertilizer may be expected.

Keep off River Ice, Autoists Warned

Practice Imperils Young Skaters, Police State

Motorists who have been using the river as a thoroughfare were cautioned today by city police that practice will lead to arrest and prosecution.

According to city officials, many children have been using the river for skating and others have used the slopes of the river banks for sliding and skiing. The use of automobiles and other vehicles on the river is extremely dangerous to others who are using the ice for recreational purposes.

"Driving vehicles on the ice will not be tolerated," the police department warned. "Anyone who does so will be arrested and prosecuted."

3 in Hospital after Mishap at Highlanding

Injuries Result When Cars Collide on River Ice Sunday

Three of the seven occupants of two cars which collided head-on on the river ice west of the Highlanding bridge about 4:30 p.m. Sunday, were hospitalized at Northwestern hospital here, according to Sheriff Charles Richards.

The youths, ranging from 13 to 18 years of age, were riding in cars driven by Curtis Hulett, 13, and Larry Pittman, 15, and are residents of the Highlanding area.

According to Richards, the car driven by Pittman was going west meeting the car driven in the other direction by Hulett. In the collision which resulted, Clayton Omlid, 17, received a fractured skull and other injuries while Ronny Howard, 18, suffered multiple cuts and bruises. Omlid and Howard were in the car with Hulett, who escaped injury.

In the other car, Pittman, who was the driver, had a facial cut and is hospitalized with a possible fractured knee. Roger Hovet, 15, sustained a broken leg and cuts, while Duane Howard, 15, with cuts, and Larry Stucy, 15, were treated or examined and released.

Neither driver was licensed and both will face charges in juvenile court, Richards said. He also scorned the practice of driving cars on the ice, both from the standpoint of danger of collisions and from breaking through thin ice, and strongly urged that everyone halt such a dangerous pastime.

A Rink on the River Was a Popular Place Fifty Years Ago

The above scene from the Alf Borry collection of pictures indicates that the community's skating rink was once maintained on the river. And this winter the river will again be used for skating according to the plans of the newly organized Hockey Booster Club that is out to provide more and better skating facilities in the community.

The water tank, now nearing the end of a long life of useful service, was young and sturdy when this picture was taken 50 years ago, and the old stern-wheeler river boat, put up for the winter on what now is the Elks Park, was old. At the right is the warming house.

Civil Defense Day to Be Observed Dec. 7th

The "day that will live in infamy" in December 1941 will 18 years ago—will be observed by American citizens on December 7 as a reminder of the importance of vigilance in civil defense and the home front, December 7 has been designated National Civil Defense Day.

"Free through Preparedness" is the theme of this year's Civil Defense Day. Director Leo A. Haegh of the office of civil and defense mobilization, attended up the need for civilian preparedness against a nuclear attack.

"Free of all, preparedness means building a family fallout shelter or a community protection; can be obtained by or little or no EXPENSE in a home-built fallout shelter. A few basic, inexpensive items, obtainable at most hardware stores through Civil Defense and local civil defense authorities or by ordering from Box 1959, Battle Creek, Michigan. It will tell you how to build your shelter or have it built.

"Preparedness means also expanding your shelter to have a two week supply of food and water, a first aid kit and battery powered radio, blankets and other essentials for survival," Haegh said. The radio would be used to receive official instructions broadcast on CONELRAD, the civil defense emergency radio system, at 640 or 1240 kilocycles.

"Finally, preparedness means learning the civil defense attack warning signals. A wailing siren or short wheistle blasts for three minutes means an attack is imminent. A steady siren or whistle blast of three to five minutes means no time to CONELRAD for official civil defense instructions is left," Haegh said.

Three warning signals would be issued and understood by all: hostile planes, missiles or submarines were discovered approaching our radar outposts. OCDM's Office of Emergency Planning will issue directions to every section of the North American Air Defense Command. Signals and daily civil defense warning officers ready to relay information to 200 warning points throughout the country. Each warning point will relay the information to communities within sirens or bells can be warned.

"These precautions against an other Pearl Harbor would mean little, Haegh points out, unless people have prepared to survive a nuclear attack and know what to do when the warning sounds.

Backed up by such prepared ness, the military strength of America's armed forces is a powerful deterrent offensive upon the country's intentions. The reaction of evil people in the nuclear war is, therefore, a chance for peace and we must build up.

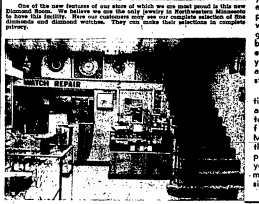
The Jewel Box

Since purchasing the Watzke Jewelry we have completely remodeled the entire store and put in a complete new stock of merchandise. We've added many new and beautiful lines which space did not permit us to handle in our smaller store next to the Falls Theatre.



Watzke Jewelry occupies the corner location which is block Martins trimmed with silver and gold and with the name lettered and above that is our sign of white plastic on the black Marlite background.

This is a shot from the front of our store showing our new display cabinets with the Diamond Room in the background. Our new Diamond Room provides a new decorated lighting. The background and the one on the watch repair department and the stairs leading to our New Diamond Room.

One of the new features of our store of which we are most proud is the new Diamond Room. We believe we are the only jewelry in Northwestern Minnesota to have this facility. Here our customers may see our complete selection of fine diamonds and diamond watches. They can make their selections in complete privacy.

We jewelry store would be complete without our excellent watch repair department . . . We have one of the best. It's completely equipped and we employ a highly skilled watchmaker to give you prompt, dependable service on your watch repairs.

Sometimes we have to say no

• Occasionally a customer asks us for some medication he's read about, and we must refuse him. The reason is that the particular medicine must be taken under a physician's supervision, and is available only on prescription. This is a safeguard to your health. As your pharmacist, we suggest you see a physician if you feel you need prescription medication. We'll be happy to fill his prescription. Till then, perhaps our greatest service is saying "No."

PUBLIC OPINION

Editor The Times:

Inasmuch as I've received many greetings from your area during a period of convalescence, I felt I wanted to write you a summary of what has taken place. Pastor J. A. Riveness of Karlstad mentioned my infirmity over KTRF to which there was encouraging response.

On October 12, near Granite Falls, Minn., I had a mishap while driving. The car began skidding in the wet snow, left the road, went for the ditch and hit a telephone pole. First x-rays did not reveal the separation which did occur in the right shoulder. A later x-ray showed the damage which I was advised to have corrected. On November 17, I underwent surgery at Immanuel hospital, Mankato; I was released Nov. 21. I'm carrying the right arm in a sling and may not have full use of it for a time. The car was quite badly damaged but has been repaired. Much worse could have happened. I'm glad I was not going at a high rate of speed. I was dazed for some hours. It has been so good to hear from many friends in your area. Since June 4, I've been interim pastor at Evangelical Covenant church, Trimont, Minn., Martin county, in southern Minnesota.

Now and then, I've seen Dr. W. M. Feigal, my doctor while I was in Thief River Falls. He is at Lakeside clinic, Fairmont, the county seat. It has been nice to meet him again; he attended me on various occasions in TRF.

Greetings! I get the Times regularly and it is of interest to follow events.

Useless Degrees

In recent years, a popular subject for cussin' and discussin' has been the system of higher education in the United States.

Hours of radio and television time have been devoted to this topic and unmeasurable columns of type have been set for magazine, newspaper and book readers.

Summarizing these written and spoken words, they have been concerned with growing college enrollments, projected enrollments, faculties and finances necessary to meet the flood of people seeking college degrees.

Should a great number of these people go to college? Will it be worth their while and will the country as a whole benefit?

There is still a strong feeling by many at the controls of businesses and industries that a college education for their particular line of endeavor is a handicap or, at the very least, that training is worthless and that those without any particular background in the work can be trained by them to do a better job.

With such a strong feeling on the part of too many employers, the question immediately arises, "Should the public continue to provide educational facilities in these fields at great cost, to build bigger and bigger colleges at great expense?" And, from the standpoint of individuals, the questions may justly be asked, "Should we go to college? Is college training today worth the expenditure of time and money that we would make?"

Such "brash" questions immediately precipitate a flood of angry answers. Summarizing them, we discover that the defenders of the principle of "a college education for everyone" feel that, disregarding the academic course content that is given students, they derive certain intangible benefits which are "good for them and for society."

But was it worth the time and money? That is the question the students and their parents should ask themselves. The investment of time and money in any enterprise should only be made if there can be some adequate returns, both in finances and security. If you send your son or daughter to college, will it be worth it? There are some who doubt it.

How much does a college degree cost? Let's take the case of a graduate from this area who recently moved away. Employed in a different field, he was earning $5,000 a year before he went to college. He figured that the cost of his education was $3,000 a year for five years — a total of $15,000. Adding to this the five years of employment he lost while in school, this man conservatively estimates his cost for a degree at $10,000. Two more factors must also be included in the "cost"— the five years of valuable experience this man would have had on his previous job and the five priceless years of his life which can never be replaced.

A simple problem of division reveals that it will take this man about 25 years of work in his present job to break even on his investment and, by that time, he will have reached an age where he will be "too old" for his employer.

Was it worth it? This college graduate has serious doubts today after six years of experience in his new field. "If I were to do it over again, I would take the money I spent and put it into a home and business," he said. "I would have been much further ahead by now. Friends of mine never went to college and are further ahead than I will ever be."

"By 'further ahead,' I don't mean just the dollars and cents or the material things I possess," he continued. "The field in which I now work has, through the years, commanded a certain amount of respect and considerable scrutiny. Historically, we have been placed on a pedestal and now, because we fail to meet the modern materialistic inspection, we are denied the association of the very people we should know best. Where we go and what we do is dictated by our net income and that, believe me, is very little."

There are, of course, those in a better financial and social position who will spout a philosophical attack against this "degrading" of a college education as "crass materialism." They argue that the benefits of such an education cannot be measured in mere dollars and cents but must also include a nebulous moral and spiritual uplifting as well as other certain undefined advantages.

(Isn't it strange that these defenders of education for the good of society, these self-made philosophers, are always in a financial and social bracket where they can afford to spout such nerve-deadening slogans as, "Money isn't everything.")

Inasmuch as this nation recognizes the success or failure of an individual by the money he has in the bank and the property he owns, it is difficult not to put a dollars-and-cents valuation on a college education.

As long as this yardstick is applied and as long as income does not compensate for the length and cost of training and the skills learned during that training, there is good reason to repeat the questions again and again, "Is a college education worth the time and money that students and/or parents put into it? Is it worth while for the public to maintain these educational facilities if the educations the students get do not help them upgrade themselves and society as a whole?"

Until society recognizes this unbalance between training and experience on one hand and income on the other and until those who spend their time and money for this training and experience are given credit for it rather than oftentimes being penalized for it, the ivy-covered halls of our institutions of higher education can well be at least partially emptied and students can better invest in more material things to meet the attitudes of the materialistic society in which we live.

BEMIDJI OR ROOSEVELT HEADING FOR BB TOP?

After Art "Basketball" Johlfs of Minneapolis, state's best known amateur sports commentator and analyst, stretches his neck from center to backboard it rarely takes more than a week for some darkhorse team to dribble into the spotlight and revise his list of "favorites" for the state tournament, toward which thousands of Minnesota basketball players and fans already are turning an intent gaze.

"The next state champ?" says Johlfs, with all the confidence of a seer: "Minneapolis Roosevelt or Bemidji—for both this season and next!"

Women Curlers Asked to Sign up for Season's Play

The women curlers are now in the process of organizing their teams and their leagues for the 1959-60 season. Much enthusiasm is being exhibited by the women curlers, and most of this enthusiasm has been generated by the completely-modern, newly built curling building erected on the Fairgrounds this past summer.

It is requested that all women wishing to participate in curling this season should call Mrs. Curtis Swanson, MU 1-1696, or Mrs. Terry Amundgaard, MU 1-1369, and arrangements for joining a team will be made.

A good program, including a showing of color slides and movies of the 1959 fly-in of the Experimental Aircraft Assn, is scheduled at a meeting of the Thief River Falls Flying club at 8 p.m. Thursday. The meeting will be held at the airport administration building.

A business meeting will also be held, along with discussions on how to increase club activity, with club president Robert Wurst presiding.

Wurst also reminded flying club members that the club Cruiser is newly re-licensed and in good flying condition, and that they should take advantage of comparatively mild winter temperatures to fly the plane.

All members of the flying club, whether active or inactive, are urged to attend Thursday evening's meeting as several important matters pertaining to the future of the club will be discussed.

Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson

The Lid-lifter

The basketball Prowlers will tip off the lid of their 1959-60 schedule on Tuesday night when they meet the Red Lake Falls Eagles on the Red Lake Falls high school gymnasium court.

Last season the Prowlers also opened their cage schedule by playing the Eagles at Red Lake Falls, and the blue-and-gold marked up a 62 to 46 win. Of the Prowlers who started last season's opener — Phil Hanson, Bob Pearson, Ronnie Hanson, Mickey Hanson, and Lynn Nicholson — only Pearson and Ron Hanson are available for this season's club.

What should make Tuesday night's contest a toss-up is the fact that the Prowlers will be missing the 23 points that forward Phil Hanson racked up last year. Phil, who is attending Augsburg college, notched ten field goals and three free throws, getting five of his field goals in the first period as the locals sped into a 22 to 12 lead.

Red Lake Falls, too, lost three of last season's starters — Pete Boylan, Andy Fladeland, and Dave Norton — by graduation, but the Eagles have Jason Huseby and Tom Byers returning for this season's play. And it must be recalled that Huseby, the Eagles' stellar all-round athlete, garnered seven field goals and a free throw against the Prowlers. He should be quite a threat on Tuesday night.

Coach Hartley Story, in his first season as a cage coach here, having moved here from Walnut Grove where he had remarkable success, has been sending the ten-man varsity squad through intensive drills in preparation for the season opener and in an effort to determine which five boys will make the strongest unit. Except for Ron Hanson, who has nailed down the center position, the starting berths for Tuesday night's game are in doubt. It appears probable that forwards Ron Solheim and Bob Pearson, veterans from last year's squad, and guards Steve Embury and Dave Hauswirth, also members of last season's tournament squad, will join Hanson as starters. Excepting Hanson, who is a junior, these boys are seniors. But it is quite certain that Darrell Nelson, Gary Anderson, Ron Ulferts, and Eddie Lietzow will see action early.

The Prowlers will make their debut on the home court on Friday, Dec. 4, when they meet East Grand Forks Sacred Heart.

The First Casualty

The hockey Prowlers moved into are Arena rink on Friday morning. Oscar Bakke, Jim Kelly and Chuck Dostal, getting valuable assistance from a number of the Prowlers, completed the ice sheet Friday morning, and at 9:00 A.M. coach Gene Sack had his varsity candidates in action.

The first practice session was marred by an injury to Jack Houfek. Houfek, a right wing on the Larry Poole line, suffered a sprained ankle when, during skating drills, he tumbled and crashed into the boards. At first it was feared that the aggressive winger had broken a bone in the ankle, but the latest reports are that the injury is a severe sprain. Jack will be out of action for two or three weeks, and this absence will handicap coach Sack in forming the Prowlers' second line.

With the Prowlers' opening game slated for Tuesday, Dec. 15, against coach Sergio Gambucci's Grand Forks Redskins, here, coach Sack, and his assistant George Schlieff, will have a couple of solid weeks in which to get varsity lineup prepared.

Troubles

Elmer Poole spent a couple of days in St. Paul the other week, witnessing the Denver Mavericks in a pair of International hockey league games against the St. Paul Saints. The two teams split the series, by 3 to 1 scores. Elmer's trip down there, of course, was primarily to visit with his son Joey, who is a member of the Denver club.

Incidentally, we are sorry to report that Elmer has been a patient in the Northwestern hospital for the past week. We know we voice the sentiments of all the sports fans in this area when we wish Elmer a speedy recovery.

Elmer reported that the Denver club, coached by former North Dakota U coach Bob May, in second place in the league standings, is having financial troubles. To add to the club's difficulties there has been friction among the executives, and last week the board of directors, by a five to three vote, ousted Gene Clift as club president and elevated Charles Byrne to the presidency. Bob May was named general manager in addition to his coaching duties.

The club had been delinquent in its rink rental, owing about $2,000 and president Byrne and a couple of well-to-do fans gave the city a check to cover the past debts.

The Mavericks, representing Denver, a city of 750,000, had, in four games played in Denver, drawn a crowd in excess of 2,000 fans only once. And the 2,000 fans per game number is the break-even mark.

It's a dim future for Denver's professional hockey venture, and we'll guess that Bob May will live to rue the day he decided to leave the security and prestige of hockey coaching at North Dakota to join the dog-eat-dog professional ranks. And Joey, being the only non-Canadian on the Denver club, isn't too happy with the setup.

Gerald Hinze New Red Lake Sheriff

Named to Serve Late Carl Kankel's Unexpired Term

Gerald Hinze of Red Lake Falls was appointed sheriff by the Red Lake county board of commissioners last week to fill the three-year unexpired term of Carl Kankel, veteran county sheriff, who died Nov. 17 of a heart attack.

Hinze, a native of Minneapolis, was with Brinks, Inc., in Minneapolis for five years before moving to Red Lake Falls three years ago. Until last week, he operated his own produce business in Red Lake Falls.

Until the appointment of Hinze, the sheriff's office was operated by Mrs. Kankel, the deputy sheriff, and Max Graham of the state bureau of criminal apprehension.

Mrs. Kankel will remain with the sheriff's office as a full time deputy, according to the new sheriff.

Hockey Boosters to Set up Rink, Warming House on River Here

Officers of the recently organized Hockey Boosters' Club met with representatives of local civic, fraternal and veteran organizations and several school and city officials Friday evening at the Eagles Hall to proceed with their plans to secure more adequate skating facilities for the community.

Plans for an outdoor rink on the river near the Third St. bridge were approved, and a warming house, 14'x24' will be provided. The cost will be met by a sale of hockey booster buttons, the sale to get under way this week. Some funds have already been made available by individuals and organizations.

This rink will be used for public skating only, no hockey, and the warming house will be directed at all times by a responsible person. It is expected that this facility will be available well ahead of the Christmas holiday. Dewey Amiot was named chairman of the button sale committee, and Lowell Collins was elected vice president of the club.

Clarence Amiot, club chairman, states that a citizen's committee will be named to consider the long range needs of skating facilities in the community and to bring in a report on solutions for the present inadequate seating capacity at the city Arena. The group will meet again Friday evening at 8:00 o'clock in the Auditorium.

TRF Student on UND Rifle Squad

The Army R.O.T.C. at the University of North Dakota has named 13 students to the rifle team, according to M/Sgt. Warren G. Holden, instructor in military science. They include Dalan Green, Thief River Falls. The rifle team plans to hold a number of matches this year against teams from other schools. Some will be in direct competition, others will be completed by mail.

One Chance in Four of Being Injured in '59

What are your chances of suffering during the year an injury severe enough to require medical attention or restrict your activity? A little better than one in four, according to the Health Insurance Institute.

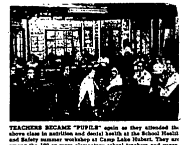
Figures produced by the U.S. National Health Survey program showed that in a 12 month period about 47 million Americans received injuries that involved medical care or caused them to limit their usual activities for at least a day. This total, said the Institute, represented a rate of 28 injuries per 100 persons in the U.S.

Among the injured persons, six out of ten had some activity restriction, eight out of ten needed medical care, and one out of six were employed persons who lost one or more days from work.

One of the noteworthy findings, said the Institute, was that youth was more prone to injury than the aged. Persons between the ages of 15 and 24 suffered injuries at the rate of 33 per 100. The under-15 age group had a 31 per 100 injury rate while the 25-64 bracket and persons 65 and over both had rates of about 25 per 100.

Men sustained injuries about half again as often as women, the rates being 33 per 100 for men and 23 per 100 for women.

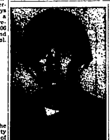
Although the over-all injury rate for women was lower than for men, the female advantage was built up in the earlier years. By the time they reached the age of 65 or over, women had injuries about twice as frequently as men, 32 per 100 to 17 per 100.



The rates were just about reversed in the under-15 bracket, with boys incurring injuries at a rate of 38 per 100 and girls at 24 per 100. In the 15-24 bracket, males were twice as injury prone, 48 per 100 to 21 per 100 for women.

About 10 per cent of the injuries resulted from motor vehicle accidents, 17 per cent occurred while at work, 41 per cent happened in the home, and the remaining 32 per cent were due to "other or unknown" types of accidents.

The injury rates by place of residence were very similar, the government study showed. The injury rate for persons living in urban areas was 28 per 100, for persons in rural non-farm areas it was 29 per 100, and for rural farm areas, 27 per 100.



The various injuries and accidents took a heavy toll in lost days, said the Institute.

Some 424 million days of restricted activity resulted from injuries during the 12-month period, including 114 million days spent in bed at home or in a hospital. Also included in the restricted activity days were 106 million days lost from work and 13 million days lost from school.

TEACHERS BECAME "PUPILS" again as they attended the above class in nutrition and dental health at the School Health and Safety summer workshop at Camp Lake Hubert. They are among the 100 or more elementary school teachers and supervisors from all parts of the state who gained new ideas on school health instruction to bring back to their classes. Selected for their interest in school health projects, the teachers were provided with scholarships from their county Christmas Seal organizations to attend the five-day workshop. Standing in rear is a staff member, Dr. William Jordan, chief of dental health section, Minnesota department of health.

Schools Asked to Observe Yule Seal Week Dec. 6 to 12

Children to Learn of Role of Christmas Seals in Promoting Good Health

School children throughout the state will have an opportunity the week of Dec. 7 to learn of the part Christmas Seals play in promoting good health. This week has been set aside as Christmas Seal week for the schools.

The youngsters will receive pamphlets and booklets giving the facts about TB and its control. They will be reminded of the annual school tuberculin testing surveys which the TB and Health association conducts in effort to keep everyone safe from one of the world's major health scourges—tuberculosis.

Teachers may find this an opportune time to explain to their pupils how the tuberculin skin test locates hidden tuberculosis, thus preventing spread of this highly contagious disease. They can point out, too, how chest x-rays help find persons who have active TB, and how Christmas Seal funds are used to help TB from ever developing by promoting good health habits and community safety measures.

Last year, 232,738 tuberculin tests were given in Minnesota schools, industries and communities by the Christmas Seal organization in cooperation with local health agencies and school administrators, J. G. Neal, state TB association managing director, said, in calling attention to the year-round case finding surveys to detect tuberculosis infection. Because of the whole hearted participation by both pupils and teachers in testing surveys, 420 certificates for TB control have been awarded to Minnesota schools during the past year.

Good Eating Ahead During December

Pork and Sweet Potatoes Tops in Plentiful Foods

Good eating is ahead for December, judging from the U. S. Department of Agriculture's list of plentiful foods for the month.

Pork and sweet potatoes top the the list of plentiful foods for December, reports Mrs. Eleanor Loomis, extension consumer marketing agent at the University of Minnesota. Already in heavy supply, pork is expected to continue abundant through December as farmers send large numbers of spring pigs to market. Traditional ham, with all the holiday trimmings, deserves special consideration this year because prices on all pork cuts should be reasonable.

Sweet potatoes, popular for serving with ham and other pork, will be in ample supply during the Christmas month at prices favorable to consumers. The sweet potato crop is expected to be about three per cent larger than a year ago.

Good buys in poultry in December will include turkeys and broiler-fryer chicken. Larger than average supplies of turkeys are anticipated, though not quite so many as last December. Frying chickens should be an especially good buy because this is the season when consumer demand for these young birds is usually at the lowest level of the year.

Homemakers can plan on plenty of apples for holiday meals, since the latest crop round-up points to an increase of about 8 per cent above average. A big grape crop in California will provide plenty of raisins for holiday baking, a welcome change following two years of short supplies and high prices.

Foresters Give Tips on Christmas Trees

It might be poor advice for furniture, but it's often wise to buy a Christmas tree too big for your room.

This doesn't mean you'll leave the tree on the back porch Instead, you can cut off as much from the lower trunk as needed to make the tree fit where you want it. The extra branches then make fine decorations.

This advice is from Marvin Smith and Parker Anderson, extension foresters at the University of Minnesota. They have other tips, too.

One is on tree species. Balsam fir, Douglas fir and the pines are less apt to lose their needles than most others. Spruce tend to drop their needles after a few days, but you can prevent this to some extent by getting a freshly cut tree and standing it in water.

Pines are becoming more popular. Growers are shearing or debudding them nowadays. This gives you tight, thickly branched trees—unlike the bare open appearance of pines that grow naturally.

No matter what kind of tree you buy, get one that's fresh. Here's how to tell: Hold it upright and sharply tap the butt end on the ground. If a good many needles fall off, it was cut too early and is dried out.

When you get the tree home, saw off the butt end at an angle, at least an inch above the original cut. Put the stump in water and keep it there from then on.

Tests also show that putting the tree in water is the most practical and satisfactory way of keeping the tree green, keeping the needles from falling and reducing the fire hazard.

Delmar Hagen of Gatzke and Paul Engelstad Are Among Leaders in Drive

The board of managers of the Red River Valley Winter Shows at Crookston, together with area and county chairmen, will meet at the Northwest School cafeteria Monday, December 7, at 12 noon to conduct a training and orientation meeting for the campaign to raise funds to finance a new set of buildings for the Winter Shows.

It was announced that the kickoff meetings for the advance solicitation will be held the first two weeks in January, and that this phase of the drive will be completed by February 1. The general solicitation will climax the week of the Winter Shows.

Wm. Strickler of Euclid is general chairman of the campaign, with Delmar Hagen of Gatzke and Robert Backstrom of Warren as area co-chairmen.

Working Rules

A poll of the opinions of steel workers at Gary, Indiana, as to whether they would walk out at the end of the 80-day work period if the companies do not make them a better offer, indicated that 60 per cent are now in favor of resuming the strike. The latest offer of the steel companies would provide for pay increases and other benefits that, according to their figures, would cost them 33 cents an hour, over a period of three years. In exchange for this the companies are asking for changes in the work rules that the representatives of the workers object to.

The real issue in this bargaining apparently is the proposed changes in work rules. The companies take the position that they can afford to pay higher wages if they are not forced to operate inefficiently by continuing costly and obsolete working conditions. The workers are not willing to give up rights that have been established in previous bargaining.

These are problems that reasonable people should be able to settle by arbitration. Working rules that impose unjustifiable costs are not in the best interests of either the employer or the employee. John Lewis, who bargained successfully for the mine workers over a period of many years, did not object to increased mechanization and greater efficiency as long as the workers shared in the benefits of that process. He took the position that it was better to have 200,000 well paid, high producing mine workers, than 400,000 unemployed.

The reasonableness of working rules, and whether or not they are justified, raise questions that cannot be decided by those who are not familiar with the problems involved. We can all reach conclusions as to the fairness of wages by the hour or by the month, but working rules involve questions that require special information or experience.

But we can see no good reason why any group of reasonable and impartial people should not be able to come up with fair conclusions about what is right and what is wrong in working rules if all of the facts were submitted to them.

Teaching At Home

Minnesota's compulsory attendance law has become controversial again as a result of the Kral case at Stillwater. Mr. and Mrs. Otto Kral didn't like what the public schools were offering and decided to educate their son at home. School authorities, questioning the right of parents, under state law, to set up their own school at home, decided to have the question settled in court. The court decided the parents, in this instance, were meeting the reasonable requirements of the state.

There now will be pressure on the legislature to pass laws that will put stronger teeth into the compulsory attendance laws and give added power to the school authorities in matters of this kind. It is conceivable that the court's decision in this instance may encourage crack-pot parents to attempt what the capable Krals apparently have accomplished.

On this question we will go along with Representative Peter Popovitch of St. Paul, who thinks that no new laws are needed to meet the problem at this time. We like his calm appraisal of the facts and his recognition of parental authority, as well as responsibility. Responding to a request for his opinion about the Kral case, he said:

"My feeling is that the judge arrived at the correct decision, but I disagree with him that any more legislation should be passed.

"I think a lot depends on the fundamental approach to the philosophy of education. The judge apparently thinks the state is superior and consequently should have greater rights than it has.

"In this very sensitive field, my feeling is that the rights of parents with their children are superior.

"As long as children are getting an education and it can be proved that it is not just a subterfuge to keep youngsters out of school, I don't think the state has any right to step in."

"Of course, 99 per cent of people wouldn't try teaching children at home—and a superintendent has to satisfy himself that there is actually school being taught there, but it would be ridiculous to require parents to hold a certificate to teach their children at home."

A New Socialism

The Socialists of Europe are backing away from Socialism. In England Saturday, Hugh Gaitskell, head of the British Labor party, called for a revision of the party constitution drafted 40 years ago, moderating the traditional socialist doctrine involving state ownership of the means of production.

He urged the adoption of "fundamental principles of British democratic socialism as we see them and as we feel them today—in 1959 and not in 1918. It's no use waving the banners of a bygone age."

Commenting on the trend away from Marxist socialism in other countries, the New York Times recently came up with the following interesting conclusions:

"As the first major Socialist party in the world to catch up with the twentieth century, the German Social Democrats have now officially thrown their nineteenth-century Marxist ballast overboard and adopted a new program emphasizing democracy instead of socialism.

"The new program is embodied in a new Socialist Manifesto approved after a bitter internal struggle by an extraordinary party congress by a vote of 324 to 16. It marks the first major revision of German Socialist doctrine in 34 years, and coming from the foster parent of all Socialist and Communist parties it is bound to have profound influence on Socialist thinking everywhere.

"In this Manifesto the German Social Democrats repudiate the two basic tenets of both socialism and communism — namely, the class war and state ownership of the means of production. They declare that both lead to a "conglomeration" of economic power which is a danger to the Socialist aims of justice and freedom. On that basis, mindful of what has happened in all Communist-dominated countries, they denounce communism as a betrayal of the Socialist idea.

"Instead of the ideas of the Communist Manifesto, now relegated to the position of an "outstanding historical document" no longer in step with modern times, they accept private enterprise and a free market with as much competition as possible and as much government regulation and planning as necessary.

"In the same vein they drop their traditional internationalism and pacifism and declare that national defense is the duty of every citizen. Finally, while upholding the right to free thinking, they replace their traditional anti-clerical attitude with an offer of a "partnership" with established religions.

"There are two obvious reasons for this Socialist turn-about. One is the spectacular success of Economic Minister Erhard's "social market economy," which combines free enterprise with social responsibility and has brought West Germany an unprecedented prosperity that's eliminating the "proletariat." The other is Chancellor Adenauer's success in creating one big party that is eliminating the splinter parties. The Socialists now realize that they can no longer hope to come to power as a minority class party in coalition with other smaller parties but only as a broadly based people's party, capable of attracting all liberal elements. The result can only contribute to German and European stability."

Radar for Speeders

(Winnipeg Tribune)

These are the motorists who seem to look on traffic control as a game of "cops-and-drivers." They think the law should give them a sporting chance to get away, almost literally, with murder.

These motorists may oppose the radar system, used in most other provinces and which the Manitoba government is now considering for use here.

But Manitobans with an interest in safety on the highways will accept at least a trial of a system which seems to work with reasonable efficiency elsewhere.

Some jurisdictions post signs at the locations of radar speed checking but others have no warning. There is a good reason why signs should be posted — they remind motorists to drive carefully.

Radar will not solve all problems, of course. Provinces which have used it for several years still have a good many highway accidents which can be blamed on speeding. But Manitoba's traffic accident record is bad enough that we should not neglect any device which may bring about an improvement.

Movies in Air

(Windsor, Canada, Star)

Air travel can be an exciting experience for those unaccustomed to it. But long flights can be boring to experienced travelers. Often the aircraft is flying so high it is impossible to see the ground — or water. All one sees are the clouds underneath, which soon lose their eye appeal.

Russia is doing something about this. On its 90-minute Moscow-Kiev flight, a relatively short hop, it shows a movie to keep passengers interested.

Borrowed Nonsense . . .

Recent state-wide meetings of Minnesota farm organizations have focused attention on farm problems and farm programs. Recent reports and forecasts by experts in the U. S. Department of Agriculture in Washington have created further concern here in Minnesota, because most of the predictions were for a continued decline in farm income.

Not Only Farmers . . .

Economic conditions in agriculture affect, not only farmers, but businessmen in small towns and large cities. In the long run they affect us all. And therefore more and more non-farm people are becoming interested in farm programs.

Farm Legislation

Much of the national legislation that has been in effect for many years has referred to the term "parity". Much of the discussion of proposed new legislation relates to that term. Farmers generally know what parity means, but many others do not. Ask members of the non-farm public what "parity" means and you get such answers as "subsidy", or "higher prices", or "government payments".

These answers reveal so much misunderstanding that if we are to hope for a better program in agriculture it is important that the public in general should know the real meaning of the principle of parity.

Parity

In the dictionary the first and principal definition given for "parity" is "equality in amount, status, or character". Parity, then, is another way of expressing the principle of equality that America has always stood for. Parity for agriculture, means to assure it an equal status with other segments of our economy.

Specifically, what should such equal status mean? It should mean equal opportunity for farmers to achieve, in return for the capital and labor and managerial skill that they invest in farming, rewards that are comparable to the rewards received when that same amount of capital and labor and managerial skill are invested in other non-agricultural enterprises.

A Yardstick

Parity, then, in its true meaning of equality, is a principle that is easy to understand. How, then, did its meaning become so confused and misunderstood to so many people? The answer lies in the history of recent farm legislation and its administration.

Equality is a principle and an ideal, and as such must be measured by some sort of standard. When parity first entered the vocabulary of American farm programs the standard, or yardstick, that was applied for practical purposes was the price relationship that existed in the period of 1911 to 1914. This yardstick was chosen because that period reflected a time in the history of our economy when the earning power of agriculture seemed to be in relatively equal balance with that of other segments of our economy.

Meaning Distorted

This yardstick served its purpose as it was first applied. But since then its meaning has become confused and distorted. Too often it was used as a formula rather than a principle. The meaning of the term has been fogged up with figures and percentages, and with new terms like "sliding scales" and "moving averages" and other slippery figures.

True Meaning

In our efforts to secure a sound and equitable agricultural program it is important to get back to the true meaning of parity—equality. Obviously, one doesn't talk about 75 per cent of "equality".

I am sure than when there is general public understanding of the problem, the non-farm voters and citizens will want to join with farmers in securing conditions that will provide farmers with that equality of opportunity that is a fundamental American principle.

"EASY DOES IT"

IF YOU have carolers dropping in to warm their hands, serve them with hot fruit punch and Christmas cookies or festive soup in paper cups. For soup, use one can each of pea and tomato and thin with milk. Pass saltines.

Teen-agers getting together during the holidays will be as hungry as ever. Keep chili con carne on hand and plan to extend it or make more substantial by serving with hot dogs, macaroni or cornbread squares.

THIS WEEK'S RECIPE
Festive Coffee Nog

- 6 eggs, well beaten
- ¾ cup sugar
- 3 cups milk
- ¾ to 1 cup instant coffee
- 2 cups heavy cream
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- ½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
- Dash of mace

Beat eggs until thick and creamy; gradually blend in sugar. Blend milk with coffee, vanilla and 1 cup cream and stir into egg mixture. Whip remaining cream until stiff and fold into coffee nog mixture. Chill well for at least 2 hours. Pour into punch bowl and sprinkle lightly with nutmeg and mace. Serve in small cups.

Tree-trimming party at church? Plan main dish around a heart soup like oyster stew or a casserole of corn and pork sausages or scalloped potatoes and ham. Have fruits, dates and nuts for dessert, something to eat out of hand.

Coffee-flavored egg nog is wonderful to serve to friends dropping in after church. You can pass fruit bread and butter finger sandwiches with this.

To make grapefruit halves festive, drizzle the halves with water-thinned apricot jam, then garnish with sprigs of holly.

What Does A Girl Stand To Lose?

By C. D. Smith

This week's letter: "Ever since I started high school, my parents have been strict with me. Maybe it's because I rode home from a ball game with these boys that were pretty wild. Nothing happened, honest, but someone started stories about me. When my parents asked me about riding home with these boys, I lied. My brother said he heard someone say they saw me with them. Finally, I told the truth—that I did ride home with them. I have tried to make friends with nice kids so I could win back my parents' confidence. I won back my mother's, but not my dad's. Before all this happened, we were pretty close; now he acts like he hates me. He says I should forget all about boys. Recently, some wild boys asked me to go riding with them. I refused. Afterwards, I asked myself why I didn't. I had nothing to lose."

This young lady is apparently very much hurt by the fact that her father continues to be displeased with her because she made a mistake. But, she is very wrong when she says that she has "nothing to lose." If she continues to be friendly with these boys or goes riding with them, she will certainly lose forever the chance to win back her father's trust and confidence.

All of us make mistakes, at one time or another. And we generally must pay for these mistakes in one way or another. But when we recognize that something is wrong, and then continue to do it, we are no longer making a "mistake." We are deliberately doing something that we know is wrong. There is a big difference.

We think the young lady can win back her father's confidence—if she keeps the right kind of company and proves by her actions and attitude that she is striving to be the type of daughter that he wants her to be. She must not let that one "mistake" turn into a habit.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss, or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, NATIONAL WEEKLY NEWSPAPER SERVICE, FRANKFORT, KY.

GROWING WITH YOUR CHILD

Changing Loyalties

The end of middle childhood and the beginning of adolescence pose most interesting problems for youngsters and their parents. There are many folks who think that puberty (marked by the maturing of the sex organs, ushers in very suddenly a whole new way of life for children. This may be true in some places in the world, but it certainly is not true in our country.

Some people seem to believe that once a youngster is pubescent he will forsake his earlier ways and suddenly take on a whole new set of interests, attitudes and goals. Where he formerly sought out friends of his own sex and ridiculed or depreciated members of the other sex, he will abruptly change his views and seek out the company of the opposite sex. Actually, of course, this doesn't happen. What little shift in behavior does occur with beginning adolescence is largely the result of conformity to adult expectations.

If we look closely at the pubescent youngster, we find that he is still basically loyal to his own sex mates. Even during senior high school years and college the close friendship groups or cliques are made up of people of the same sex. Girls and boys still share their most private life with friends of their own sex, even as they begin to associate more frequently with members of the opposite sex.

These cliques or close friendship groups are as important to the adolescent as the gang is to the preadolescent. They serve as a source of encouragement and strength to the still uncertain youngster. Within these groups he finds acceptance and security and a certain amount of protection from the demands of adult society.

Gradually, and only gradually, does the late adolescent and early adult learn to trust another person of the opposite sex. Within such a trusting framework a new relationship develops which permits the sharing of intimacies. But this is a long way removed from the first signs of adolescence.

DASH IT ALL!

Youngsters in the family used to get a workout on churning day operating the old dasher churns.

The quality of their homemade butter was sometimes excellent but the results were not uniform. Sanitation measures depended upon the individual farmer. There was a by-product of churning that was often a favorite beverage—buttermilk.

In those days, when a big family provided an abundance of free labor and time was not at such a premium, homemade butter was often taken to the store in town to be traded for other necessities.

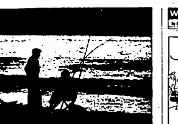
How Well Do You Know Your America?

Surrounded by fantastically shaped rock formations, Lake Mead is a sea in a desert. Formed by Hoover Dam, it has 550 miles of shore line and is the largest artificial lake in the world. Only a half hour drive from the resort mecca of Las Vegas, Nevada, it is the scene of swimming, boating, fishing, water skiing or just plain relaxing in the sun. With open season and ideal weather conditions throughout the year, Lake Mead attracts thousands of fishermen. They can seek bass in the lake or go after trout on the Colorado River below Hoover Dam.

WORLD OUTDOOR

THIS is the time of year when the majority of sportsmen spend their time in the world outdoors in quest of such varied game as deer, Bob White, squirrel, & rabbit. In the wee hours before dawn, the all-nite cafe on Main Street pours steaming cups of coffee as youngsters and oldtimers stuff themselves with pancakes and bacon and eggs in preparation for the day of sport that lies ahead.

But, mixed in with the crowd sometimes, is a fellow who seems to be a bit out of place. He doesn't wear a hunting coat, camouflage jacket, or a bright red hunting cap. He's decked out in fishing gear and this choice of apparel and sport usually brings on some good natured jests from the nimrods who think nothing of freezing in a duck blind or on a frozen hillside but don't have any use for a rod and reel after the first frost of the season.



More often than not, however, the fisherman has the last laugh. When some of the fellows straggle back with an empty game bag they are likely to see our fisherman proudly showing off a fine string of fish.

Fishing is more fun in the spring and fall, it's true. But they are still there to be caught in the winter by the fisherman who will go after them. In fact, in some parts of the country anglers eagerly await the arrival of winter. Some of them fish through the ice. In some of the big TVA impoundments, winter is the time big bass are caught "jigging" — with a long, stout pole, short length of line and a hook liberally decorated with worms.

If you have never indulged, give winter fishing a try. Check your local regulations first, however, as the season may be closed on some species.

YOUNG WILLIE

By June Ruff

THE sunlight was warm and bees hummed drowsily in a tall, red Hollyhock beside the front porch. Sarah settled her Mother in the old wicker rocking chair and tucked the wool afghan around her frail body.

"Nap a little, if you want too, Mama," Sarah said. "I'm going to sit right here on the porch and read."

"Your're just hoping that Willie Beamis will come by in the grocery truck!" Mama answered stridently. "Don't think I haven't seen you fluttering your eyelashes at him like a Jezebel!"

"Now Mama," Sarah eased her plump body down onto the step. "Don't upset yourself."

"Upset myself!" Mama bristled. "What would your Papa say if he knew you were accepting attentions from a Grocery Boy? Your Papa was a gentleman!"

Sarah sighed and let her book fall open to the place marker, but she did not read. She listened to the rocking chair creaking monotonously on a warped porch board. Slower and slower, and finally not at all. Mama was asleep. A feeble white haired woman ludicrously wrapped in the bright vari-colored afghan.

Sarah touched her altered face pensively, remembering herself as the shy, pretty girl that Mama saw. Then she thought of Willie Beamis, dashingly handsome and gay, leaping out of the red Grocery truck like a knight from a white charger.

Then, as now, Mama's voice had reprimanded Sarah sharply. "Papa and I didn't educate you to waste your life on a delivery boy. You were brought up a lady and you'll marry a gentleman!"

Mama had been slim and strong then, and determined. And Sarah bowed to her will. It was habit, because Papa always gave in to Mama too.

Years passed and Papa was gone, and Mama seemed to grow even more bitter about Willie.

"Willie Beamis!" She would explode when she saw him on the street.

"Fresh young Hooligan! It's a good thing they built that Mill at the edge of town, or he'd have been a delivery boy all his worthless life!"

The wrought iron front gate complained on ancient hinges bringing Sarah back from her reverie and interrupting Mama's light slumber.

"Willie?" Mama inquired shrilly, "Willie Beamis? How many times have I told you to take the groceries to the back door?"

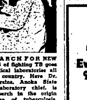
The stout, bald man coming up the walk carried a lunch pail in one hand and an evening paper in the other.

"Yes Ma'am, Mrs. Lassiter," he said respectfully. "I'll take 'em 'round right now." He winked at Sarah and followed the walk around to the back door.

Mama muttered fitfully, then dozed again in the warm sunshine.

Sarah crept into the house quietly, through the old dining room and into kitchen.

"She won't ever change, Will." She said by way of greeting.



Her husband smiled at her over his newspaper. He sat at the table. Sarah sat down opposite him.

"Twenty years we've all lived in this house, and she don't remember a day of it." Sarah shook her head sadly. "She don't even remember the big fuss she made at our wedding. She just lives in a world all to herself."

"She's happy, Sarah," Will reminded kindly.

"But the things she says to you and the high handed way she treats you," Sarah countered.

"She don't say them to me, she's talking to Willie Beamis, and he WAS a Whipper Snapper," Will grinned, patting Sarah's hand.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh
Junior's Name was "MUD"
Red Jackson's seven-year-old, Junior, was passing by the local beauty parlor the other day. He looked in the window and saw a lady with one of those mud packs on her face.
Busting with curiosity, he walked in and asked her why she had all that stuff on. The lady was taken back for a moment but politely answered, "It's to make me look pretty."
When the beautician removed the mud pack, Junior took a close look at the lady and commented, "It didn't really work, did it?"
From where I sit, count on children to tell the truth—sometimes, the embarrassing truth. Maybe we adults could use more of that. For instance, maybe we ought to admit that tolerance "doesn't really work" until we eliminate all our intolerances—even to respecting a neighbor's right to enjoy a quiet glass of beer. Good neighborliness begins when intolerance ends...and, in truth, we all ought to work towards that end.

Sleepy Drivers Are Real Menace on Road

Highway safety director, Harry A. Nelson, said today that sleepy drivers prove a far greater danger on Minnesota highways than they were generally given credit for. A study just completed in the highway safety division based on officer reports of 38,000 accidents in Minnesota last year, ranks the "driver asleep" among the seven leading causes of fatal accidents in our state.

The report shows that there was a "driver asleep" in 6.7 per cent of all fatal accidents, and that approximately 44 lives could have been saved on Minnesota highways last year if 40 drivers had not fallen asleep at the wheel.

The study also points up the fact that younger drivers are more likely to be found falling asleep than older drivers, since 38 per cent of the drivers causing accidents because of sleeping behind the wheel were 25 years of age or under, and 54 per cent were under 35. The report also indicates that 71 per cent of the drivers causing accidents who were asleep at the wheel were involved between the hours of midnight and 6 a.m.; however, accidents where the cause is attributed to drivers asleep occur during each hour of the day. Rural roads and highways are also indicated as the most dangerous, with 5 per cent of all rural accidents caused by the driver asleep.

Nelson pointed out that the sleepy driver poses a most difficult problem of law enforcement, because they are hard to detect until the driver either runs off the road or becomes involved in some other type of accident. It takes only a split second for a driver to doze off before his car is involved in an accident.

Every motorist should be alerted to the extreme danger of being a drowsy driver. A stop well off the highway for a rest, or for coffee, milk, or other refreshment, is a good policy and could save many lives.

Should Report on Baby Sitter Pay

Mrs. Housewife—Have you enjoyed a night out recently? Who took care of the kids? If you pay a baby sitter or any other full time or part time domestic employee as much as $50 a calendar quarter, be sure to report the social security tax.

If you pay a household worker as little as four dollars every week of the 13-week quarter, this adds up to more than $50. Reporting is simple and easy—and it is required by law.

Langen to Attend Hearings in Iowa

Committee to Look Into Grain Storage Practices

Congressman Odin Langen was called to Des Moines, Iowa, this week for special public hearings of the Intergovernmental relations subcommittee, on which he serves.

The primary concern of the hearings, according to a letter to Congressman Langen from Chairman L. H. Fountain (D., N.C.) are the policies and procedures relating to storage, handling, and disposition of Commodity Credit Corporation grain, but it is expected that background information will also be obtained concerning price support activities under which CCC grain stocks are acquired.

The Des Moines hearings are intended to obtain information on CCC storage activities as they are carried out on the local level, and officials of the Iowa Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee (ASC) will be asked to testify.

Additional hearings on the storage situation, Fountain told Langen, will be held in Washington early next year.

Living Costs Hit Peak in October

Sets Sixth New Record in the Past Seven Months

Living costs rose to a new peak in October. It was the sixth new record set in seven months.

The Labor Department announced that its consumer price index rose two-tenths of one per cent to 125.5 per cent of the 1947-49 base period. This is 1⅛ per cent higher than in October 1958.

As a result of the rise, about 1,250,000 workers will get pay increases under labor contracts which call for cost-of-living adjustments.

The rise for most of them will be a cent an hour. These workers are principally in auto, farm equipment, electrical manufacturing and aircraft production industries.

About 68,000 workers in Lockheed Aircraft and the Allis-Chalmers farm equipment companies will get 2-cent hourly pay raises.

A major factor in the cost-of-living increase was in transportation—higher dealer sales prices for new 1960 model automobiles, plus the effect of the new cent-a-gallon federal gasoline tax imposed in October.

Food costs declined three-tenths of one per cent, but all other major groups of goods and services went up.

M. Mehrkens Renamed Head of Dairy Assn.

Top of the Nation Group to Hold 2d Sale Next October

Following reports on their first sale of dairy cows held here in October, the directors and officers of the Top of the Nation Dairy assn., holding their annual meeting at the Rex cafe Monday afternoon, agreed that a similar sale should be held next fall. The 1960 sale will be held at the fair grounds pavilion on the third Thursday in October.

Animals sold at the first sale brought an average price of more than $350 and the members attending the meeting were satisfied with the results. The willingness of buyers to pay good prices for cows of proven production was most gratifying, they agreed.

Elected as directors for the coming year are Maynard Mehrkens of Thief River Falls, Robert Barr of Warren, M. B. Magnuson of Roseau, E. C. Fredrickson of the Northwest School at Crookston, Donald Walker of Red Lake Falls, Lloyd Kasprick of Angus, and Martin Carrico of Hallock.

All of the officers were reelected, including Maynard Mehrkens, president; Martin Carrico, vice president and manager; Paul Stalmaschuk, secretary; Kenneth Onken, treasurer; and James Roche, consignment manager. The success of the sale was attributed largely to the guidance of Mr. Carrico and he was given a vote of thanks for his contribution.

In his report, Carrico pointed out that the Top of the Nation sale, the first to use high production records as a qualification for the consignment of animals, has received favorable publicity and he is hopeful that next year's sale will attract more buyers from distant points. He made several suggestions that he thought would be helpful, one being an earlier start. It was decided that next year's sale should get under way promptly at 12:00 o'clock.

Carrico stressed the importance of showmanship and consignors to next year's sale will be urged to have their animals ready for showing early in the morning of the sale when there will be a period of inspection by prospective buyers.

The same standards of production records will be used next year, 450 pounds of fat for purebreds and 400 pounds for grade cows.

The association was organized by the four Dairy Herd Improvement associations that serve northwestern Minnesota and only animals from DHIA tested herds can be consigned for sale.

Following the business session, Robert Barr reported on his success in barn ventilation control by the slot system and Dale Svendsgaard told of their experience last summer in hauling their pasture to the cows.

MANAGER Martin Carrico of Hallock was given a vote of thanks by his fellow officers and directors of the Top Of The Nation Dairy Association at their annual meeting here Monday for his contribution toward the success of the dairy cow sale held here in October. He was reelected and will direct the 1960 sale which will be held here next October.

One Week Left of Community Chest Drive

Collections Pass $8,000 Mark Toward Quota of $11,700

With one week remaining in the Pennington county Community Chest drive, a total of $8,081.79 has been collected toward the goal of $11,700 which was established by Chest officials, according to George Hale, county chairman.

Hale emphasized that the drive is incomplete but with the cooperation of everyone, the goal will be reached or surpassed. Dec. 11 will be last day for the drive and special efforts will be made to contact those who have not yet reported.

Four of the 18 county townships, Hickory, Deerpark, Highlanding and Kratka, have completed their drives and have turned in $141.50. No reports have been made from St. Hilaire or Goodridge and the business drive in Thief River Falls will require special effort during the coming week.

To date, the business drive has netted $6,984.95, the residential drive has raised $1,045.34 and the rural drive has brought in $141.50.

Hale emphasized that to have a United Fund drive next year which would include all fund-raising efforts in the community, the Community Chest drive this year must be a complete success. "We can do it if we receive the cooperation of everyone," he said.

City's Budget Is Cut Further Monday Night

Total Still Remains about $70,000 above Last Year's Figure

Refinancing city bonds which mature in 1960 may be the only way Thief River Falls' budget for next year can be brought into line without raising the mill rate to an extremely high level.

This was the picture that emerged after a second informal meeting of the city council Monday night, Nov. 30, to study the budget for the coming year.

The second session resulted in the elimination of an additional $48,000 in departmental requests leaving the proposed budget about $70,000 above that for 1959.

A meeting with representatives from the bond firm of Juran and Moody in St. Paul is being arranged for Monday evening, Dec. 7, when the subject of refinancing will be explored.

At an adjourned meeting of the council preceding the budget discussion, the city turned down a truck and rotary snow plow which had been purchased for snow removal work at the municipal airport under declaration of emergency. In place of the unit, the council voted to purchase a truck and plow for $1,320 from the McCormick Truck and Implement company of Grand Forks.

Contamination of the well at the municipal airport by fuel oil generated considerable discussion by the council regarding the source of the oil and an investigation will be made of the matter.

A delegation from the Junior Chamber of Commerce headed by its spokesman, Jon Metusalem, again appeared before the council to request that condemnation proceedings be instituted to clear the way for the city to purchase the property east of the Eighth st. bridge for use as a wayside park. Definite action on the matter will be taken by the council at its Dec. 15 meeting.

Course in Politics Is Arranged by Chamber; 3 Groups Are Meeting

"Businessmen must get into politics because politics serves business," Chamber of Commerce president Ed Quam stated this week in announcing plans for giving every member of the community to learn the fundamentals of practical politics. We are not as much concerned with preparing candidates for public office as we are with increasing the ability to talk and act intelligently on the issues of voting, organizing and electing good public officials and thereby advancing good government," said Quam.

Three groups have been organized with 15 members in each group. Each group will meet weekly and are involved in a series of practical two-hour meeting sessions. Materials being used are from the Citizens Action Program of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and include the discussion of all of eight practical politics pamphlets for each person in the course and a set of case problems.

Quam commentated that "if business is to improve its effectiveness in the legislative process and with government generally, it must become more active and effective in the political process. Persons wishing to participate in the course may call the office of the executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce (MU 3-3720) and register. The cost of each group is limited to $5 to cover the price of the materials plus the actual cost of their study breakfast.

The first unit will be discussed at the first meeting as follows:

1. The individual in politics—why he should want to participate in politics and how they can be encouraged.

2. The political yard—how a yard is divided—by party, by leader's and worker's jobs—responsibilities and how they are organized.

3. The political campaign—how a campaign is run—how workers are motivated, etc. how campaigning is interlinked.

Once Roseau County Woman Slays Spouse, Two Children in Mo.

A former Roseau county woman, Mrs. Betty Lou Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Zuberbier of Roseau, is being held on a charge of first degree murder following the slaying of her husband and two children with a revolver she had bought as a Christmas present for Mr. Moore. An Associated Press report says she confessed the slaying after giving herself up at Grand Island, Nebraska.

She was returned Monday to Harrisonville, Missouri, county seat near her home, where she was arraigned that same day.

Mrs. Moore, who attended grade school in Roseau county and went to high school in Hutchinson, is one of four children. She left Roseau county about 1952 and attended Union College in Lincoln, Nebraska, where she met Mr. Moore whom she later married.

Police report that she had left home several times prior to the slaying and had told them there was no family trouble. Last spring local authorities were alerted when she disappeared and an alarm was turned in by her husband. She was later found and returned home.

The AP report of the incident says:

"First word of the triple slaying was Mrs. Moore's telephone call to Grand Island police from a motel Saturday night. Sheriff Stephen was notified, and when he broke into the Moore home, he found the body of Charles R. Moore, 25, in one bedroom, and the bodies of the couple's children, David 3, and Monty Janelle, 5, in another bedroom.

"Grand Island Police Chief Michael Gephart said Mrs. Moore gave no reason for the killings.

"Gephart quoted the woman as saying she bought the revolver Friday to give to her husband for Christmas. She said she took the family car and headed into Nebraska after the shootings."
